SNELL SAYS DRY VOTE IS CERTAIN AT THIS SESSION

Candidate for Speaker Repeats View After Seeing Hoover.

CALL ON PRESIDENT QUIETS TIFF RUMOR

Wet Leader Lays Claim to 182 of 435 Ballots in Lower House.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The prohibition issue is certain to be voted on in the next House of Representatives, in the opinion of Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, prospective Republican leader.

Mr. Snell, who Monday was chosen as his party's candidate for Speaker, expressed this opinion at the Capitol and later as he was leaving the White House after a conference with President Hoover.

It was not the prohibition question that took the New Yorker to the White House. He went there on his own initiative, simply to tell the President that he and other members of the Republican organization were going to stand squarely behind him and that they were to do their utmost to translate his recommendations into law.

Coolness Talk Dispelled.

The conference, described by Mr. Snell as a "most friendly" one, served to discourage talk that there was any coolness between the two men.

In discussing the prohibition issue with reporters, Mr. Snell said:

"There isn't any question in mind but what we will have to meet the prohibition issue in the next session of Congress."

Regarded as a dry on the basis of his legislative record, Snell yesterday declined to say how he will vote when the issue does come up.

Henry H. Curran, chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, praised Snell, describing him as a "patriot." Curran estimated that 182 members of the House, the total is 435, are willing to submit to the States an amendment repealing the eighteenth amendment.

Rules Change Sought.

If there are in fact this many, if there are even as many as 145, there would seem to be a good chance to bring up some kind of prohibition measure for a show-down vote.

Under the present rules such a vote might not be possible, because it requires a majority, or 218, to discharge a committee that is holding up a bill and force the bill out on the floor.

Today, however, the Republicans are expected to adopt a recommendation for liberalizing this discharge rule and other obnoxious rules.

Snell, in a rules liberalization plan drafted to meet the demands of the House independents, has suggested that 145 members rather than a majority or 218, as at present, be designated as a sufficient number to force a vote on a bill.

Resubmission Impossible.

There are clearly that many now who are in favor of resubmitting the prohibition question to State conventions and the number is constantly growing. Many of them are drys, and having voted for resubmission would go out and fight the repeal amendment.

Even so, there are not enough to assure passage of a resubmission resolution. This would require a two-thirds vote of the two houses.

The top figures of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment show 182 members of the House in favor of resubmission, 108 shy of two-thirds, and 31 members of the Senate, which is not even a third of the 96 members.

As has been said, however, the number in favor of resubmission is always growing, and should the Demo-

Youth Is Kidnaped And Robbed by Six

Escapes After Two, Armed, Leap Upon His Car, He Tells Police.

An amazing story of kidnaping and robbery last night was told to police of the First Precinct by Anthony Jerome Farrah, 21-year-old blacksmith's helper, of 3503 Fourteenth street.

Farrah said he escaped in the coupe he was driving after two men boarded the car in front of the Smithsonian Institution and forced him to drive to a secluded road behind Arlington National Cemetery. He said he was robbed of $36.

Six men in a sedan stopped his coupe in the Smithsonian grounds, and two of them armed with guns mounted his running board, threatening to kill him if he opened his mouth Farrah told police. He and the two armed men drove to the cemetery, he said, and four of the men in the sedan followed. He said he jumped in the coupe when they were not looking and drove away. A brick hurled after him by one of the men, broke a window of his car, he said.

POLICE GUARD LIFE OF CAPITAL LAWYER

Soterios Nicholson Is Being Protected Day and Night Following Threats.

Two headquarters detectives have been assigned to guard the life of Soterios Nicholson, Washington attorney and magazine publisher, after he had received a death warning in consequence of his action during the visit of Dino Grandi here of presenting a petition to the Italian foreign minister calling for freedom of the Greek Island of Dodecanese.

Mr. Nicholson presented the petition to Senor Grandi on November 18. A few days later, it was learned yesterday, he received a threatening letter believed to have been mailed by supporters of Fascism here and understood to have informed Mr. Nicholson that he had but three days more to live.

At first Mr. Nicholson, it is understood, was inclined to ignore the threat, but later he changed his mind and became convinced that it should be considered seriously. He reported the situation to Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, and a day-and-night guard was posted to protect Mr. Nicholson.

Police meanwhile are studying the letter for possible clews through which the sender may be traced and arrested.

In the petition, which was sponsored by a committee representing Dodecanesian exiles, Italy was urged to restore to Greece the islands which were taken over by Italy in 1912. The petition charged Italy had carried out a systematic moral and material persecution against the Greek islanders for the purpose of forcing the inhabitants to emigrate so that Grecian Dodecanese could be populated with Italians.

It charged further that when Italy took over the islands there were 148,232 inhabitants, while now there are less than 70,000. Italy, the petition declared, "has whipped mercilessly and thrown into the most damp underground prisons without any food for 30 and 40 and 50 hours, many prominent persons of the islands."

Expulsion Threat Is Given Nicholas

Renounce Wife by Tomorrow or Leave Family, Says Carol.

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—King Carol of Roumania, angered by defiant letters from his father, Prince Nicholas, has given the prince until Thursday to renounce his morganatic marriage to Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj or be expelled from the royal family, said reports from Bucharest today.

The king recently gave his younger brother a two months' furlough to "think things over," but letters subsequently received were said to have changed his mind.

The king's advisers were reported as strongly opposed to the harsh measures outlined. Premier Jorga went so far, it was understood, as to remind the king that the family expulsion law was framed by the late King Ferdinand, his father, to meet a case of rebellion on the part of Carol as crown prince and not the younger prince. To this Carol replied, "No prince is allowed to make a fool of himself."

BATTLE FLARES AS MAH DRIVES ON TSITSIHAR

Tokyo's Stand Expected to Block Peace Plan Formed at Paris.

JAPANESE REPORTED TO BE FORCED BACK

League Proposal Asks Quiz and Omits Demand That Nippon Evacuate.

(Associated Press.)

Manchurian warfare flared up anew today in a battle between Japanese troops and a Chinese cavalry detachment of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan's forces southwest of Hailun, Shanghai was informed from Harbin.

Gen. Mah was reported to be intent upon recapturing Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungkiang Province, from which, as governor, he was driven out by Japanese two weeks ago.

The Japanese were suffering a setback, reports said. Japanese military officials in that area called back airplanes and artillery to deal with the situation, which was part of the Chinese general's announced intention to recapture Tsitsihar, it was added.

China Waits League Aid.

Japan will insist upon a reservation in the League of Nations peace program for Manchuria giving Japan the right of self-defense against bandits and other lawless elements, it was said in authoritative circles in Tokyo today.

Japan's insistence upon the reservation was made in view of press reports from Paris that a draft resolution by the league council, providing for the establishment of an international commission of inquiry, refrained from giving the Japanese authority to clean up bandits. This, Tokyo contends, is one of the main points at issue.

The Japanese command announced that reinforcements had been dispatched to Tsitsihar following receipt of reports that 3,000 men were marching on the city from Hailun.

Tokyo reported intercepting radio messages indicating that Gen. Mah Chan-Shan contemplated an offensive against Tsitsihar in the belief that the United States was siding with China.

Japan's Minister to China declared in Nanking his government was as eager as the Chinese to avoid fresh complications.

Dawes Favors Proposal.

Paris, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Success for the League of Nations' labors to bring peace to Manchuria hung tonight on the decision of Japan.

The twelve neutral members of the league council adopted a peace program which already has been approved in principle by China and so lacks only Tokyo's consent before becoming unanimous. Charles G. Dawes, American observer, also has accepted the proposal in principle.

The central provision of the peace plan is the establishment of an international commission of inquiry.

The important negative feature of the program is that it fails to embody recognition of Japan's "right" to take military measures against bandits operating in Manchuria.

The draft resolution embodying the council's peace plan provides that the commission of inquiry may make in-

Anita Grew, Daughter Of U. S. Envoy, to Wed

Istanbul, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—American Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew today announced the engagement of their daughter, Anita, to Robert English, secretary of the American Legation at Bangkok, Siam. Miss Grew and English are both from Boston, Mass. They met here several years ago.

The wedding will probably be held at the American Embassy here within the next few months. The date is still indefinite. Miss Grew is a well-known sportswoman. She swam the full length of the Bosporus last summer.

Air Speed Marks Broken By Bayles and Wedell

Coast Flier Sets Record on Mexico-Vancouver Hop; Hawks Fails.

San Francisco, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—While James Wedell was breaking the record for an airplane flight from Agua Caliente, Lower California, to Vancouver, B. C., today, Capt. Frank Hawks, who has numerous airplane records to his credit, was forced down by dizziness in an attempt to set a mark for the opposite direction.

Wedell hopped off at Agua Caliente, refueled at Reno, Nev., and landed at the Vancouver airport just 6 hours and 40 minutes after his start. This was 1 hour and 8 minutes under the record time for the distance established several months ago by James Goodwin Hall, New York broker and aviator.

Wedell could have beaten that time by 55 minutes had he been sure

Land Plane's Supremacy Gained for U. S.; 284.72 M. P. H. Is Recorded.

Detroit, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Lowell R. Bayles, Springfield (Mass.) aviator, shook off misfortune which has ridden his plane as an uninvited passenger for weeks and zoomed over a 3-kilometer course at an average speed of 284.72 miles an hour today to bring the world speed record for land planes to the United States.

The record he displaced, subject to official confirmation, was 278.48 miles an hour, established by Warrant Officer Bonnet, of France, in 1924.

His average speed for four dashes over the gusty course apparently gave him an ample margin over the 4.97 miles per hour by which he was required to exceed the previous record to gain recognition.

Machado Seeks Peace With Enemies in Cuba

Reconciliation With Political Foes Object of Invitation to Opposition Chief, De la Torriente, Now Conferring With President in Havana.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Reconciliation of the political elements in Cuba opposed to the regime of President Machado is believed to follow the secret departure of Cosme de la Torriente, former Cuban Ambassador to the United States and leader of the opposition, from Washington for Havana.

Senor de la Torriente left Washington on Sunday night at the invitation of President Machado and arrived in Havana yesterday. He immediately dispatched the announcement of his arrival to his friends here and added hopefully that the "situation looked promising."

The news of Senor de la Torriente's departure for Havana was confirmed at his hotel where he has been staying since the abortive effort of his compatriots to overthrow the regime of Gen. Machado last summer.

It was reported here that Gen. Machado held a 45-minute conversation over the telephone with Ambassador Orestes Ferrara on Saturday. As a result of that conversation Ambassador Ferrara conveyed to Senor de la Torriente the desire of the president to confer with the leader of the opposition. Immediately following the invitation of President Machado, Senor de la Torriente left for Havana.

The distinguished Cuban statesman, who has lived quietly here since his arrival last summer, was provided with a "safe conduct" and all the necessary papers. He was also assured that he will be permitted to confer with the other leaders of the recent revolution, chief among them Senor Menocal, who has been imprisoned for the last four months.

The decisive change in the attitude of Gen. Machado toward the opposition has been caused chiefly by the financial situation of Cuba and also by his desire to retire from the Presidency which he has held uninterruptedly since 1922. On November 2, 1928, President Machado was reelected for another six-year term and he was inducted into office with considerable

WALKER BEGS ROLPH TO PARDON MOONEY

Asserts He Is Convinced of "Lifer's" Innocence; Agitators Seized.

San Francisco, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—With an earnestness seldom displayed, perhaps, in his own behalf, Mayor Walker of New York today appeared before his friend, Gov. Rolph of California, and for more than an hour pleaded with the governor to pardon Tom Mooney. The hearing continued for four hours. No decision is expected immediately. The result may not be known for months.

The mayor submitted that the man once sentenced to hang after conviction on a murder charge in connection with the bombing of a parade in San Francisco, July 22, 1916, is innocent and did not have a fair trial. Both Walker and Frank P. Walsh, who preceded him in a longer address, told the governor and his advisers that in their opinion the record in the 15-year-old case shows that Mooney did not have a fair trial and was convicted as the result of perjured testimony. Aaron Sapiro closed with an argument, summing up and stressing the legal aspect.

Near the close of his address, the New York Mayor took cognizance of widespread criticism which has followed his visit to California to seek executive clemency for the San Quentin prisoner. Several editorials have called him "impudent." He used the word in his address today.

Walker had pointed out to the governor that the sentencing judge, the nine living members of the jury, and today Charles M. Fickert, prosecutor of Mooney as district attorney in 1916, thought Mooney should be pardoned.

"If this is not a proper perfect case to present to your excellency for the exercise of the pardon power then counsel is at a loss to imagine," he said.

"It seems almost like trespassing to carry further. What remains? My duty is practically done, but I can not leave without a grateful public

Byrd's Aid Injured When Hit by Taxi

Lieut. G. O. Noville Hurt Seriously; Skull and Legs Fractured.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Lieut. George O. Noville, who was flight engineer and radio operator on the transatlantic flight of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, suffered serious injuries today when he was struck down by a taxicab at a Park avenue intersection.

Physicians said he had a fracture of the skull, and fractures in both legs. He was struck, police reported, when he attempted to cross Park avenue against the traffic lights. The taxi driver was released after being questioned.

For some time after he entered the hospital, Lieut. Noville was unconscious. When he regained consciousness he asked "What became of the plane? Did we crack up?"

Lieut. Noville is 41 years old and has been in the Navy since early youth. He was born in Cleveland.

Veteran's Wife to Seek Brookhart Senate Seat

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Dec. 1 (A.P.) Mrs. Donald MacRae, of Council Bluffs, former national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, today announced her intention to seek in 1932 the Democratic nomination for United States senator. The post is now held by Senator Smith W. Brookhart.

Mrs. MacRae told an Omaha newspaper she would formally announce her candidacy at a reception in her home Thursday evening. She was national president of the auxiliary last year. Her husband attained the rank of major in the World War.

HUNGER ARMY IS DUE ON SUNDAY; 14 HELD

Police Are Laying Plans to Deal With Marchers in Case of Disorders.

Preparations for the handling of 1,500 "hunger marchers," due here Sunday, are being made by the Metropolitan Police and Capitol Police, who are cautiously watching the courses of the four caravans of trucks as they converge upon the Capital.

Although Metropolitan Police Department officials are desirous that no disorder will occur, they are taking every precaution to be ready to squelch any disorderly outbreak. An order was sent out yesterday to precincts in the Second Inspection District to have all patrol wagons fully equipped with first-aid kits and tear gas bombs. The order was described by officials as "routine."

The fourteen "hunger marchers," who were arrested Friday at the White House, when they attempted to stage a demonstration, received the maximum penalty of six months in jail or $100 fine when arraigned in Police Court yesterday.

Inspector L. I. H. Edwards has told Herbert Benjamin, leader of the "hunger marchers," that so long as the marchers do not violate the law and stage no disorders they will be unmolested. Benjamin promised he would do all in his power to prevent any outbreak.

The main body of demonstrators is expected to reach the Capital Sunday or Monday. The Secret Service, which has been investigating the source of telegrams sent to the White House demanding food and lodging for the marchers, yesterday was awaiting further reports from operatives in various parts of the country. Secret Service officials have already declared communists responsible for the messages and branded the leaders of the demonstrators as members of that party.

A meeting of the Capitol police force has been called for today to plan for the handling whatever Communist

Senate Seat Won By Mrs. Caraway

Democratic Committee in Arkansas Nominates Her Unanimously.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway, of Jonesboro, widow of the late United States Senator T. H. Caraway, was nominated unanimously by the Democratic State central committee today to serve out his unexpired term ending in March, 1933. The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election.

Mrs. Caraway's name was the only one submitted, supporters of Frank Pace, Little Rock lawyer, not presenting his name after they had been defeated on three questions before the committee, one of which was for throwing the contest into a special primary. The special election for filling the Senate vacancy will be held January 12.

Mrs. Caraway's nomination represented a major political victory for Gov. Harvey Parnell, who threw all his strength behind her after appointing her to serve until the special election. He engaged in a dramatic battle with Mr. Pace, his former political friend, to give her the nomination.

Second Fall Off Bridge Fatal to Blind Bulldog

Natural Bridge, Va., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—His first tumble from Natural Bridge into the valley below did not kill the blind dog Boss, but the second one did.

Less than a month ago Boss, the blind white bulldog owned by a bridge attendant, missed his step and fell from the bridge, but came back up, none the worse.

He then left his master's home and was believed lost, only to return for another tumble that was fatal.

SPAIN SWEEPS PAST AWAY IN CONSTITUTION

Assembly Approves Text for Radical Reforms in Basic Law.

ADOPTION SET FRIDAY DESPITE OPPOSITION

Changes Free Church, Give Women Vote and Provide Liberal Divorce.

Madrid, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Spain's new Republican constitution, upsetting traditions of centuries and altering drastically the legal status of the church, women, divorce and education, was approved today by the national assembly.

Formal adoption of the country's basic code as a whole is expected Friday, when the assembly votes finally on a revised draft of the instrument.

Next will be the assembly's election of a president for the nation on December 8, it was officially announced. The new executive—probably Niceto Alcala Zamora, former provisional president—will take office the next day. Then the assembly will be ready to work on laws elaborating the constitution which calls Spain "a republic of workers of all classes in a regime of liberty and justice."

Remake Spain Plan.

The constitutional changes were part of the radical Republican and Socialist plan to "remake Spain from the ground up" after the overthrow of Alfonso XIII and the old monarchial regime.

The new fundamental code separates church and state, provides for expulsion of certain religious orders and rigid control over others. It makes divorce legal in Spain after centuries of antidivorce laws. It grants women the suffrage. It places education under the control of the state instead of the church.

It is not without opposition. The Catholic agrarian party and others of the extreme right already have begun a movement to revise the constitution, which was formulated by a Socialist-controlled assembly.

"We disapprove of the constitution," said Deputy Beunza, of the Catholic Agrarian group, "and expect to start a revision campaign as soon as the instrument is finally adopted and the government grants us the right to campaign."

Agrarian Reforms Expected.

Agrarian reforms are among the first supplementary bills the Socialists expect to rush through after the constitution is finally adopted. Others include a civil code, electoral laws and legislation designed to enforce the constitutional stipulation that "The dignity of labor" shall be recognized and small farmers protected.

The Catholic Agrarians interpret the agricultural reforms as an attack on the right of the landed class, and intend to offer strong opposition to any plan to confiscate and divide estates among small farmers.

The decision to elect a constitutional president to succeed Provisional President Manuel Azana, on December 8, was reached at a cabinet meeting. Former President Alcala Zamora also attended the meeting and it was understood that the Assembly members had agreed almost unanimously to vote for him for president.

Spanish feminists were especially happy tonight because they felt the Family Aid in 88 Cities Twice Last Year's Total

(Associated Press.)

Nearly $42,000,000 was spent in the first six months of this year for emergency relief to families in 88 big cities. The Children's Bureau yesterday reported the total as $41,779,000. It was bigger than the family aid bill for 100 cities—$39,000,000—for all of last year. A total of $20,891,000 was spent in the same 100 cities in 1929.

Sixty-six of the cities reported the sources of their funds, showing 70 per cent, or $23,340,000, came from local public taxes. In 75 cities the average from the public treasury last year was 72 per cent.

Job Secretary Dismisses Three Woodyard Foremen

Refusal to "Drive" Workers Cited by Ousted Trio; Inefficiency and Loafing Given for Discharge by Unemployment Executive.

The ax fell on three of the "employed unemployed" yesterday when the foreman in charge of the District woodyard, Washington's temporary haven for the jobless, were discharged by George J. Adams, jr., executive secretary of the District unemployment committee.

Mr. Adams said that the men were dismissed because "they were inefficient and loafing on the job." The ousted trio, however, declare Mr. Adams told them "they were not driving the men."

The discharged foremen are Ernest Moss, 3153 Mount Pleasant street northwest, brother of the late Judge McKenzie Moss, of the Court of Claims, and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; C. C. Webster, 818 Maryland avenue northwest, and A. T. McMeen, 917 Eighteenth street northwest. Until a week ago, when the woodyard was opened, all three men were unemployed.

Mr. Webster said that after receiving his dismissal he communicated by telephone with Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, whom he knows, he said, and the senator asked him to confer with him today.

Acting as spokesman for the trio, Mr Moss told a Post reporter that Mr Adams had instructed them "to drive the men like hell so they won't come back." Mr. Moss explained that the executive secretary had given this order so that the woodyard

NEW SENATOR

Underwood & Underwood.
W. WARREN BARBOUR.

BARBOUR IS NAMED TO MORROW'S POST

Wealthy Republican, Tariff Advocate, Is Selected by Gov. Larson.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—William Warren Barbour, wealthy manufacturer and tariff advocate whose boxing skill once won praise from James J. Corbett, was named United States senator today by Gov. Morgan F. Larson to succeed the late Dwight W. Morrow.

Barbour, an active Republican, is 43 years old, and a former Mayor of Rumson.

The announcement ended wide speculation which began 58 days ago with Mr. Morrow's death at his home in Englewood.

Until today Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, had been linked with Barbour in political gossip as a possible choice for the post.

Informed of his appointment and asked if he would enter the election next year, Mr. Barbour said, "The man who accepts the job should be willing to run in the Republican primary next year."

He is chairman of the finance committee of the Republican State committee and treasurer of the American Tariff League. His income is derived chiefly from the Linen Thread Co. of Paterson, of which he is president. This came from his father, the late Col. William A. Barbour, from whom he also inherited the powerful physique that won him recognition in his early twenties as the amateur heavyweight champion of the world.

At 17 he left college to enter his father's business. His ability was notable and his aggressiveness assured him success from the beginning. But highly developed as these qualities were they were not powerful enough to keep him from his second love—the squared circle.

He won heavyweight honors in the national tournament of the Amateur Athletic Union in Boston in 1910 and a newspaper clipping of the day called him a "sensation."

"In one year's time," said Gentleman Jim Corbett, "I could take that fellow and have him beat Jack Johnson. He has everything—youth, speed, strength, weight, power and a punch. I think he is a wonder."

Young Barbour was pleased, but there was business to be done at Paterson and he wasn't shirking the duties his father assigned to him. He did fight again, however, in January, 1911, knocking out the amateur champion of the Metropolitan district in New York City in less than 2 minutes.

But with all the promises of boxing glory held before him Barbour was firm. The thread business and ultimately a directorship in the Hanover Bank & Trust Co., of New York, claimed his entire time.

Eventually, too, politics beckoned, and in 1922 he made his debut as a councilman in his native town of Rumson. Later he was mayor, and made an unsuccessful race for State senator.

In 1928 he was a delegate to the Republican national convention at Kansas City and served as a member of the platform committee.

As treasurer of the Tariff League he appeared before the Senate lobby committee in January, 1930, to explain sources and usage of a fund raised to further interests of the protective tariff during the presidential

STEWART BEATS HIS G. O. P. FOE IN NEW JERSEY

Has Plurality of 1,800 in Race for Ackerman's House Seat.

DEMOCRATS CONTROL 219 PLACES TO 214

Winner Overturns District Normally Republican by 35,000.

Elizabeth City, N. J., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Overturning a normally Republican plurality of 35,000, Percy H. Stewart, Democrat and antiprohibitionist, was elected to Congress today from the Fifth Congressional District by a plurality of approximately 1,800. With only one of the 298 districts missing, the vote in the special election to fill the seat of the late Representative Ernest Ackerman, dry Republican, was Stewart, 31,372; Donald McLean, Republican, 29,538.

Stewart, who campaigned on a platform asking repudiation of the administration policies of President Hoover, becomes the 219th Democrat to hold a seat in the House of Representatives in the congressional session opening Monday.

He won in a campaign which paralleled in many respects the successful battle waged early this month by A. Harry Moore, Democratic governor-elect. Moore also asked repudiation of the national administration in winning election with an unprecedented plurality of 230,053 votes.

Repudiation Again Asked.

Moore carried the normally Republican Fifth District by approximately 11,000.

McLean, who, like Stewart indorsed a program calling for modification of the eighteenth amendment to permit light wines and beer had asked the Fifth District's voters to elect him as an indorsement of President Hoover and the national Republican party's program.

The voting was comparatively light, only about half as many persons exercising their balloting privileges as participated in the election last year in which Ackerman was sent to Washington for the seventh time with a plurality of about 35,000.

(Associated Press.)

The growing strength of Democrats in national affairs was augmented yesterday when they dipped into Republican territory for the second time in a fortnight and captured the Fifth New Jersey Congressional District.

The election of Stewart gave further assurance of Democratic organization of the House when Congress convenes Monday.

The new House line-up gives the Democrats 219 seats; Republicans, 214; Farmer-Laborites, 1. A vacancy in the First New Hampshire District will be filled at a special election January 5.

Victory in the usually Republican district was viewed by Representative Garner, of Texas, Democratic choice for Speaker, and other party leaders as a definite trend of public sentiment for the 1932 presidential elections.

President Hears Returns.

President Hoover stayed up late at the White House to receive the returns until it appeared certain the Republican candidate had lost.

Stewart won over McLean by a plurality of about 1,500. Ackerman was elected by a majority of 33,000 in 1930, indicating a turnover of nearly 35,000 votes in the election.

The House wet bloc also gained another member. Ackerman was a dry, while Stewart is opposed to prohibition.

A week ago the Democrats elected Richard M. Kleberg, of Corpus Christi, from the Fourteenth Texas District, which had been held for ten years by the late Representative Harry M. Wurzbach, a Republican.

The New Jersey congressional election is the last to be held before Congress convenes. Vacancies created by deaths between now and then could not be filled by special elections in time for successful candidates to participate in House organization.

COUZENS ASKS CURB ON NEW BANK LAWS

Senator Joins Defenders of Reserve System; Fights Credits Orgy.

(Associated Press.)

A new caution sign on legislative banking panaceas appeared on Capitol Hill yesterday in a warning by Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, against a "drunken orgy" on Federal credits expansion.

Senator Couzens, himself a successful business man with plenty of money to show for it, lined up with the Federal Reserve Banks and Senator Glass, of Virginia, Democratic spokesman on banking legislation, against any permanent changes in the Federal Reserve system.

Like Glass and some other financial experts, the Michigan senator is willing to consider emergency expedients to relieve the present situation, but he opposes any easing of restrictions on paper eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve Banks for an indefinite period.

Hoover Relief Plan.

In announing his natoinal credit pool, President Hoover proposed that some classes of paper which can not be rediscounted at the Federal Reserve Banks at present be made eligible for such treatment.

His purpose was to provide the smaller banks with a means of liquidating securities which can not be turned into cash conveniently or without loss.

"Because we happen to be sick," Senator Couzens cautioned, "we mustn't dope ourselves with a lot of credit narcotics."

Senator Couzens thought the President's plan for a Federal home mortgage banking system commanded careful consideration, but he was at odds with his colleague, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, on proposals for changing the regulations of the reserve system.

Liberalization Is Sought.

With the Senate's banking committee in recess studying new measures, Senator Vandenburg repeated yesterday his confidence that some liberalization of the reserve system would be agreed upon by Congress.

Meanwhile, the comprehensive measure planned by the Senate's special banking committee to curb the use of Federal facilities in speculation and to check chain banking was taking form.

It was evident this bill will be far-reaching and have considerable bearing on the whole national banking structure. Senator Glass hopes to have it ready for presentation to the Senate early in the session.

Senator Couzens, who is chairman of the interstate commerce committee, also expressed the view yesterday that further loans to the railroads was not the cure for their difficulties. He is studying that problem.

Couzens Urges Caution.

"We must be careful," he said, "or we will find ourselves in a worse position after the emergency has passed than we are now.

"The proposal of President Hoover for a system of home mortgage banks should receive careful consideration, but we must be cautious not to set up a duplication of the sound but expensive Federal Reserve System simply to meet an emergency which may disappear.

"In other words, the people and Congress must not get panicky and adopt nostrums which will be continued as barnacles upon our country. I think the Federal Reserve System should not be tampered with at all except for minor changes to improve confidence, but in no way to involve itself with capital investments."

Y. W. C. A. Plans Course In Music Appreciation

A course in musical education, entitled "Learning to Listen to Music," will open this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock in the fourth floor assembly of the Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets northwest, under the direction of Miss Mary Burnett, secretary of the music division. This is the second year that Miss Waugh has given this course at the Y. W. C. A. The course is open to all students and lovers of music.

Gasoline Hucksters Win Right to Sell on Street

The District Commissioners yesterday amended police regulations to permit gasoline venders to stop along streets up to 30 minutes for the purpose of making sales. These fuel hucksters will consequently be allowed the same privilege accorded other street venders.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride recommended the amendment after a hearing on a previous order, since withdrawn, barring gasoline venders from operating on the streets.

Man Held on Liquor Charge.

Two policemen, whose suspicions were aroused, last night arrested Andrew Caldwell, 30 years old, colored, of 132 Florida avenue northwest, as he was allegedly in the act of delivering six gallons of whisky to a house in the 1900 block of L street northwest. He was charged with illegal possession of liquor.

Auto Overturns on River's Brink, Driver Escapes Hurts

Auto Goes Through Barrier and Overturns After 10-Foot Plunge.

After crashing through a high barricade and hurtling over a 10-foot embankment last night, George Six, 37 years old, of 805 Rock Creek Church road northwest, narrowly escaped death when the automobile he was driving uprooted a huge tree and overturned less than 5 feet from the edge of the Eastern Branch at South Capitol and Q streets.

Six declared he was unfamiliar with that section of the city. He told police he drove his machine into a driveway of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co., mistaking it for a street. He had proceeded only a short distance, he said, when a high barricade suddenly loomed in front of his car.

He quickly applied his brakes, Six told police, but was unable to stop before he struck the fence. The car hurtled into space over a steep embankment, crashed into a tree, demolishing it, and turned over in a mire at the seawall of the Eastern Branch. Although the machine was completely wrecked, Six escaped with only a slight bruise over his right eye.

Neal Robrecht and John Jerman, night watchmen for the sand and gravel company, pulled him from the wreckage and summoned police. It was at first thought that the car had plunged into the river and all available emergency vehicles were called to the scene. A boat from the Harbor Precinct was dispatched and police summoned the rescue squad, an ambulance and four radio cars.

Six was not held.

British, Tariff Backed, Can Sing, 'No Bananas!'

By JOHN J. DALY

By JOHN J. DALY.

A BRITISH tariff on certain agricultural products, to keep vegetables, fruits and flowers from competition with the native crop, has been authorized by the House of Commons.

As the freighters pull into Tillsbury Docks the British commission merchants, led by John Bull, will stand on the wharves and sing:

Yes, we'll have no bananas,
There's a ban on bananas today.
We don't want tomatoes,
Or Irish potatoes,
Or Swedish brocoli. Hey, hey!
We have our old-fashioned gardens
And so, we beg your pardons,
But we will have no bananas,
For we ban all bananas today.

• • • •

IN true Gilbert and Sullivan style, this is the signal for the captains to lead their crews down the gang-planks, singing as they embark:

What? You want no bananas
When we've brought you bananas?
Oh, say!
Why put an embargo
On all of our cargo
Since we bring you no scallions or hay?
And from the Isles of Canaries
We bring no Christmas berries,
But, Yes, we've brought you bananas
And we'd like our bananas to stay.

WHILE the commission merchants would, ordinarily, do business with the seafaring gentlemen, as loyal Britishers the merchants must obey the edict of the House of Commons. Aside from the laudable object of protecting the small agricultural patches of their own, their native land, the tradesmen know there can be no sale for commodities bearing such high tariff duties. So, the Englishmen chase the invading captains and their crews up the gangplanks, shouting:

You can take your bananas
And go sailing the high seas away,
You can take them to Scotland,
Or we don't care what land
While singing "The Road to Mandalay."
You might think this fadish,
Britishers raising radish,
But you just take your bananas,
And go sell to the old U. S. A.

Naturally, there is a last-minute parley. The captains lean over the rails and argue. The crews, rushing to the holds, return with posies and violets, roses and chrysanthemums and toss them, as nosegays, over the sides of the ships. Sweet-scented forget-me-nots and Chinese lilies land at the feet of the merchants, but the British remain adamant and true to the tariff. Defeated, the ships shove off, the captains heartbroken because they can not even "Say it with Flowers."

Bus Controversy Given Committee

Park Road Line Dispute Is Passed to Van Duzer's Group by Commission.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday "passed the buck" in the Park road bus line controversy to the traffic coordinating committee, of which Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer is chairman. The divers community factions involved have been unable to reach an agreement as the commission had hoped.

An order of the utilities body changing the route from Kenyon to Lamont street, has been held in abeyance because of the protests of the Lamont street residents. The Lamont street route was proposed by residents of Kenyon and Irving streets after a public hearing.

The chief objection of the residents to the bus line is that the operating equipment makes so much noise as it climbs a grade on Kenyon street. Lamont street is said to have a slighter grade.

Contract Voiding Awaiting Evidence

Only 1 Affidavit Received Alleging That Rose Firm Broke Wage Law.

The question of cancellation of a contract awarded to the W. P. Rose Co., of Greensboro, N. C., for alleged violation of the prevailing wage scale law in the construction of the Woodridge School will depend entirely upon whether evidence can be procured to prove the alleged violation.

This was indicated yesterday by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride. If the charges filed against the construction company by the Washington Building Trades Council are substantiated, Mr. Bride said, there is nothing left for the Commissioners to do but cancel the contract.

So far, the District officials have received only the affidavit of one workman who was dismissed by the Rose ccompany. However, Charles E. Young, secretary of the Trades Council, has sent another affidavit complaining of similar violations by the same company.

The Department of Labor, Mr. Young said, has manifested a keen interest in the case. It is likely, he said, that a test case may be made of the controversy to determine whether the prevailing wage scale law may be violated by contractors.

BINGHAM WILL PUSH LIQUOR REFERENDUM

Connecticut Senator Draws Resolution Providing for Vote on Prohibition.

(Associated Press.)

The persistent prohibition problem yesterday moved into line with others waiting for congressional doors to open as a resolution for a national referendum on the subject was drafted.

Prepared by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, who has long thought there was little good in the liquor laws, it came just as wets and drys were having an exchange of statements on the subject.

The latest of countless wordy wars over the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act was precipitated by an announcement from the women's organization for national prohibition reform that 149 members of Congress favored a popular vote on repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Claim Poll Means Nothing.

In quickly forthcoming rebuttals, the drys said in effect that the poll meant nothing, or if it had significance it showed that the amendment and the Volstead act were here to stay.

Dry leaders in Congress also showed no concern. Although there was no open comment their feeling has been for some time that economic problems at the coming session will keep prohibition out of debate most of the time.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, said recently that he did not look for action on prohibition.

Senator Bingham and some other senators, as well as a determined group in the House, see the situation differently. The Connecticut senator wants a vote as soon as possible and said he would seek one "in every way possible under the Senate rules."

House Wets Are Hopeful.

House wets are hoping that liberalization of their rigid rules will enable them to get the question up in such a fashion that every member will have to commit himself one way or the other before next year's election.

Three dry comments yesterday all called attention to the fact that the 149 were not enough to send the question to the people.

The national prohibition board of strategy said Mrs. Charles Sabin, national chairman of the women's anti-prohibition organization, "reports less than one-third of the members willing to vote for a referendum and not all of these favor repeal or modification."

What was termed the "astonishingly small number" for a referendum was stressed in a statement by Deets Picket, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

Doubts Sufficiency of Vote.

Calling the poll another of those "wet roll calls," F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-saloon League, said nothing in it "indicates that the wet organizations will be able to secure the necessary two-thirds wet vote to take the first legislative step toward repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

Senator Bingham's resolution calls for conventions in each State, composed of delegates elected by a majority vote of the electors. The delegates would vote only on repeal.

In the event of repeal, the States would regulate liquor problems within their boundaries and the Government would have control of interstate and foreign commerce.

Dry Administrator Quits After Inquiry

Seattle Man Will Succeed John F. Vivian in Denver.

Denver, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The resignation of John F. Vivian, Federal prohibition administrator for Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, effective December 31, was announced today by Amos W. W. Woodcock, Federal prohibition director.

Woodcock came here yesterday from Washington to conduct an investigation of Vivian's office after Henry Dierks, a prohibition agent, had been suspended in connection with the death of Melford G. Smith, a youth of Englewood, Denver suburb. Smith died of injuries suffered in a scuffle with Dierks over the possession of three ounces of wine.

Vivian will be succeeded by Carl Jackson, of Seattle, present administrator for the twelfth prohibition district. Jackson's assistant, Maurice Smith, will become administrator at Seattle.

cratic national convention adopt a resubmission plank in its next platform, the number would take a tremendous bound.

In such a case the Southern and Western dry Democrats would then be pledged to vote for a resubmission resolution, although left free to go out and fight repeal afterward.

What the wets on Capitol Hill are really out to do, however, is to place all members on record before the 1932 elections.

The Republicans are expected to wind up their debate on liberalization of the rules today. They will meet again Monday night, after the House has convened. By that time they will know whether Jack Garner, of Texas, or Mr. Snell is to be the Speaker.

If Garner is elected, as seems likely, the Republicans will decide whether Mr. Snell or Representative John Q. Tilson shall be the Republican floor leader. All indications point to the selection of Mr. Snell.

FIVE LATIN NATIONS IN BANKING PARLEY

Lima Conclave Is Expected to Seek to Interest U. S. Reserve System.

Lima, Peru, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Banking interests of five South American countries met informally here today to begin search for a way out of their financial difficulties.

The conference will open formally tomorrow with delegates from the central banks of Peru, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador and Bolivia in attendance.

Efforts to interest the Federal Reserve System of the United States in South American finances are expected to be made. Some of the delegates indicated they would ask the United States for financial help, possibly through some rediscount plan which would permit South American banks to obtain funds from the Federal Reserve System.

Manuel Augusto Olaechea, chairman of the Bank of Peru, is expected to preside over the conference.

2 RECEIVERS NAMED TO OPERATE WABASH

Tie Company's Claim Forces Court Action; Railway's Treasury Depleted.

St. Louis, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Walter S. Franklin, president, and Frank C. Nicodemus, Jr., assistant general counsel, were named corecelvers for the Wabash Railway in Federal District Court here late today by Judge C. B. Davis as petitioned for by a general creditor and agreed to by the railroad.

The plaintiff is the T. J. Moss Tie Co., of St. Louis, with a claim of $49,651.95 for ties. In joining in the petition the railroad admitted it was without funds to pay about $4,000,000 in ordinary operating bills.

Fred E. Williams, attorney for the tie company, filed the petition with the court and was accompanied by Nat S. Brown, vice president and general solicitor for the Wabash. The petition stated the railroad has $150,947,300 in bonds outstanding.

Both Sides Urge Franklin.

Counsel for the Wabash and the tie company joined in recommending the appointment of Mr. Franklin, who became president of the Wabash a month ago, and Mr. Nicodemus as corecelvers. Mr. Franklin, who came here from an Eastern position with the Pennsylvania Railroad, represents the Pennsylvania's interest in the Wabash. The Pennsylvania indirectly holds 48.8 per cent of the Wabash stock.

There is no charge of mismanagement of the affairs of the Wabash, Judge Davis was told by Mr. Williams, who is a former judge of the Missouri Supreme Court.

Mr. Williams suggested the possibility of foreclosure of the mortgage securing the bonded indebtedness of $150,947,300, in case a receivership was not ordered.

The Wabash did $11,290,000 less business for the year ended October 31, Mr. Williams said, than in the preceding year. It has assets exceeding its liabilities by more than $6,000,000 "at fair value," he added. The railroad, with headquarters here, was described as a system of 2,237 miles, extending from St. Louis to Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Kansas City, Des Mones, Iowa, and Omaha, Nebr.

The answer filed by the Wabash admitted all allegations in the plaintiff's petition and joined in the prayer for appointment of a receiver, or receivers for the preservation of the assets of the stockholders and bondholders, and for preservation of the unity of the system.

Incorporated in 1915.

The present Wabash Railway Co. was incorporated October 22, 1915, as successor to the Wabash Railroad Co., which was sold under foreclosure. The oldest portion was known as the Northern Cross Railroad and was chartered about 1837 to run from Quincy, Ill., to the Indiana State line. In 1925 the company acquired control of the Ann Arbor Railroad Co., and in 1929, control of the Lake Erie & Fort Wayne Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Co., a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., owned $36,290,000 common and $31,290,000 preferred stock of the Wabash capital stock on January 1, 1929. In 1929 the Wabash filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington a proposed unification plan with 25 other lines.

Pennsylvania Refuses Aid.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, revealed tonight his company had declined to render financial assistance to the Wabash Railway Co., which went into the hands of receivers in St. Louis today.

In a formal statement, Mr. Atterbury said Pennsylvania officials deplored "the necessity of any railroad receivership," but in view of its large investment in the Wabash Railway Co., the Pennsylvania feels that it should not add to the investment it has already made.

The Pennsylvania had considered an extension of funds to protect the Wabash against receivership, Mr. Atterbury said, but decided that for the present "the interests of the property and of the investment the Pennsylvania has made in it will be best protected through a receivership under the control of the courts."

SENATE ROW LOOMS ON BANKHEAD'S SEAT

Hastings Planning to Fight Job for Alabamian Who Defeated Heflin.

(Associated Press.)

Another battle over a Senate seat—this time between Alabama's picturesque former senator, Thomas J. Heflin, and John H. Bankhead, the regular Democrat who defeated him for reelection—is impending.

Senate leaders were lining up their forces yesterday on information that Chairman Hastings, of the elections subcommittee charged with hearing the contest, was preparing a report recommending that Bankhead be denied his seat.

Hastings' report must be accepted by this subcommittee and the full committee before reaching the Senate. A majority of the subcommittee are reported to favor it.

The report cites several hundred cases of alleged irregularities in the Alabama election a year ago which Bankhead won by nearly 50,000 votes.

Denial of a seat to Bankhead would not necessarily mean that Heflin would be seated. More likely, in view of the disparity of votes, even in the committee's recount, the seat would be declared vacant.

Hastings' committee has made a complete recount of the votes cast in the contested election, with the exception of those in two counties in which the ballots were destroyed.

This recount showed little material change in the figures announced following the election. The committee's agents totaled 134,000 votes for Bankhead and 89,038 for Heflin, as compared with the official figures of 144,586 and 96,811.

If the case should reach the Senate floor it would be the first contest over the seat of a Democrat for many years.

The only senators denied seats in the Senate in recent years, Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, and William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, were both Republicans.

Another Democratic senator's seat is now being contested before the same committee, however. George M. Pritchard, Republican candidate from North Carolina in the election a year ago, has contested the victory of Josiah Bailey, his Democratic opponent.

Citizens' Group Favors Zone Rates for Taxis

The Cleveland Park Citizens Association held a short business meeting last night at the Masonic Hall at Wisconsin avenue and Woodley place.

The association went on record as favoring zones rather than meters for taxicabs. It also opposed giving outsiders positions in the District government.

Fort Eustis Is Designated To Receive U. S. Prisoners

Virginia Army Post Will Accommodate 600 Federal Convicts to Be Assigned Chiefly From Atlanta and Chillicothe, Ohio, Institutions.

Following a policy formulated last year by the Government and already placed in practice at one military post the Department of Justice yesterday announced plans for establishment of a correctional institution for Federal prisoners at Fort Eustis, Va.

Plans call for accommodation of 600 Federal prisoners, sent by the Prison Bureau of the Department of Justice mainly from the Atlanta Penitentiary and the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio. A similar system has been instituted at Fort George G. Meade.

Selection of men for the Fort Eustis project will be based on trustworthiness, character, type of offense committed and physical condition, according to the Department of Justice announcement.

No prisoner will be transferred who has committed a major crime of violence, uses habit-forming narcotic drugs, is incorrigible or thought to be dangerous.

The men will be employed in agricultural pursuits, reclaiming the land and reforestration work. They will salvage some of the surplus Government property in storage at Fort Eustis. Joseph Sanford, formerly chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court of the District, will be in charge.

The project is in furtherance of advanced ideas of penologists that from 30 to 50 per cent of the men in prisons need not be kept behind high walls.

Guarantee of Stardom For Actress Is Told

Los Angeles, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Edwin Carewe, film director, guaranteed Dolores Del Rio, film actress, stardom within one year after he signed her for films, G. R. Lessing, Los Angeles attorney, said on a witness stand today in his suit against the Mexican actress for $31,000 legal fees.

Lessing said he drew up the first contract between the two, which stipulated stardom in a year, and later was employed to straighten out difficulties between Carewe and Jaime Del Rio, the actress' husband, who died several years ago, and also as an interpreter for the Del Rios who at that time could not speak fluent English.

Decision Awaited On Cannon Appeal

Justice Proctor Will Rule on Whether He Must Go on Trial.

(Associated Press.)

On Justice James Proctor, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, rests the duty of making the first ruling on whether Bishop James Cannon, jr., shall stand trial in criminal court.

After more than five hours argument, the slim, 48-year-old jurist last night took under advisement the Southern Methodist churchman's demurrer to an indictment charging willful violation of the Federal corrupt practices law in the 1928 presidential campaign.

The demurrer contends the law is unconstitutional in attempting to regulate the selection of presidential electors who it claims are State, not Federal, officials. If Justice Proctor sustains the demurrer, the Government has the right to appeal. If he denies it, the trial must proceed. The justice declined to say when a ruling might be expected. Bishop Cannon himself listened to the argument.

Faults in Akron To Aid New Ship

Flaws Will Be Eliminated in Construction of Sister Craft.

(Associated Press.)

Lessons learned in construction of the world's biggest airship will be interpreted this winter by the House naval affairs committee to determine what changes should be made in the Akron's sister ship.

Representatives Vinson, of Georgia, who will be committee chairman if Democrats organize, and Britten, of Illinois, who headed it last session, have agreed the faults in the Akron should be corrected in the new craft, now called the ZRS-5.

The Akron is from 20,000 to 22,000 pounds overweight and flies four miles an hour slower than had been expected. Representative McClintic (Democrat), Oklahoma, said yesterday he has heard some inferior material was used on it.

M'ARTHUR REPORTS ARMY SHY OF FUNDS

Tells Hurley in Review That Reserves Are Under Level Set by Congress.

(Associated Press.)

Lack of sufficient appropriations was blamed yesterday by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Army chief of staff, for depletion of the reserve forces "far below" the level set by Congress.

In his annual report to Secretary Hurley, the chief of staff said maintenance of this level called for a force of two field armies, or 1,000,000 men. He also said the Army was becoming deficient in munition reserves.

Reviewing the general staff's work in shaping policy, the general said advances toward mechanization of the Army were changes of "considerable eventual import."

"Every part of the Army will adopt mechanization—and motorization—as far as is practicable and desirable," he said. "To the greatest extent possible machines will be used to increase the mobility, security and striking power of every ground arm but no separate corps will be established."

The Army's strength was said to have remained at an almost constant figure for several years of 12,000 officers and 118,750 enlisted men. MacArthur said subnormal economic conditions had brought a decrease recently in voluntary separations from the service.

The chief of staff deplored the quartering of Federal prisoners on military reservations, saying that if it continued uncorrected it would "soon be reflected in a deteriorating morale in the units affected."

Children Should Be Encouraged to Bring Friends to Homes, He Says.

Parents were advised to encourage their children to bring friends into their homes, in a talk last night by Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen Kramer, before the Wheatley Parent-Teacher Association, in the Wheatley School.

First prize for membership last night was awarded to Miss Elizabeth McAuliffe, fourth grade, and second prize, Mrs. H. Lichtman, second grade. Mrs. Walter C. Jones reported on distribution of free milk and the student aid fund. Reports were made by Mrs. K. Eaton, Miss Margaret Grubb, Mrs. Albert Duerr and Mrs. Nina Russell.

POWER COMMISSION ASKS WIDER SCOPE

Extension of Jurisdiction Is Held as Necessary to Regulate Utilities.

(Associated Press.)

The power commission believes effective regulation of operating electric companies may depend upon extension of its jurisdiction.

This view, set forth in the commission's annual report to Congress, was predicated on the fact that many projects now within the jurisdiction of the commission are controlled by holding companies outside the sphere of the commission's power.

"It has been for the purpose of furnishing much needed information," the report said, "that the Federal power commission has undertaken a study, through specially experienced assistants, of the economic structure of the power industry as shown in the existing relations between holding companies and their operating subsidiaries."

The report added that "the interest of the commission in the subject of holding companies is a natural one."

While devoting most of its report to the condition and growth of the electric industry, the commission informed Congress that the Supreme Court had held transmission of electric energy in wholesale quantities was interstate commerce, but that no effort had been made by the Government to control it.

"Inasmuch as Congress has not occupied the field," the report said, "and the States are unable to occupy it, there is at present an area which is wholly uncontrolled."

Among the most necessary needs of the commission in its handling of power licenses, the report said, is a uniform method of accounting and cost keeping.

If the water resources of the country are going to be developed to the best interests of the people, the commission added, cooperation in spirit and practice between State and Federal agencies is a prime necessity.

Two Young Women Held in Rum Plot

Total of Arrests in Drive to Break Up Ring Rises to Fourteen.

Two young women were arrested yesterday by members of the Headquarters Vice Squad and a United States marshal and charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

The two arrested, Bernice Diane Zimberg, 22 years old, of 723 Eighth street southeast, and Addie Mae Skari, 19 years old, of 710 Sixth street southwest, were released on $2,000 and $1,500 bonds, respectively. This brings the total number of recent arrests to fourteen in the police drive to break up an alleged liquor ring that has been operating here since January, 1929.

All will probably face the next grand jury with 21 other members that were indicted by the grand jury of last spring and their indictments annulled when a member of the jury was found to be ineligible to serve.

GERMAN CUSTOMS BOOST SANCTIONED

Emergency Decree Signed by Von Hindenburg Not to Hurt U. S. Trade.

Berlin, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—An emergency decree giving the government virtually unrestricted powers to raise customs duties was signed today by President Paul von Hindenburg.

The government's new powers, which are to be evoked in the event of "stringent economic necessity," include the authority to boost tariffs to a prohibitory level, but they are not expected to have much effect on American exports to Germany.

Commercial commenators pointed out that the bulk of imports from the United States are raw materials or semimanufactured goods necessary to Germany's industrial life.

The new decree, one of the shortest issued since Chancellor Bruening began governing Germany by presidential edict, reads:

The government is given power during the recess of Reichstag in the event of stringent economic necessity, (1) to change existing import duties; (2) to effect a system of temporary bilateral treaties with foreign countries."

The reference to bilateral treaties was interpreted by some observers as designed to enable Germany to negotiate tariff questions with Great Britain, which now is experimenting with protection.

Some lines of manufactured goods, representing less than 20 per cent of American exports to Germany, might be affected by new regulations.

American business circles apparently were little concerned. It was pointed out that the general European trend is to give government's control over imports in order to build favorable balances without appreciative widening of export markets.

The government's new powers exist until February 23, when the Reichstag recess ends.

SPAIN LIBERALIZES NEW CONSTITUTION

new constitution granted their cause complete victory. It provides for divorce by mutual consent, or when either party shows "just cause," and also for equal suffrage.

Some deputies, however, saw the possibility of difficulty for the Republican regime in the women's ranks. Most Spanish women, they said, were devoutly Catholic, and the right to vote would make them potentially an important element in right-wing politics.

The suffrage question was settled finally today when the Assembly defeated by a margin of four votes an amendment which would have limited the scope of the "votes for women" article.

Clara Campoamor, one of the two women deputies, led the battle on behalf of the "equal rights" provision, debating sturdily until she had won over enough fellow members to assure victory.

"With the constitution," she said, "Spanish women begin a new life."

HUNGER MARCHERS EXPECTED HERE SUNDAY; 14 SENTENCED

demonstrators may appear there. Joseph Rogers, sergeant at arms of the House, David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, and David Barry, sergeant at arms of the Senate, will meet with the police force.

Although the much advertised advance of the Communists on the National Capital is not due for several days, policemen have been stationed at various unusual spots throughout the Capitol for the last several days. Some have been stationed on stairways, others in little noticed side corridors, and in various other places throughout the building.

The fourteen who were arrested Friday were convicted on a charge of parading and holding a public meeting on the grounds of the United States, after a three-hour trial before Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

The group included one woman and five Negro men. Many of the group had not been able to raise bond last night and were being held at the District Jail.

After sentence was passed, Charles E. Ford, defense attorney, immediately filed notice of appeal and bond was fixed at $500.

Ford based his plea to the court on the premise that only acknowledged leaders of the group should be held responsible for parading without a permit. Albert Daniels, 24 years old, of West Springfield, N. Y., and Bill Phillipps, 19 years old, of New York, testified they led the march and made no application for a permit. They said their purpose was to present President Hoover a petition requesting food, clothing and shelter for the 1,500 demonstrators now on their way to Washington.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for President in 1928, issued today a statement outlining the demands which the self-styled "hunger marchers," now en route to Washington, plan to lay before Congress next Monday.

Foster denied recently charges that the demonstration was organized by the Communist party. He said the Department of Justice was "trying to make it look like a conspiracy in an effort to stir up an attack against the marchers."

"The Communist party," said Foster, "is supporting this demonstration as it supports every struggle of the worker. The demonstration, however, is backed by the unemployed council, a nonpartisan organization of workers. Other workers' organizations also participate."

campaign of 1928. The linen thread company had donated $2,000 to the campaign.

(Associated Press.)

Senate Republican leaders yesterday expressed pleasure at the selection of W. Warren Barbour, of Rumson, N. J., to succeed the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow.

Barbour's selection by Gov. Larson assures the Republicans of a majority in the Senate. The line-up stands: Republicans, 48; Democrats, 47; Farmer-Labor, 1.

Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana, said he was gratified by the choice.

"I know Mr. Barbour well," Watson said, "and am sure he will make a strong charcater in the Senate."

Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, said he was delighted to learn of the appointment.

Members of the New Jersey delegation in Congress know the new senator well. Those in Washington yesterday commended the governor's choice.

MEXICO-VANCOUVER PLANE MARK IS SET

it was Vancouver Airport he saw. He could not believe he had flown the approximately 1,200 miles from the Mexican resort city in less than six hours, and flew 100 miles on up the British Columbia coast and back before he was certain of his location.

While Wedell was resting from his fatiguing flight which, along with snowstorms, caused him to abandon an attempt to complete the round trip, Hawks was in a little hotel in Granada, Calif., near the Oregon border.

While flying from Vancouver to Agua Caliente, he became dizzy near Granada and landed in an open field. He was not hurt and his plane was not damaged. Dr. Victor Hart, of Yreka, Calif., said Hawks could fly again tomorrow if he desired.

Wedell ordered his plane put away at Vancouver for the night and said he would hop back tomorrow.

Hawks, when he stopped at Portland for gasoline, said the wind had slowed him down and also had made the trip cold.

Among the messages which greeted Wedell when he landed was a penciled note from Hawks, reading:

"Best of luck, Jimmie. See you in Mexico tonight."

Wedell said he had continued across the Strait of Georgia and approached the mountainous country on Vancouver Island before he realized he had passed Vancouver and turned back. His oil-spattered machine bore signs of its encounter with the elements and Wedell was tired as he stepped from the ship.

Three Relief Plans Denounced by Reed

Insurance Measures to Meet His Opposition, Says Pennsylvanian.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Three Government insurances to be introduced at the coming Congress are burdens that no country can endure, Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, declared in a speech here today. He enumerated them as follows:

"At the next meeting of Congress they will try to impose three insurances—rain insurance, by which I mean the Government helping communities stricken by drought or flood; farm relief, and unemployment insurance.

"I will fight against them all because no government on earth can take the burden of these three insurances and endure."

As a substitute for the proposal to tax the rich, Reed favors a sales tax, which would be "one-half of 1 per cent of every man's income after the necessities of life such as food, clothing and rent, have been deducted."

The attempts all have been made at the Wayne County Airport.

Bayles made his record in a Gee Bee monoplane driven by a supercharged wasp engine that delivered nearly 800 horsepower. The flight was under the sponsorship of the Springfield Air Race Association.

Ray Cooper, an official observer for the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, was one of the timers The other was Richard A. Leavell.

The timers' records and photographs of the plane swooping over the Pylons will be sent to Paris for verification by the federation. Until that is given, Bayles will not receive recognition as the record holder.

Today's flight was made with the wind across the course, its velocity recorded as from 11 to 14 miles an hour.

WAR-TIME WORKER IN CAPITAL SUICIDE

Miss Marjorie Childs' Body Is Found in Woods Near Pennsylvania Town.

Fear she was losing her mind yesterday drove Miss Marjorie Childs, former Washington Red Cross worker, to end her life by inhaling monoxide gas fumes in the woods near Harleysville, Pa.

Miss Childs, home service secretary of the Red Cross at Norristown, Pa., stationed in Washington during the war, parked her automobile in the wooded plot and inhaled the fumes from its exhaust, according to Associated Press dispatches from Norristown.

A note found in her handbag within the car, read in part:

"For months, ever since I've realized that I'm losing my mind and had become a weak-minded person, I have been trying to do this."

According to the Associated Press her family said she had been "upset nervously for the last six months and had seemed unable to adjust herself to her surroundings."

Left Home Sunday.

Miss Childs, who was 38, disappeared from her home Sunday. Before leaving in her automobile, she said she planned to visit friends.

Beside her handbag on the front seat of the car was found a bottle which had contained poison. No trace of poison was found in her stomach, although her note disclosed she had futilely attempted that method of death.

The body was found near Harleysville, about seventeen miles from Norristown, by 16-year-old Joseph Clemmer, when he went to the woods to attend to his trap line. State police and Coroner George R. Huff, of Lansdale, went immediately to the scene.

Bryn Mawr Graduate.

The coroner said Miss Childs had been dead since Sunday. He said she died from "carbon monoxide poisoning—while temporarily deranged she committed suicide."

The body lay under the rear of the blue sedan in which she had disappeared. She had backed it 75 feet into the woods off a seldom-used road.

A daughter of Mrs. Alice Childs and the late Louis M. Childs, of Norristown, she was graduated from Bryn Mawr College in 1916 and was trained in Red Cross work in Washington.

Besides her mother she is survived by a sister, Mrs. John K. Gordon, of Chambersburg, Pa., and a brother, Louis M. Childs, Norristown, Pa., attorney.

U. S. FREES 37 MEN SEIZED ABOARD TUG

Treasury Agents Fail to Find Evidence to Hold Higgins and Companions.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Having amused themselves by peppering visitors with eggs and potatoes and later playing checkers, smoking and just talking, Vannie Higgins, Brooklyn beer runner, and 36 companions were released today, 15 hours after being captured at sea by Treasury Department agents.

They were found on the sea-going tug Ohio when the agents boarded it last midnight, frankly admitting they had hoped to find it well loaded with liquor.

No charge was made against the men, who were ordered released after George M. Brewer, assistant solicitor of the port, had satisfied himself the boat was owned by Joseph O'Boyle, one of those taken from the Ohio. Custom officials planned, however, to hold the vessel temporarily.

Police Launch Blamed.

A police launch, which for 20 minutes played its searchlights on the agents' speedboat, a former rum-runner used as a decoy in searching for liquor-running craft, was blamed by agents for part of their lack of success in finding any evidence upon which to hold the men.

The agents said the policemen might have mistaken their speedboat for a suspicious craft, but asserted the length of time they kept their searchlight on the boat gave the 37 men on the tug Ohio time to discard any weapons or other cargo upon which charges might have been based.

The bombardment of photographers and others who closed about them occurred when the men were waiting transfer from Clifton, Staten Island, to the barge office this morning. The prisoners were said to have stored the ammunition up when they came ashore in anticipation of just such an emergency.

Notorious Gangster Taken.

One of the men with Higgins, described by police as one of New York's most notorious gangsters, was his lieutenant, Jimmy Duffy. Another, named Dalton, was thought at first to be a former chauffeur for Jack "Legs" Diamond, Catskills gangster and beer baron. Later, customs officials decided he was another Dalton.

Most of the others were pipefitters, mechanics and riggers or rigger helpers, who, the agents said, could be used handily in stowing away cargoes.

Doomed Gridiron Player Still Battling for Life

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—John M. Boulware, his back broken in a football game Sunday afternoon, tonight still clung to the slender thread of life. Physicians held out no hope for his recovery.

Although young Boulware withstood an emergency operation performed by a Richmond physician, the lower part of his body was still paralyzed.

WOODYARD FOREMEN AGAIN JOINS JOBLESS

would not get overcrowded, thus giving other unemployed men an opportunity to work there.

The three foremen were summoned to the District building yesterday morning after they had reported for work at the woodyard. They were handed their dismissal slips by an attendant at the office of the unemployment committee.

Mr. Adams said that the three foremen had not been fulfilling their duties; that they were loafing and spending their time talking among themselves and were not able to make the men do a normal amount of work.

Mr Webster, according to Mr. Adams, was supposed to guard the gate so that "Communists and other hangers around would not interfere with the work." Instead of performing this duty, Mr. Webster was devoting his time to talking with the other two foremen, according to Mr. Adams.

"We want men who will do real work for two or three hours," said Mr. Adams. "The woodyard is not a place to loaf, and this applies to foremen as well as the men who are working in the yard. Anything that encourages loafing can not be tolerated."

Mr. Adams said that he had already employed three other foremen to replace the three who were fired.

Mr. Moss declared that there were only eight saws and ten axes for 60 men to work with and that he was doing his best to keep them busy. "Some of the men told me they hadn't had anything to eat," he added. "Do you think I had the heart to 'drive' men like that?"

A considerable falling off in the number of men at the woodyard was noted yesterday. There were fewer than 100. On previous days there have been as many as 300.

This particular session is being held under the general topic of "Mineral Taxation." Other speakers on the program include Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Arthur A. Ballentine and James A. MRS. BOY-ED GETS CITIZENSHIP AGAIN

Woman Who Waited Through War to Wed German Wins U. S. Standing Anew.

(Associated Press.)

An American woman who waited throughout the World War to marry her German sweetheart yesterday regained her United States citizenship.

She is Mrs. Virginia Grace Mackay-Smith Boy-Ed, widow of Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, German naval officer whose name in war times was linked with spying and sabotage.

She took advantage of the recently enacted cable act to regain her citizenship after returning to America only three months ago.

With Turk and Italian, Greek and German, she, waited her turn in naturalization court a slender patrician figure in rich black coat, wavy blonde hair bared—for no one swears allegiance wearing a hat.

Asked the customary questions about whether she was a believer in American institutions, her witness, Mrs. Maria Stevens Hicks, emphatically answered, "Of course, she is."

In her debutante days Virginia Mackay-Smith, daughter of the rector of fashionable St. John's Church, was one of Washington's popular belles.

Betrothed to Capt. Boy-Ed, then attached to the German Embassy, she was prevented from marrying him when the State Department requested his recall in 1915. A cable from his chief granting permission for the marriage was intercepted by the secret service.

But she remained true to her German sweetheart throughout the World War and in 1921 went alone to Germany to marry him. Her friends say she has never swerved from her firm belief in her choice.

They had one child, Vaida, who returned here with her mother following Capt. Boy-Ed's death in September of last year.

5 Big Companies Slash Tire Prices

Cost Cut to New All-Time Low; Inner Tubes Also Reduced.

Akron, Ohio, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Five large auto tire companies announced price reductions today to the lowest levels in their history. They were F. Goodrich Co., Seiberling Rubber the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., B. Co., Mohawk Tire & Rubber Co. and the Master Tire & Rubber Co.

The reductions, from 5 to 15 per cent, will affect "standard" grades of tires, but not the "second" and "de luxe" lines. Inner tubes also will be reduced 15 per cent.

Similar cuts have been made by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and the Lee Rubber & Tire Co.

Officials of the General and India tire and rubber companies refused to confirm that they also have met the lower prices, but dealers said they had.

Receivership Motion In Insull Case Dropped

Chicago, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—An "emergency" motion for a receivership of Insull Utilities Investments, Inc., was withdrawn today by counsel for a minority stockholder with the cryptic statement that "recent developments which I can not disclose" caused the withdrawal.

The original bill of complaint still stands. It asks receivership, accounting of all corporate funds and an order restraining payment of further dividends.

FEDERAL BOND ISSUE URGED FOR JOBLESS

Conference in Capitol Favors Vast Public Works Plan; Senators Study Aid.

(Associated Press.)

A convention and a Senate committee yesterday deliberated economic problems as the Federal employment service reported there was little change in employment during October.

An appeal for direct Federal aid for the unemployed was renewed by the convention—a two-day conference of leaders of Liberal Organizations—as it ended its sessions.

The program adopted called for a Federal bond issue of several billion dollars to be expended on public works and direct appropriations to take care of those who can not be employed in this way.

The conference met in Senator Frazier's committee room at the Capitol and several senators and representatives attended.

Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, interrupted several speakers with assertions that he felt the relief needs could be cared for by local efforts.

Ryan Blames Congress.

The Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan said he blamed the failure of Congress "to provide for a large program of public work in the summer of 1930" for much of the present trouble.

A Senate manufactures subcommittee, which has held previous hearings on the advisability of a national economic council to prevent business declines, heard Miss Mary Van Kleeck, director of the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation criticize plans for curtailing production to solve current economic ills. She said the Nation's wealth depends upon production.

Miss Van Kleeck recommended creation of a national council for a fixed term of years.

was indorsed by John H. Fahey, Worcester, Mass., publisher, and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Raps Limiting Production.

Mr. Fahey said trade associations should not be allowed to limit production or control industry without Government supervision and expressed doubt whether they could operate on a voluntary basis.

Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, recommended modification in the antitrust laws to permit industry to control production through trade associations.

Conditions improved, the employment service report said, in coal mining and also in tobacco manufacturing in October.

Prospects for a revival in steel were also said to be good, but on the whole, the report said, there was little difference between Otcober and September.

POLICE PRECINCTS ORDERED ALTERED

Certain Sections Combined to Provide for Three Inspection Districts.

The designation of three police precincts and the boundaries of other precincts were altered yesterday by the District Commissioners as a result of the recent abolition of three such areas when certain precincts were combined to provide for three inspection districts.

The changes were made upon recommendation of a committee composed of E. W. Brown, assistant superintendent, chairman; F. S. W. Burke, assistant superintendent; Inspector O. T. Davis, Inspector T. R. Bean and Capt. L. I. H. Edwards.

Under the new line-up there are eleven precincts, and the numbers 12, 13 and 14 are replaced by 5, 6 and 8, respectively. These latter were the precincts which were abolished when the inspection districts were created.

Other Alterations.

Other alterations were:

The boundaries of the Second Precinct are changed thus: territory of the Second Precinct west of the center line of Fifteenth street is added to the Third Precinct; the territory east of the center line of North Capitol street and north of the center line of Florida avenue and New York avenue goes to the Twelfth Precinct; territory east of the center line of First street northeast and north of the center line of K street and south of the center line of New York avenue becomes a part of the Ninth Precinct.

The boundaries of the Ninth and Twelfth Precincts are changed by using the center line of New York avenue from First street northeast to its intersection with the boundary line of the Eleventh Precinct at the Anacostia River as the boundary line of the two precincts.

Placed in Second District.

The Tenth Precinct is taken out of the First Inspection District and placed in the Second Inspection District.

The Seventh Precinct is transferred from the Second to the First Inspection District. Headquarters of the Second Inspection District is moved from the Twelfth Precinct station to the Tenth Precinct. Booths in the Seventh, Eleventh and Fourth Precincts will be discontinued.

Under the rearrangement five patrol boxes will be moved from the Second to the Twelfth Precinct, and ten patrol signal boxes are to be transferred from the Second to the Third Precinct switchboard.

Yuletide Rum Supply Of Veterans in Danger

New Orleans, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Opposition to including liquor in Christmas gifts to Civil War veterans of Camp Nicholls here was injected heatedly into a meeting today of Jackson Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Miss Belle Van Horn precipitated the discussion when she arose to say she opposed the usual purchase of Christmas liquor for the veterans. She said it was against the law and urged a resolution condemning the practice.

Mrs. P. L. Howell urged a continuation of the contributions, saying "the old men need a little liquor now and then."

The meeting adjourned without taking action.

Marines Envy Navy But Withhold Blame

Gen. Fuller Says System Is Discriminatory in Promotions.

(Associated Press.)

Marine officers feel that their brothers in the Navy have the better of the present promotion system but they don't blame the Navy for that.

In his annual report Maj. Gen. Fuller, Marine Corps commandant, called for a removal of promotion discrimination against marine officers but he pointed out that the system is fixed by law and that there is no conflict between the corps and Navy.

"On the contrary," he said yesterday, efforts by the Marine Corps in the last five years to obtain remedial legislation have had the full approval of and close support of the Navy Department and all influential officers of the Navy. There is no discrimination between officers of the same rank in the Navy and Marine Corps, but it is does exist under the present law when length of service is considered."

YOUTHFUL PAIR WINS HONORS IN CONTRACT

Play at Auction in National Tournament Continues; Titles at Stake.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A youthful pair of contract players carried off the honors in open trophy events at the American Bridge League's fifth annual tournament today. Meanwhile, the experts' bid for national championships at auction games was expected to last well into tomorrow.

Both the morning and afternoon open contract events were won by Mrs. Alexander Randall, of Baltimore, niece of Milton C. Work, the noted bridge authority, and Francis P. White, bridge teacher of the Green Hill Farms Club, Philadelphia.

In the afternoon competition the winners nosed out by half a point Ben Ames Williams, of Boston; the magazine writer, and Mrs. Thomas B. Costain, of Philadelphia, wife of the associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

Action was slow in the big tournament room, where 56 men and women in pairs and teams of four played concurrently for four national auction titles. William E McKenney, bridge league secretary, and Russell J. Baldwin, tournament director, agreed it would be around 3 a. m. tomorow before the winners could be determined. Meanwhile no scores were available.

The men's titles at stake are the national pair championship, now held by R. R. Richards and F. S. Eaton, of Detroit, and the team trophy won last year by Carl T. Robertson, John H. Law, V. F. Boland and Maurice Maschke, Republican political leader, all of Cleveland.

The women sought the pair championship of Mrs. Carl T. Robertson and Mrs. Anne Rosenfeld, of Cleveland, and the team title held by Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. E. P. Sawhill, Mrs. C. W. Nokes and Mrs. George H. Schryver, all of Cleveland.

Those watching the games favored the "four horsemen" of the Knickerbocker Whist Club, of New York, to win the men's team event. They are Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Oswald Jacoby, P. Hal Sims and David Burnstine. The Knickerbocker club has a second team in the event, composed of Sir Derrick Wernher, Walter Malowan, Commander Winfield Liggett, jr., and Capt. Fred G. French. The latter, of Philadelphia, is president of the league.

Dry Men Must Be Smart And Honest, Speaker Says

The old adage that "it takes a thief to catch a thief" has no place in prohibition enforcement as undertaken by the Federal Government, Jessie Dell, civil service commissioner, said last night in an address at Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio.

"Men of high intelligence, of character, men who can withstand temptation, men who can by their own example increase respect for law as law, are the only kind of men the Government wants," the commissioner said in summarizing qualifications of prohibition officers before students in the course on "Prohibition as a Governmental Problem."

Speaking of early conditions in the enforcement bureau, the speaker said, "Prohibition enforcement reeked with scandal and the stench of its rottenness reached to high heaven." In the seven years in which the Volstead law was operative under the method of appointment prevailing before the act of March, 1927, 1,162 employes were removed for misconduct or delinquency, she stated.

Since the Bureau of Prohibition has come under the civil service it has improved steadily in personnel and effectiveness, Miss Dell insisted. She told of the careful character investigation which each applicant for a position undergoes.

LOCAL TAXES.

Higher taxes to offset the enormous deficit in the Federal Treasury would not appear so ominous were it not for the fact that State and local governments already have taxed the people almost to the limit of their endurance. It is quite probable that additional levies will be approved by Legislatures as well as city and county governments this year. In addition to the prospective new Federal taxes these local imposts will constitute a formidable burden upon the people.

Since the World War the Government has steadily reduced taxes until the current year. During the same time $9,297,000,000 has been trimmed from the national debt. But the taxpayers have had no relief because local taxes have absorbed all the benefits that accrued from lower Federal levies. Local indebtedness has steadily advanced along with higher taxes. While Uncle Sam was reducing his obligations at the rate of nearly $1,000,000,000 per year city and State governments, principally the former, were adding almost an equal amount to their debts. Since 1919 local governments have increased their debts $9,000,000,000. As a result the combined public debt amounts to about $32,000,000,000 and is larger than ever before.

It is not surprising that many American municipalities are finding it difficult to meet their obligations. Chicago is not the only city that has allowed employes or school teachers to go unpaid. Several municipal governments are saved from bankruptcy only by hand-to-mouth borrowing. Profligate spending and unwise issuance of bonds have made high taxes the only alternative to bankruptcy.

This condition is especially unfortunate at this time when millions of citizens are hard pressed because of lower incomes, slashed dividends, meager business profits and unemployment. The forced sale of property to satisfy unpaid taxes has shown an enormous increase. In some instances cities are forced to dispose of such property for considerably less than its assessed valuation. It is apparent that taxes in some localities are beginning to reach the point of diminishing returns.

Municipal governments are bewildered by this state of affairs because the demands for relief funds are abnormal. Their tendency is to issue more bonds and leave the problem for future generations to worry about. But many cities are approaching or have reached the legal limits of indebtedness. Proposed bond issues are being scrutinized by investors as well as citizens.

Retrenchment is an absolute necessity. The era of reckless spending must close. In some quarters there has been a disposition to condone municipal extravagance on the theory that taxes in the United States do not compare with those levied in European countries. Such an argument is full of snares. In the United States taxes are levied by at least three and frequently half a dozen different agencies. In the aggregate they are large enough to constitute a serious handicap upon business and a heavy burden upon citizens. In Europe the tax systems are more centralized. Many European governments are hopelessly enmeshed in socialism, and vast sums are used to pay doles and benefits that go directly back to the people. There is no accurate basis for comparing taxes in this and other countries, but every citizen knows that local imposts are unreasonably high and that the present situation demands an abrupt reversal of policy in the direction of economy.

CHRISTMAS SEALS.

The 1931 campaign of the National Tuberculosis Association for the sale of Christmas seals, which has just started, marks the twenty-fifth year that this method of raising funds has been employed. When many worthy causes are soliciting aid, the average citizen finds it difficult to comply with all requests. Yet the importance of the work being done by the Tuberculosis Association makes it one of the most vital undertakings, and, therefore, it must not be slighted even in these strained times.

The progress made in studying the disease and in educating the people in preventive measures has returned to the public many times over its past contributions. It is estimated by the statistical department of the association that the annual cost of tuberculosis in the United States is approximately $1,070,000,000. That is about $9 per capita throughout the country. An adequate health program, directed not only against tuberculosis, but against all preventable diseases, would cost between $2.50 and $3 per capita. This would not wholly eliminate tuberculosis, but it would make great advances against it.

As yet there has been discovered no positive cure for the disease, but progress has been made. More than 90,000 persons in this country die of it yearly, yet only one dies today where two died in 1907, when the seal sale was started. The effort must not be relaxed, as tuberculosis still kills more persons between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other ailment.

The recent purification of tuberculin has made the test for the disease far more reliable. This will not only aid physicians in diagnosis and treatment, but will provide accurate records for future study. The standardization of X-ray pictures will also aid experimentation.

The fiftieth anniversary of the discovery of the tuberculosis germ falls on March 24 of the coming year. Plans are being made for a nation-wide celebration. Isolation of the germ was first made by a German physician, Robert Koch. Hundreds of other disease germs have since been discovered by using his methods.

FREE TRADE IN DISGUISE.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, prospective Democratic leader in the House, has devised a smoke screen for the forthcoming Democratic raid on the tariff. He admits that to lower American duties while all the world clings to high tariffs would not be altogether practical, thereby taking issue with many eminent spokesmen for his party. So he proposes to invent a system of reciprocal duties.

Under this scheme Congress would pass a bill lowering tariff rates. A reciprocity clause would provide that "none of the rates can be called into effect unless and until, as to some item or group of items, some foreign nation shall establish the same tariff rates or lower tariff rates." Czechoslovakia, for example, would be given the privilege of importing cheap shoes into the United States at a low tariff rate in return for allowing a similar privilege to American shoe manufacturers who are unable to compete with Czechoslovakia because of lower costs of production there.

The naivete of this suggestion is astonishing. It is free trade in disguise. If all countries are to equalize their tariffs, why not abolish them entirely? Mr. Rainey ignores the higher costs of production in America resulting from higher wages and raw materials, and proposes to reduce industry in this country to the world level. He would open the vast American market to foreign competitive goods under an arrangement that would allow other countries to keep their markets closed to the United States because of their lower economic standards.

Apparently Mr. Rainey has reduced world-wide protective policies to the simplicity of economic spite among nations. Has he failed to grasp the elemental fact that each country's tariff needs are essentially different from those of any other country? Can't he understand what would be the result of equal duties on wheat in the United States and Russia, or even Argentina? The suggestion that all nations levy equal duties on the same items or groups of items is perhaps the baldest absurdity that has crept into the current discussion of tariffs.

The Rainey plan would have no effect upon high tariffs abroad that restrict American exports. Congress might sweep away the automobile tariff, for example, but that would have no influence whatever on the exorbitant duties levied against American motor cars in Europe. In effect, the Illinois congressman suggests that American industry be scuttled for the benefit of foreign importers.

This proposal illustrates the paucity of arguments to support the Democratic demand for a reduction of the tariff at this critical time. The Democrats know of no way to put their theory into practice without visiting calamity upon domestic enterprises.

SILVER A COMMODITY.

With the current attempt to revive interest in bimetallism the same old fallacious arguments of a generation ago are brought forth in another futile effort to convince the world that silver has some mysterious potency not inherent in other commodities. The silverites can not reconcile themselves to the established fact that the days of silver as a monetary standard, so far as all the progressive nations of the earth are concerned, have gone forever. China is the only nation of importance that remains on a silver basis, and she would adopt the recommendations of experts and adopt the gold standard if she could.

One of the assertions most frequently reiterated is that if the value of silver could be restored to 60 cents an ounce, an increase of 100 per cent, the purchasing power of 1,000,000,000 people in China and India would be doubled. Silver that flows into China and India does not come out again to pay for imports. Both countries for thousands of years have been absorbing silver, hundreds of millions of it. But they pay for their imports with exports and a large proportion of the gold realized from their exports is used to purchase silver. The Indian rupee, of course, is now allied with the British pound and Indian currency is on a gold bullion basis, though silver circulates in the interior and is hoarded as of old. The great mass of China's population know nothing of the fluctuations in the market value of silver and the exchange rates for the tael. A silver coin is the same today and tomorrow with them; they are only too glad to see one among their copper and brass.

China does not buy foreign goods in abundance when silver is high, but rather in direct proportion to the extent of her exports, and exports are stimulated by cheap silver, since the world price for the white metal has slight effect upon wages and local charges in China. Cheap silver means that China's exports yield larger profits abroad, which in turn will purchase a larger amount of silver for use in China. If China had been free from revolution, banditry, floods and foreign conflicts this year cheap silver would have proved a great stimulus to development. Even under the trying conditions existing, the larger cities have witnessed unprecedented activity in real estate and building improvements.

Silver-producing countries are in a different position. They are benefited directly by a high price for silver in direct proportion to silver's importance in the country's economy. But the present annual value of silver mined in the United States is only about $20,000,000. That total is negligible in comparison with the output of the American mining industry. Silver is a by-product of metals many times its value, and must adapt itself to a place in the world today as a commodity.

PINCHOT SIDESTEPS.

Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who came to Washington recently on a begging mission for that State, has sidestepped the challenge of Senator Davis to give all his income to the unemployment relief fund. Vaunting his own generosity, the governor asked Senator Davis "to give as large a percentage of your income as I do of mine." The senator immediately replied that he and Mrs. Davis would give all of their income and would invest all of their holdings in unemployment bonds if Gov. and Mrs. Pinchot would do likewise. But the governor seeks to evade this boomerang by saying that the offer was "obviously not in good faith."

Senator Davis' challenge had one beneficial effect in that it forced Gov. Pinchot to make a contribution himself before pressing his relief campaign any further. Gov. Pinchot is a wealthy man. But instead of contributing $1,000,000, as he asked Secretary Mellon and others to do, he offers $13,000. Since this amount was given only after Senator Davis' challenge, the governor is not in a position to boast of his liberality.

When Gov. Pinchot's contribution is placed beside the loss of prestige and self-respect that Pennsylvania has suffered as the result of his begging and his pleas for a Federal dole it sinks into insignificance. If he contributed his entire fortune to relieve distress resulting from the depression Gov. Pinchot would still be in debt to the citizens of Pennsylvania for the humiliation which he has brought upon that State.

Chairman Raskob must have a mortgage on the Democratic party, because he always seems eager to raise the interest.

There won't be much done about the Treasury deficit until it gets to the House committee of the whole.

An economist says we gambled with Germany and lost. But she had loaded Diets.

GERMAN TRADE GROWS

By the Berlin Correspondent of the London Times.

An outstanding fact dominates the economic situation of Germany—namely, that she is now the first exporting country in the world, having passed Great Britain in 1930 and the United States recently. In August German exports were far ahead of those of the United States, and the twelve months' total may definitely establish Germany in the first place.

Imports have been concurrently reduced to a very low figure, a large export surplus remains, which in 1931 will be worth between 2,000,000,000 marks and 3,000,000,000 marks. Moreover, German exports include a very high proportion of finished articles, which provide the maximum of profit and employment for German capital and labor. With this notable success in the world's markets Germany enters a winter overclouded by trade depression, rising unemployment, political agitation at home and uncertainty about the extent of her political obligations abroad. It is a notable achievement in a time of unexampled depression and supports the prediction of one authority that Germany, her industrial machine modernized and efficient, may emerge from the world crisis in better condition than her rivals.

Beneath all the anxiety for the coming winter that must oppress thinking Germans in a land containing 4,500,000 unemployed, 6,000,000 Communists and aggressively militant organizations claimant for power, there seems to be an intuitive belief that Germany is moving through confusion not to disruption, but to better things. The world, it is thought, must now realize that she is bankrupt. She owes, as German statisticians compute, more than 20,000,000,000 marks in long and short term foreign debts; quite apart from reparations, it is argued, she can only redeem these private debts in annual installments from export surpluses which the world must allow her to earn. This reduces the problem to a simple formula, even if it takes no account of such things as income from German shipping and foreign investments (which are said to be large in Holland and Switzerland) or of the proportion of the foreign debt owed by German firms to auxiliary concerns in Holland.

Circumstances, therefore, as many Germans think, have given the country a stranglehold over its partners in coming international negotiations. "Our creditors must now decide whether they will give priority to the first or second mortgage laid on Germany, to reparations or to private debts"—this is a typical view. The hope now taking shape is that Germany will pay very little in reparations, and most of that in kind, while redeeming her private debts in supportable annual sums, so that former political creditors may have a mortgage laid on their good behavior toward Germany.

The tables would thus be turned. Some twenty months have passed since Germany signed a promissory note to pay annuities averaging about 2,000,000,000 marks for 37 years and 1,500,000,000 marks for 22 years. The prospect that these liabilities may be drastically written down has inspired the appeals of the leaders of German opinion to the nation to accept the sacrifices now demanded as the price of a better future. So far the nation has responded with discipline and patience; it has tightened its belt in the hope of winning a greater measure of freedom from the penalties of a lost war. "This Germany of ours," said Germania recently, "has a hard path before her, but she is treading it without for a moment losing sight of the goal."

The decision of Western railroad presidents to cut wages 10 per cent settles everything, just like the announcement that China has accepted the peace program of the League of Nations.

Chile and Peru have their new presidents safely installed. About time Argentina and Brazil were upholding democracy on the Atlantic side.

Raskob is asking for a vote on resubmission from contributors to Al Smith's campaign. It should be supplemented by a poll of the W. C. T. U.

If the weather man wants to know, we can tell him in a trice: five drab days all in a row, more than sufficiently suffice.

The new senator from New Jersey is said to put up such a good two-fisted argument that no one interrupts the thread of his discourse.

JUST FOLKS

RE-BIRTH.

We're at home once more when the good friends call
And we're back on earth as our natural selves;
Now the patient books which have lined the wall,
Have come to life on their dusty shelves.

Across the way is a neighbor, too,
Who just like the books has stood for years,
Patiently waiting, as if he knew
Some day he would share in our smiles and tears.

We have been away on a mad, wild chase,
Seeking for pleasure in haunts afar;
Now were back once more at the starting place,
And we've learned how blinding the follies are.

It seems we have come through a strange re-birth,
Or from years long spent on a foreign shore,
To learn the lesson of life on earth,
And to claim the joys which we missed before.

The Test of Valor Is a Fight Without Comrades or Spectators.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT is the nature of man to delight in a test of his manhood. Pride and doubt together urge him to take the measure of his strength.

Here, then, is a test to prove the metal that is in him.

Let him prove his ability to conquer himself.

"Oho!" says youth. "It is a trick. You would tame me by means of flattery."

But, no; there is no trickery. You write the terms of the contract. You alone know which fault you elect to conquer. You alone will know the measure of victory.

The greatest and wisest of books says that the one who rules his own spirit is greater than the one who takes a city.

Observe how much greater he needs to be.

The one who takes a city is supported by a host; the other fights alone. When the soldier is ready to despair, his spirit borrows courage from the determination of his comrades. When he is weak and nearly spent, fear of ridicule drives him on. His reputation is at stake. And the assurance of fame and glory gives him strength to endure and to suffer, for the more he suffers to win, the greater will be his reward.

The other, who fights to conquer himself, has no benefit of enthusiasm or excitement but only the silent and grim and unchanging struggle to defend himself against temptations that never relax the pressure of their attack.

He can not forget his weakness in the frenzy of assault. His is the harder part of warfare—the waiting, the constant vigilance against surprise, the inglorious defense.

Weakness reminds him that he can surrender without hurt to his reputation, for the world is unaware of his struggle. Temptation reminds him that self-denial will gain him nothing except the satisfaction of winning.

Each moment that comes requires a new victory to uphold the last. And when at last the triumph is complete there is no applause or commendation except that of his own conscience.

No better test of manhood ever has been devised. It is a test any man can make, for none but the egomaniac need search in vain for a fault to try his metal.

To conquer another man merely proves your discretion in choosing an adversary; to conquer self is to prove your strength greater than the whole sum of evil.

The Majority Stockholder.

Kansas City Star.

Mr. Raskob's extensive questionnaire to the 90,000 Democratic party contributors is described as an effort to "determine how the rank and file of the party feel" on the restoration of legalized liquor. Well, not exactly that. It is rather an effort to determine whether it is not quite possible that the majority of the party contributors feel just as Mr. Raskob feels on this issue. How Mr. Raskob feels about it is well known. Mr. Raskob made that perfectly clear at the Democratic national committee meeting in Washington last March, if he had not already made it reasonably clear in his reiterated statements since the summer of 1928.

This latest inquiry procedure indicates that Mr. Raskob quite possibly conceives of the Democratic party as a corporation, in which he himself holds the majority of stock. Of course, Mr. Raskob could, if he were so inclined, go right ahead and commit the corporation to his own views on the booze question. But he had rather not do that, obviously. For he writes to the other stockholders, the minority, that "it would be of value to have your recommendation also." Of value, but not strictly necessary.

The saws and chisels of countless economic carpenters are being sharpened for tinkering on the Federal Farm Board act when Congress meets next month. Those old props, the debenture plan and the equalization fee, are being trimmed to hold up the tottering structure of farm relief, which, as a policy of governmental interference with the normal flow of trade, has broken down completely. At the meeting of the Senate agriculture committee on Wednesday numerous plans were discussed for taking care of surplus crops. One plan was missing; that which would provide against the production of surplus crops.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Triangle Buildings Should Be Several Stories Higher—Greek Architecture Monotonous.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If I had not read it in The Post I would never have believed that any one would refer to the State, War and Navy Building as a monstrosity. In answer to that assertion, Jeremiah Johnson's remarks as to the building's architectural fitness are all right. In my opinion it is at least a good-looking structure, although it may be that its contemplated remodeling to suit the style of the nearby Treasury and White House will be worth the expense.

Like Mr. Johnson, "for the time being I am for the Greek structures in new and beautiful Washington." But with him I get peeved at blueprint esthetes who can see nothing but row after row of classic columns in the construction of public buildings.

To suit modern conditions the buildings of the Federal triangle should be several stories higher than they are. This would give them a nobler appearance, as any one will admit who will give the idea a sober second thought. They should be at least as high as the Greek and Roman architects would have built if they had been blessed with the structural facilities of the present day.

Far be it from me to say that the Federal triangle's costly mile of masonry will not have a magnificent appearance when completed. But I do say that the effect would be more inspiring if, for example, it had been planned to preserve the Postoffice Department Building, thereby breaking the continuity of classic facades and, by the somber and majestic contrast, increasing their impressive charm.

Nevertheless, we should be thankful for the great progress which has been made in the direction of beautification, with the hope that our planners will hereafter be inspired by a proper realization that beauty is "the perfection of form resulting from the harmonious combination of diverse elements in unity."

Blundering Methods of Solicitation Resented by Patrons Who Refuse to Be Coerced.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To my amazement, I received several days ago 200 antituberculosis Christmas seals and a letter from the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis requesting that I send them $2 or return the seals. Since then, I have learned that very many of my friends have had similar requests.

Ever since I can remember, I have bought and used Christmas seals put out by this organization. Their work has always appealed to me as most worthy of all the support I could afford, and I am sure the great majority of people have felt the same.

However, this recent and flagrant attempt at coercion dims much of the admiration I have felt for the work of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. I wonder how many other recipients of this letter feel the same as I do?

Such a method is not one whit different from that which roused nationwide resentment a few years ago when "blind" tie makers, Christmas card printers, and others with something to sell used the same methods to attempt sales by mild coercion. I have already bought some Christmas seals this year. Whether or not I buy any more depends upon considerable change in my present attitude.

Suggests That the Churches Open Their Doors at Night to Provide Sleeping Quarters for Unfortunates.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would seem to the casual observer that now is the time for the churches of America to show some of the spirit of Christ by opening their doors to those unfortunate but respectable men and women who have no homes and no place to sleep during the cold winter nights. It would not cost very much, and almost every church could accommodate a few of the homeless. It would be an act of Christian charity and it would help those unfortunates who need this assistance so badly. I believe the Government has a large number of Army cots and, no doubt, Government officials would loan them to the churches. Also I think some of the merchants in the city would donate some cots to help out in this emergency.

By helping these unfortunates the churches can carry out the teachings of Christ and be the means of saving the lives of many homeless men and women.

Debt Cancellation a Fine Thing for Everybody Except American Taxpayers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Of all the idiotic suggestions that have been made recently for relieving the depression, the one offered by Bertrand Shadwell wins the prize. Did the United States force the foreign nations to borrow money from Uncle Sam? No! They borrowed so that they might benefit from the use of the cash; in other words they borrowed for purely selfish interests.

It is a fine plan for a Britisher to offer, because if the war debts were canceled it would mean that American citizens would have to pay the debts that were incurred by other nations. The citizens of this country would pay these debts through the medium of increased taxation. If the matter of debt cancellation should be brought to the attention of Congress, it would be squelched in the bud.

INDIA'S HOPES LOST AS MEETING CLOSES

Months of Deliberation, at Cost of $1,000,000, Fail to Bring Freedom.

London, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—After deliberating nearly three months and spending almost $1,000,000, the second Indian round table conference ended today with India standing virtually where she stood last January at the conclusion of the first conference.

Although Prime Minister MacDonald announced in his final speech that great strides forward had been made, the vital problem of apportioning power among the various racial groups, which he admitted was the whole key to the success of the conference, apparently was as far from settlement as ever.

In his address the prime minister dealt with Mahatama Gandhi with velvet gloves. But while he was calling the Nationalist leader "my dear Mahatma," the viceroy of India was preparing to handle any new subversive movement by Gandhi followers in the Bengal district with an iron fist.

Drastic Penalties Prescribed.

Immediate death or deportation for life is the penalty prescribed under new ordinances in Bengal for those who challenge King George's rule or attempt political crimes.

The army, police, and even civilians may be called upon under these new regulations to assist in the suppression of any rebellious moves on the part of Indain subjects.

While these repressive measures apply for the present only to the Bengal Province, the government is prepared if necessary to extend them to all India.

"What gives me the greatest concern," said Gandhi tonight, "is not the outcome of the round table conference but the grave events in India, where the government has been stampeded into panic by a few political crimes committed by irresponsible Indian youths thirsting for their country's freedom."

May Renew Struggle.

"Is it to be peace or war?" the mahatma was asked.

"I can not say at present," he replied. "The (Nationalist) congress may have no choice except to renew the struggle.

"The extraordinary powers of repression with which the Bengal government has armed itself seem to me to be wholly inconsistent with the desire expressed at the round table conference today to part with power and give Indian real freedom.

"The ugly situation in Bengal leaves little room for hope that anything big will emerge from the conference The government has become panicky."

JAPANESE DRIVE BALKS PEACE PLAN

terim reports to the council at any time, thus making it possible for the commission to direct attention immediately to any failure by either of the disputants to carry out his engagements.

After the neutral members of the council had adopted the draft resolution the measure was transmitted immediately to Nanking and Tokyo for ratification.

League chiefs were most hopeful the Japanese government would accept and thereby make it possible to put the plan in operation promptly.

Leaving out Tokyo's antibandit proposal, the resolution also overlooks China's desire for stipulation of a time limit within which Japanese evacuation must be completed.

Consolation for these two omissions will be offered in the form of a declaration by Aristide Briand, council chairman, who is expected, in the name of the council, to admonish the two parties to cooperate in suppressing banditry and to urge Japan to withdraw her troops with all possible speed.

The commission of inquiry, it was understood, will have five members and a number of expert advisers. The Japanese have urged that only three commissioners be named.

The council was reported to be in agreement that the commissioners should be outstanding men backed by the authority of their governments. It was considered certain that an American, Englishman and Frenchman would be included and that perhaps the others would be a German and an Italian, although some sentiment existed in favor of representation for a country with no interest in China.

A plan for the organization of a neutral zone in Manchuria was being worked upon by the council members.

While the terms of M. Briand's declaration, to be delivered at the final public session of the council as a preface to the resolution, have been agreed upon in principle, certain details remain to be settled. The council's drafting committee will meet again tomorrow to clean up these details.

The function of the declaration, it was said, will be to appease political feelings at home without binding any one, and it is spoken of here as the "official face saver."

The twelve neutral members will meet again late tomorrow when they hope to be able to prepare for a public session of the council and to close the present phase of the negotiations.

Even if Japanese approval is obtained, several days, it is expected, will be required before the council will be able to adjourn its session. The improved military situation in Manchuria has strengthened optimism, but league officials were not entirely assured they might breathe easily.

China's declaration last night that evacuation by a definite date no longer was a prerequisite, was accepted as the equivalent of approval for the council's program.

Federal Workers Vote Not to Quit A. F. of L.

War Department Local, No. 231, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, last night opposed the federation's withdrawal from the American Federation of Labor by a close vote.

Ballots for withdrawal numbered 234, and against withdrawal, 275. The local voted unanimously to instruct its tellers, Miss G. E. Coyle, Miss Loretta Corcoran and H. Solomon, to to make the ballot public. With last night's meeting, the local opened a concerted drive for new members.

Mayor Asserts Prisoner Is Innocent of Charge; Rioters Seized.

acknowledgement, the fact that your excellency has made all this possible. You have made me not only personally welcome, but you have made an attorney from another State welcome in this important, dignified forum.

"Your excellency knows him who addresses you. The world knows the carefree side of him, which is only an exterior. I have not been unhappy in the criticism that has been leveled at me. Your excellency dissipated all of that. Nor have I by word or deed—I would prefer that I had never visited the State of California if for one moment I had trespassed on your hospitality or misunderstood your devotion to high ideals and public service.

"What difference does it make, if you please, from what State a man comes if he comes with righteousness in his heart and justice as his end? I know I am not impudent in your excellency's thoughts, and if there be those who think I am, what distinguished company I find myself in—a former President of the United States, the Wickersham committee, Senators Nye and Wheeler and La Follette, a Governor of Arizona, the distinguished president of the American Federation of Labor, the words, if you please, your excellency, of those representing a million Americans, from the Episcopal Bishop of Maine to the oldest and revered rabbi, Rabbi Meyer Goldstein. The greatest array of humanity ever gathered under the sun on this American continent."

Tells of Mother's Plea.

And then:

"The life of politics is hard. The target that one becomes from time to time is well known to your excellency. The price that one must pay in public service is terrible at times.

"And yet, you and I, and the likes of us, must find our compensation from within our breasts. Our compensation must come from those things that permit of satisfaction within us and the attainment of ideals and some kind of contribution to humanity that we only feel not while the lights are bright, not while the trumpets are blaring, but when at night in solitude with the lights out and the pillow for an only companion, we find our pay in having made some contribution."

The mayor recalled that he said to himself "What can I do?" when he was asked to come on the mission and how he was finally persuaded by a telegram from Mooney's 83-year-old mother. After reaching California he called on Mrs. Mooney, and on Tom Mooney at San Quentin Prison.

And, oh, your excellency," he said, as I saw this old lady with whom you are familiar, when I first looked into her face and thoght of one who had gone before, it made it possible for me today to address you, and only possible by great sacrifice. I wasn't satisfied. I knew enough about human nature to know that that kind of motherhood can never see any wrong in her boy.

Visit to Mooney.

"And so to satisfy myself, I went down yonder and inside of the walls of San Quentin. I knew Mooney by reputation; I knew the record.

"But I wanted to see. The record was fine, the record was clear, the record was convincing that there had been a miscarriage of justice. And yet the terribleness of this crime. I could not efface from my mind the terrible consequences of making any contribution, of being party to any kind of a movement that would take a despicable guilty one out of the hands of the law and away from just punishment that should be visited upon him.

"I wanted to satisfy myself before I made one word of plea to your excellency, look into his face with a prayer on my lips to Divine Providence for guidance for a better understanding of human nature than I had ever had before. And I went.

"And what I saw I can't describe, but not in that face was there the capacity for such an atrocious crime. Not in that clear, yet sympathetic, kindly blue eye did I find the mirror of a soul so depraved as to be guilty of this crime. I saw gentility, obvious injustice. I saw a kindly man grown old in appearance inside of those walls. I heard a voice that was sympathy itself and his eye looked straight forward, did not swerve. I knew the record was right, I knew the judge was right. I knew the living jurors had seen the light. I knew there had been a great miscarriage of justice."

Agitators Arrested.

Soon after the hearing was started in the austere but small chamber of the supreme court, a crowd carrying banners assembled in the square outside the State Building. They chanted "Free Tom Mooney," and two delegations attempted to enter the courtroom. Entrance was refused. The indignant shouts following the double refusal precipitated a mild disturbance and half a dozen patrol wagons filled with agitators were taken to the police station.

Gov. Rolph sat in the center of the massive supreme court bench, flanked by Matt I. Sullivan, former chief justice of the supreme court; Lewis F. Byington, district attorney 30 years ago; his legal advisers and Daniel J. O'Brien, director of the State Department of Penology.

Charles M. Fickert, who prosecuted Mooney, expressed his belief today that the best interests of the State probably would be served by granting Mooney executive clemency.

So far as known, it was the first time Fickert had spoken in favor of freeing Mooney.

He said he was influenced by a report of former Gov. Young, who made a special study of the Mooney case, that Frank C. Oxman, one of the chief witnesses against Mooney, gave perjured testimony "and was nothing more or less than a publicity-seeking romancer."

FLYING APPLES HALT TOBACCO AUCTIONS

Kentucky Farmers Break Up Sales at Low Prices; Vote Crop Curb.

Owensboro, Ky., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Incensed because of low prices offered them, approximately 3,000 farmers attending the opening tobacco sale of the season here today broke up the sale after hurling apples at the auctioneers and then unanimously adopted a resolution not to raise any tobacco next year.

Approximately 78,000 pounds of dark-leaf tobacco had been sold at two warehouses for an average of $4.61 a hundred, compared with an average of $8.47 on the opening day last year, when close to 500,000 pounds were sold.

As the auction continued and rejections became more numerous the farmers began voicing their objections. Shouts of "You can't take our tobacco that way!" interrupted the auctioneers and threats were heard to wreck the warehouses unless the sale was stopped.

Demonstration Gets Serious.

The demonstration assumed serious proportions when some one hurled an apple at W. G. Crabtree, vice president and general manager of the Owensboro Loose Leaf Tobacco Co., operator of six of the seven warehouses here. Crabtree dodged the apple, but the protests became so threatening the sale was halted.

The farmers withdrew, and several hours later gathered at the courthouse. So many of them were there that they could not get into the courtroom and it was necessary to hold an open meeting in the courthouse yard.

Unanimous approval was given to resolutions to postpone the sale until next Monday; to appoint a committee to confer with James C. Stone, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, in Washington, in an effort to obtain financing for a tobacco pool, and to abandon plans for next year's crop. The farmers also agreed to offer no tobacco for sale before next Monday.

Virginia Growers to Meet.

Dilwyn, Va., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Tobacco growers of Buckingham and neighboring counties will meet in the Dilwyn High School tomorrow night to discuss the marketing of this year's dark tobacco.

The prevailing low market for tobacco resulted in the call by the Chamber of Commerce to tobacco growers to meet to decide on the possibility of inducing tobacco buyers, exporters and manufacturers to pay a higher price for this year's crop.

Speakers from Richmond, Blacksburg and the University of Virginia will address the meeting.

$5,000 Is Awarded In Crash Fatal to 3

Man Wins Suit for Death of Wife From Estate of Car's Driver.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 1.—A verdict of $5,000 was given today by a jury in the United States District Court in favor of Richard P. Harris, of Pittsburgh, who claimed damages of $50,000 for death of his wife, Mrs. Gladys Harris, as result of a head-on collision between two cars on the Washington Boulevard, December 1, 1930.

The suit was brought against the estate of Paul Melvin Braun, who was also killed in the crash which occurred near Laurel as Braun and his fiancee, Miss Eleanor E. Follmer, were returning to Baltimore from Washington. Miss Follmer also was killed.

Braun, who witnesses said was speeding, attempted to avert the collision but skidded 84 feet into a car driven by Mrs. Mabel Harris, sister-in-law of Mrs. Gladys Harris. Braun was hurled from the machine and instantly killed. Mrs. Harris, whose head went through the windshield of the car in which she was riding, died of her injuries six days later in a Washington hospital.

United Cigar Plans New Organizations

Holding Company and Other Interests Propose to Make Changes.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A plan for the reorganization of Tobacco Products Corporation of New Jersey, holding company for the common stock of United Cigar Stores Co. and for a lease agreement with American Tobacco, was mailed to stockholders today.

The plan proposed formation of two new companies. Class "A" stockholders of Tobacco Products will receive $10 in debentures of another New Jersey corporation for each share of stock, while owners of the common will get $4 in debentures of a New Delaware corporation, which will take over assets of the present company with the exception of the lease agreement.

Collateral trust debentures totaling $35,591,235 and bearing 6½ per cent interest will be issued by the New Jersey corporation, while the proposed Tobacco Products Corporation of Delaware will issue 3,296,852 shares of stock, its assets being 3,964,310 shares of United Cigar Stores common and the entire capital stock of the present company.

Friend of Hoovers Succumbs in Iowa

Knew First Lady as Girl; Aided President in His War Work.

Waterloo, Iowa, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A friend of the girlhood days of Mrs. Herbert Hoover and a former associate of the President on the Food Administration Board is dead. He was George E. Lichty, who died yesterday at the age of 74.

Friends here recalled today that as a girl Lou Henry often rode with Lichty on his delivery wagon behind an old white horse. That was when Lichty, a young man, was employed by a local grocery store.

The friendship continued after Miss Henry became the wife of President Hoover and during the World War Lichty assisted the President in food administration work. Among the messages of sympathy the family received was one from President and Mrs. Hoover.

Twice elected Mayor of East Chicago, he was convicted in a huge liquor conspiracy trial, but his case was remanded upon appeal and he faced a new trial at the current term of Federal Court at Hammond.

Body of Educator Found in Mill Dam

Parsons, W. Va., Instructor Believed Swept Into Water by Wind.

Special to The Washington Post.

Parsons, W. Va., Dec. 1.—The body of David F. Collins, 41, instructor of history and social science at Parsons High School for seven years, was found floating in an abandoned lumber mill dam here today by County Clerk John McNeely, who was searching for Collins, who had been missing since Sunday.

Collins had started out for a walk in the face of a stiff wind, and authorities believe that while walking along the dam he was buffeted into the water. His hat was pulled down on his head and his spectacles were intact. A verdict of accidental drowning was given.

The body will be sent to Lewisburg, Tenn., his native city. He was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church and the Junior Order of American Mechanics. Four brothers survive.

Railways Win Rate Plea On Imports and Exports

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized railroads serving North Atlantic seaports to disregard changes in freight rates from Eastern classification territory, due to become effective tomorrow, in so far as they relate to goods for export and import. The changes result from lengthy investigation.

In most instances, except on some classes of farm products, the revision is upward. Recently railroads serving seaports asked that they be permitted to retain the old rates for goods hauled for export and for those imported.

Issuance of Auto Tags For 1932 Has Begun

As the issuance of 1932 automobile tags began yesterday Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer issued an appeal to the motoring public to have its application blanks completely filled in and checks for their fees and taxes signed before approaching the tag counter.

Failure of applicants to have their blanks properly and fully made out and to have checks signed in advance delays issuance of the tags, he pointed out, adding to the inconvenience of the bureau and of the public.

There are 117 cleaner and more efficient kitchens in Marion County, Tenn., because of a club contest.

Farm Prices Advance After Sustained Drop

(Associated Press.)

The index of farm prices has turned the corner and started upward. After an almost uninterrupted decline for more than a year, the index in the last month rose to 71 as compared with 68 on October 15.

The rise was occasioned by substantial improvement in grain and poultry products prices and smaller improvement in cotton and cotton seed.

A survey of farmers' purchases of radios shows that more are bought in December than in any other month.

Pope to Issue Fifth Encyclical This Year

Vatican City, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI will issue an encyclical list before Christmas commemorating the 1500th anniversary of the Council of Ephesus. It will be his fifth this year.

The Council of Ephesus excommunicated Nestorius of Constantinople and condemned as heresy his teachings that Christ had two distinct natures, divine and human, existing separately, and that the Virgin Mary was not the mother of God. It is expected that in the forthcoming encyclical the pontiff will appeal for reunion of the Nestorian, or East Syrian Church, now centered in Persia and Turkey, with the Roman Catholic Church.

"Personality Girl" Sues Autoist Over Her Nose

Alleging that she has developed a large lump on her nose as the result of an automobile mishap last June 21, Anna Greenberg, 17, through her father Morris Greenberg, of 927 G street northwest, who described her as "the personality girl," yesterday sued Philip M. Baker, 1317 Spring road northwest, for $15,000.

Miss Greenberg charged that her livelihood as a public dancer and entertainer had been endangered by the growth of the lump which was caused, she said, when her head struck the rear of Baker's automobile.

Envoy to Rome Treated For Broken Foot Bone

Baltimore, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—John W. Garrett, United States Ambassador to Rome, today had his right foot in a plaster cast, the result of a broken bone sustained in a fall at his estate here. The ambassador tripped on a rug Sunday and fell. Yesterday he complained of a pain in his foot and doctors found the small bone fractured. The cast will be removed in two weeks.

Ambassador Garrett and Mrs. Garrett have been in the United States on a 60-day furlough, but planned to return to Italy before Christmas.

Findings May Change Theories of Einstein

Berlin, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Scientific findings of Prof. Erue' Freundlich's Sumatra expedition, which may necessitate revision of Prof. Albert Einstein's relativity theories, have been submitted to the Prussian Academy of Science.

Prof. Einstein said some time ago that the Freundlich observations concerning the sending of light rays might necessitate a revision of parts of his theory of relativity. Freundlich's findings indicate deflection of the solar rays by 2.2 seconds of an arc, which is nearly half a second more than the Einstein theory would indicate.

Eastern Steer Defeats West for Championship

Chicago, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—An Eastern steer overthrew the reign of the West today, and ruled as grand champion of the International Livestock Show—"Briar Cliff Thickset," a yearling Aberdeen angus from Dutchess County, N. Y. A shorthorn calf, "Illini Major" from the University of Illinois head, was adjudged reserve champion.

The new czar of cattle is owned by Oakleigh Thorne, retired New York capitalist, and was bred at Thorne's Briar Cliff farms at Pine Plains, but "Briar Cliff's" reign is to be short lived for on Thursday the steer goes on the auction block.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

ALL RIGHT BUT THE HAT.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I have been reading your columns for the past week and have been quite interested in your replies to the different questions asked you. You seem to be a particularly wise adviser, so I'm wondering if you can help me solve my problem.

I am 21, but am still not able to make up my mind about things which I alone should bring to some definite decision. I, like many girls, have depended upon others to make most of my decisions. This is indeed wrong, and I want to overcome this habit. For instance, I have been going with a fellow for five months. He is truly in love with me. He is considerate, kind, has a fine future in view and is also neat and attractive, loving and affectionate. What more could a girl want? Now, at first I wasn't in love with him at all, but I kept on having dates with him just the same. I enjoyed his company, and still do. Sometimes I feel as if I want to be close to him and just love him forever; then again I doubt my love for him. I felt foolish things enter mind, such as: He doesn't wear his hat as attractively as some fellows; probably he isn't good-looking enough; maybe I could find someone else better looking.—The trouble is he is nice looking.—I don't know why I think of these foolish things. I want to love him truthfully and banish any unpleasing thoughts from my mind. I've prayed for our love and happiness, because I worry so much about us that I'm not always happy. Is all this due to lack of confidence in myself, or is it because I have never gone with any one fellow so steady and thought so seriously? Please help me to relieve my mind I want to be fair with him as well as myself. I've told him of my uncertainty. He is a wonderful fellow, and talked to me about the whole affair. He claims I am a bit egotistical. What are your ideas concerning this affair?

"TRUE BLUE LOU."

Your quandary is one that confronts the average girl. You see we women are born shoppers. We want the best that we can get for what we can give. It is when we do not quite know what we have to offer that we meet a stone wall of indecision.

There is the girl who has everything and does not know it, and who is ready to throw herself away upon some poor makeshift, rather than risk being left on the Christmas tree, a free and self-respecting woman, but none the less an old maid. This girl usually takes the makeshift, and eventually finds herself supporting him or at least his children and wondering where her intelligence was when she was planning her life.

Then there is the girl who suspects that she has the best of the bargain and that she is decidedly stepping down several pegs in considering the half portion of romance that awaits her answer. But she dallies so long that other men rate her according to her taste, and thus come about those long-drawn-out courtships that amaze the bystanders and eventually end in one of those marriages that keep the woman busy the rest of her life apologizing for her choice.

There is also the girl who has lots of attention but for no rational reason feels drawn through pity to some lame duck who tells her how different things would have been with him if his father had lived, or if he did not have so many families to support. Something tells her that he is a false alarm and she knows that she should tell him that she knows he would never have amounted to a hill of beans if he had had ten fathers all living and no other relatives, dependent or otherwise; but instead she pities him all the more for being such a worm, and the years go by and she marries him because there does not seem to be anything else to do. And finds out right promptly to what extent pity can be wasted.

Then there is the girl who is waiting for Dave Windsor. Yes, we mean the Prince of Wales. She figures if she waits long enough she will be asked in marriage by a man who can give her the things she should have. For about 20 years she waits and then she takes what she can get. Which is usually a bachelor with a bad case of boarding house blues.

It is a big question, Lou, and, as you say, the girl herself must do the deciding. But we would offer just this suggestion—that if the angle at which a man wears his hat can upset your equilibrium, there would seem to be at least grounds to suspect that he had not yet awakened in you one of those great passions of which we read. However, that need not influence your choice, for not one marriage in 10,000 is based upon such foundation. Most women take the man who most nearly approaches the type they hoped to get. Failing that, they take the man who is available. You will probably do just that now or some time. So, do not be disturbed over the angle of that hat!

Dare Interprets the Mode

This green wool frock has a white satin collar and gilet, and further accent of black satin cire ribbon. (Courtesy of Martial et Armand, Paris).

Panama, Dec. 1, 1931

A day or so ago, I had an opportunity to sit down and read an account of the opening of a new version of a famous hotel, know the world over for the famous members of society and the notorious members of the demimonde who spent pleasant hours within its portals. The hotel, a famous old one, had moved into more exclusive surroundings and was built with every modern convenience known to man, but there was an attempt to keep a note of old-world traditions alive even in its ultra-modern emergence.

This opening interests me, as a fashion cricket, from one angle only—the fact that the women who attended its present opening were attired in the interesting period adaptations of the day, and didn't differ so much, in many ways, from the women who attended the first opening, back in 1893.

It was just a "happenstance," of course, that Empress Eugenie's influence was felt strongly in the fashion world then, even as it is felt now. And descriptions of costumes seen at the opening in 1893 don't sound entirely incongruous today. For instance: "Black satin made up after the Empire idea with a black lace bertha and black lace on the skirt." Well, we see black satin evening gowns in all the smartest places, don't we—'n' If they're very smart the chances are that they have shoulders covered by some sort of a lace bertha arrangement, and a black lace bustle-modification on the skirt! Another costume spoken of was "steel blue silk with a Watteau train." And about a week ago, if you remember, I illustrated an ice-blue flat crape gown from one of Paris' important couturiers, whose chief claim to chic lay in its draped, Watteau train!

• • • •

Two or tree colors are being extensively used to brighten up or accent winter daytime frocks—for which most of us are glad, loving color as we do! The wide shouldered frock from Martial et Armand, which I sketched for you today, is an example of this multi-colored idea. The frock itself is of bright green wool crepe, opening over a white satin gilet which, in turn, becomes a small collar. This white satin is used in a novel cuff arrangement, which is given further interest by the addition of black satin cire ribbon. There's a black cire belt, too, with a pocket at one side that fastens over it with a silver ornament. And though you can't see it in my sketch, there's a piquant chevron incrustation on the back of the bodice, right above the belt.

• • • •

Don't be afraid of brilliant contrasts, my deahs, if you go in for other than monotone effects. For the brighter the stunninger, if you see what I mean!

• • • •

'N' The blouse I illustrate today shows three very new touches—the higher neckline, the tongue-and-eyelet fastening, and its own snugly fastened belt!

• • • •

"Cross my palms with..." a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and you will take a long sea voyage! Yes, the leaflet entitled "A Gangplank Romance" will bring a sea voyage under the Southern Cross to each and every one of you, and tell you what to wear and where, what to take in the way of baggage, what to tip, and a lot of other things I promise you you would have to read tons and tons of things to find out—if you did then! Send your envelope to the Dare Department of the Post—you know.

Au revoir!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE CHOICE OF A DECLARATION.

BY correct use of the Approach principle, partners are assured of reaching the best eventual declaration in the combined hands, whether that declaration is notrump or a suit.

The Opening bid of a notrump implies the same minimum of honor-tricks, but denies the possession of a biddable suit. Thus the Responding Hand is immediately able to draw the inference that when notrump is the opening declaration, the Opening Hand did not contain a biddable suit for the reason that those who use the Culbertson (Approach-Forcing) System of bidding always declare a biddable suit, even a four-card minor, in preference to the less illuminating notrump declaration.

The Approach principle does not decrease the number of safe notrump contracts eventually reached. However, it is an insurance against playing a hand at notrump, which should be played at a suit, as today's hand aptly illustrates.

Neither side vulnerable.

South—Dealer.

	♠ A K 8 4 ♡ A ◇ J 7 5 2 ♣ A 8 5 2
♠ Q 9 2 ♡ 8 6 5 ◇ 9 8 4 ♣ K J 10 3	N W E S	♠ 10 6 ♡ J 10 9 3 2 ◇ Q 10 6 2 ♣ 6 4
	♠ J 7 5 3 ♡ K Q 7 4 ◇ A K ♣ Q 9 7

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs).

South	West	North	East
1NT(1)	Pass	3♠(2)	Pass
5♠(3)	Pass	6♠(4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—No biddable suit here.

2—A Forcing Takeout, justified by the 4 honor-tricks, as well as the 4-4-4-1 distribution.

3—The Opening Hand, holding one full honor-trick above the requirements for his Opening bid and adequate support for the spade suit, somewhat optimistically asks his partner to bid for Slam if his hand contains anything more than required for his Forcing Takeout.

4—North does hold one additional honor-trick, although his decision to bid for Slam is questionable.

Before entering into a detailed discussion of the play, it might be well to point out how much better the hand plays at spades than at notrump. If South played a notrump contract, West would open from either his worthless heart or diamond holding, and while South would score game, a Slam would be impossible against even mediocre defense.

When Dummy went down North saw that he had undertaken a contract which would require the most precise play to fulfill. He knew nothing of the distribution of the adverse trumps, of which there were five outstanding with one probable winner. The club situation also was far from satisfactory, as only two of his losing clubs could be discarded on Dummy's hearts. North, however, made the only play to give him a chance to make his contract and that was by the elimination of the two red suits from his own and the Dummy hand and then the use of a small trump as an exit card.

The Opening lead was the Knave of hearts, which was won by the Declarer with the Ace. Two rounds of diamonds were then taken, and the Declarer returned to his own hand with the King of spades. A diamond was then ruffed in Dummy and the King and Queen of hearts led, upon which the declarer discarded two losing clubs. He returned to his own hand with the Ace of spades to lead the last diamond to the Dummy. Both opponents had followed to both rounds of spades, so the only trump outstanding was the Queen. Now Dummy's last heart was led and trumped by the Declarer, who used his last trump to throw West in the lead on the eleventh trick.

West had nothing left in his hand except clubs, North's careful play having accomplished the desired end. The last two tricks were won by the Ace and Queen of clubs.

Failure to eliminate the red suits from both the closed and Dummy hands and the use of the last trump to throw the lead would have resulted in the defeat of the contract. Accurate bidding determines the best eventual contract; accurate play is frequently necessary to the fulfillment of that contract.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What is needed to score three notrump?

Answer: Honor-trick strength in the combined hands to total 5½ honor-tricks.

Beige Weasel

The Charm of Light Furs

Especially becoming to a brunette or a golden blonde, light fur is also a foremost fashion. We have sketched a stunning beige weasel, made of carefully selected narrow skins that give the important slim diagonal effect . . . with a shawl collar and flare cuffs.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

EPIDEMIC RHEUMATISM.

THERE is a growing tendency for physicians with large experience to regard acute rheumatic fever as a contagious disease. By "acute rheumatic fever" they mean old-fashioned inflammatory rheumatism. By "contagious" they mean that it is about as catching as consumption, but not that it is as communicable as measles and smallpox.

Drs. J. R. Paul and R. Salinger, who made extensive investigations in New Haven, came to the conclusion that when the infection got into a family living in the same house it tended to spread to other members of the household. Some of them had secondary cases of rheumatic fever, but more of them developed kindred disorders such as sore throats, tonsilitis, bronchitis, broncho-pneumonia, or rheumatoid arthritis. Without taking these disorders into consideration it was not so easy to prove a resemblance between rheumatic fever and other communicable disorders. A certain support of the theory of communicability was given by the tendency of "rheumatics" to have waves in which rheumatic joints were better.

The age of greatest susceptibility to rheumatic fever was 5 to 12 years, and the year of greatest susceptibility was age 7. Of those in the household with a case of rheumatic fever, somewhere between one-third and more than one-half would develop either rheumatism or some of the related infections as a result of the exposure.

There is need to go back of the returns in a study such as that made by Drs. Paul and Salinger. Weather is very much of a factor in causing rheumatism. All the members of a household are subjected to the same weather. Season is a factor. Housing has much to do with rheumatism and all the family are subjected to that influence. Diet may have something to do with it. In this study, an effort was made to allow for these angles.

If acute rheumatic fever is to be regarded as a mildly contagious disease it is in order to separate those who have it from others. Especially should children be kept away from people with acute rheumatic fever. Not only are they very susceptible to it but rheumatism in a child may result in heart disease, St. Vitus' dance, or some other cause of children's invalidism.

USE OF PSYLLIUM.

A. T. S. writes:

1. In the treatment of constipation has psyllium seed any distinct advantage over other remedies?

2. Can it be used with any degree of safety by any one?

REPLY.

1. It is about on a par with flaxseed, though somewhat superior.

2. Yes.

LEAKING HEART.

A. P. writes: Has a person with a leaking heart valve any chance of being restored to health and of being able to work?

REPLY.

Most people with leaking heart valves are in good health and are able to work.

A great many who have had breaks in compensation that has disabled them from work have been able to build up compensation until they were able to go back to work.

WINES AND DIGESTION.

Mrs. S. M. writes: What harm and what good effects does drinking wine have? What effect on the blood?

REPLY.

It does no good and it may do harm. Drinking wine does not make blood. The claims that wine drinking promotes digestion and that certain wines help digest certain foods such claims are pure bunk.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:35 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7:45 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m.

No outstanding events can be foretold for December 2, and a depressing atmosphere will prevail. It would be well to remember that every "today well lived makes yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope." Something good, something interesting, something lasting, can be carved out of the material at hand.

The child born on this December 2 will develop slowly, but although a lap behind those of its own age during its early years, it will eventually pass most of its associates. A retentive memory, a plodding spirit and a happy disposition are its principal assets. No little success is shown.

Born on December 2, the pictures of what you could be and do, and what you are and have done are quite different. Your precocious tendencies as a child augured well for your future, and the world expected you to fill no mediocre place. With proper application and time, you could have fitted yourself to become a master of your trade or profession. As it is, however, you indifferently accept a much inferior role. Because of the easiness with which you learn, you never properly apply yourself, and your knowledge is of a superficial nature. You are a very intelligent being, but not an intellectual one. You are not mentally ambitious.

You want to be on the move, to see things and to go places. To satisfy this desire, sacrifices have to be made. You are always making new friends and ties, and your material prospects are always of an uncertain quantity. You can not really succeed unless you are willing to "stay put."

You are thoroughly good company and are almost universally liked. You create wonderful first impressions and breed a confidence which is not always merited. You always intend to make good, but lack the patience and staying qualities to always do so. You are a great success with children and they adore you.

Successful people born Decemebr 2:

John Breckenridge, Kentucky statesman.

Mary Mortimer, educator.

Franklin L. Pope, electrician.

Paul Shearer Althouse, operatic tenor.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

DASH AND CHIC.

The interesting feature of this tweed-like woolen is the quaint basque bodice effect. The front buttoned closing gives it lots of snap. The neckline is youthfully becoming.

You'll love the skirt with its smoothly fitted hips, that gores its circular lower part.

It's a dress that is exceedingly popular with the school and college girl.

Style No. 976 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. The 36-inch size requires 5⅛ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 39-inch contrasting and 3½ yards of binding.

Vivid green sheer woolen in monotone diagonal weave is very smart.

In black velvet with self-fabric belt it is as pretty as can be with lace collar and cuffs and rhinestone ball buttons for more dressy occasions.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

WINDOW GARDENING EQUIPMENT

THERE are very few tools which one needs for successful window gardening, though there are several appliances which will lighten the task of caring for a half-dozen house plants.

Among the newer devices are the ornamental iron brackets, which may be fastened to the walls of a sun porch or to the casement of a window. These holders are designed along pleasing lines and hold one, two or three pots. When filled with a potted trailing vine, such as the old-fashioned anthericum (spider plant) or English ivy, they are very attractive. They are especially useful for apartments, where space is usually limited.

Every gardener, irrespective of the kind of gardening he may be doing, should own a budding knife. Such an implement is invaluable for making cuttings. It must be so cared for that it is always sharp, with a keen edge so that it will make a clean cut.

All plant owners must of necessity keep a few flower pots in stock. These should have thick sides which are well baked. It is a poor economy to purchase cheap pots, which are usually so thin that the slightest jar will cause them to crack or break. Some of the newer pots have five holes in the bottom. These have been designed to improve the drainage.

If you live in an apartment or in a house where your garden soil is poor and you wish to repot a plant or two, it is wiser to purchase potting soil from a nearby florist than to attempt to mix it yourself. Be sure, however, to tell your dealer the variety of plant you are going to transplant.

Sphagnum moss is something a great many gardeners know nothing about, yet every plant owner should keep it on hand. It costs only a few cents a pound and takes up little room. It is useful for a great variety of purposes. It is always well to place sphagnum moss over the broken cracks in the bottom of a pot to keep the soil from draining down and clogging up the holes in the bottom of the pot. It is also useful for bandaging the incision when a rubber plant is being slipped. Dried moss, finely sifted, is used to cover the soil in a seed flat where fine seeds like tuberous-rooted begonias or gloxinias are germinating.

A very handy, soft rubber bulb syringe may be purchased in any seed store. Such a sprayer insures an even distribution of water at all times. It may also be used to distribute nicotine solution or other insecticide. With one of these syringes it is possible to direct the liquid so that it reaches the undersides of the leaves, which is the favorite haunt of such insects as the red spider and mealy bug.

Any of the above-mentioned tools or accessories are practical and none of them is prohibitive in price.

DECEMBER 2, 1906.

It is freely predicted that the only legislation that will be passed in the short session of Congress which opens tomorrow will be the appropriation bill and, perhaps, a few rather insignificant pieces of general legislation.

Vice President Fairbanks and a score of high Government officials yesterday attended the funeral of Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railroad. All trains on the Southern stopped for five minutes during the services.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD PUSHES CABLE WORK

Electrifying to Washington Advances Another Step in Finishing New Span.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Plans for electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad line into Washington advanced another step yesterday, when the last span of cable was strung by the Pennsylvania Water & Power Co., on the first of the high voltage lines connecting the new $30,000,000 hydroelectric development at Safe Harbor, Pa., with the system of the Consolidated Gas Electric Light & Power Co. of Baltimore.

The new line extends for 70 miles through York County, Pa., and through Baltimore, Howard and Anne Arundel Counties, Md. Its completion is in preparation for the delivery of power from Safe Harbor, which will be in service this winter.

Power from the river will be delivered at 220,000 volts. The new line circles Baltimore to the west before conecting with the system of the consolidated company with which the Pennsylvania Railroad has contracted for power for all of its electrification requirements on its line between the Susquehanna crossing through Baltimore to Washington. The railroad will be supplied from a substation to be built between Baltimore and Washington.

Substation at Perryville.

The second of the railroad's substations will be located at Perryville, Md. A transmission line carrying power at 132,000 volts will be built from Safe Harbor to Perryville. Safe Harbor will shortly be interconnected with the power development of the Pennsylvania Water & Power Co. at Holtwood. Transmission lines from this plant connect with Baltimore and the new supply will be in addition to Holtwood.

As many as 4,000 men have been at work at Safe Harbor and on the transmission lines. The amount to be expended for wages alone during the construction of the new Aldred enterprise is in excess of $9,000,000.

While a number of relatively small finance organizations have experienced difficulty in collections as well as a drastic curtailment in the volume of new business, the leading units in the field have been signally successful in weathering the difficulties of 1930 and 1931, says the Standard Statistics Co., New York, in a current survey which continues in part:

Experience of Firms.

"In the experience of the larger credit firms, liquidation of receivables, in fact, has proceeded virtually according to schedule, despite the impairment of public buying power during this critical period.

"Reports issued by the larger units have demonstrated convincingly the high liquidity of receivables. Moreover, the continuous liquidation of instalment paper and the gradually falling volume of new business contracted during this time has resulted in the accumulation of large amounts of cash. Under such circumstances companies have repurchased or called for redemption substantial quantities of their debentures, preferred stocks and other obligations, at prices materially below their original offering basis. Through such means these companies have been able to preserve a relatively satisfactory level of earnings on their junior securities, despite the shrinkage of gross revenues.

"Installment credit transactions have recorded a substantial decline in volume this year, reflecting the lack of purchasing power on the part of the general public. An excellent measure of the extent of such declines may be observed in the figures covering motor car financing, since the automobile represents the most important single item sold on the deferred-payment plan. Data compiled by the United States Department of Commerce shows the total amount of retail motor car financing handled by the 402 reporting organizations. In the first nine months of 1931 such retail financing amounted to only $791,064,234, in contrast with $994,656,068 during the corresponding period of 1930, a shrinkage of 20.5 per cent."

In recognition of 25 years' faithful service, Assistant Cashier Henry H. Shackleford, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., has been presented with a gold watch by the board of directors.

District Commissioner Herbert S. Crosby and Supt. Pelham D. Glassford, of the Metropolitan Police Department, will be guests of honor at the weekly luncheon of the District of Columbia Bankers Association today.

Carroll Morgan, a comanager of the Washington office of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., has returned from a visit at Hot Springs, Va.

Copper Producers Called to Parley

"Serious Situation" of Industry Will Be Discussed.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Vandenberg said yesterday a conference of copper producers would be held here Friday to consider the "serious situation" of the industry in view of competition from African mines.

The Michigan Republican said the conference had been called at the request of the producers as represented by Albert Petermann, Calumet, Mich., attorney for several large copper producers. He added that he did not know definitely what producers would attend the conference but said Michigan, Arizona and Montana—leading copper producing States—undoubtedly would be represented.

Senator Vandenberg said "the question is whether a way can be found to meet the emergency without precipitating a general revision of the tariff which is impossible." There has been some discussion recently in domestic copper circles of seeking an embargo on the African copper under the "forced labor" provision of the tariff law.

O'Brien Assumes Post As Tariff Board Head

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, of Dedham, Mass., was sworn in yesterday as the new chairman of the tariff commission.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Lawrence W. Moore, administration officer of the commission.

Mr. O'Brien succeeds Henry P. Fletcher, who resigned some time ago. He is a journalist and publisher and took up his duties immediately after being sworn in.

NAVAL COMMITTEE HEADS TALK PLANS

Hale Lays Building Program Before Britten and Vinson of House.

(Associated Press.)

Congressional advocates of a Navy as big as treaties allow dug their oars in a little deeper yesterday in a conference over a program they will present to Secretary Adams.

The major point involved is included in a bill by Chairman Hale of the Senate naval affairs committee. He talked over the program at luncheon with Representative Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, who likely will be chairman of the House naval committee, and Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, who headed the committee last session.

The Hale bill, which he intends now to introduce as soon as Congress meets, would be a blanket authorization of all construction necessary to bring the fleet up to treaty limits.

One stipulation, however, is that the Secretary of the Navy must request the necessary funds annually. Hale's bill, being only an authorization measure, would actually give no money to the Navy.

To Give President Final Say.

The third proposition in the pending proposal is that the President be authorized to stop construction at any time future treaties might reduce the limits.

It was this point to which there were objections. Big Navy men contend President Hoover's attitude has been to delay construction for psychological purposes, hoping to aid treaty discussions, while the Navy has dropped behind those of other leading powers. Then, too, there was a question as to whether the House, which likely will be controlled by the Democrats, would be willing to give that much power to a Republican President.

No binding agreement was reached at yesterday's meeting. It was decided, however, that Vinson and Britten will discuss the program and the question with Secretary Adams today.

Akron Flaws Studied.

The three men already have insisted the Navy's size should be increased. The Hale bill, though, is the first proposal for a blanket authorization without naming the ship to be built. It would give the Navy the power to build vessels in the order it chooses, a factor which some Navy officers consider desirable.

It developed yesterday that the House committee, at least, will consider reported flaws in the new airship Akron. The Navy says it is 20,000 to 22,000 pounds overweight and that its maximum speed is four miles an hour less than expected.

Vinson, Britten and Representative McClintic (Democrat), of Oklahoma, have not agreed as to whether the Akron should be worked over or whether the flaws merely should be studied to prevent repetition in the building of the ZRS-5.

That point will be decided after they determine to their satisfaction the nature of things that are wrong with the Akron.

Collins Is Chosen Senate Press Chief

New Superintendent to Begin Thirty-sixth Year in Service at Capitol.

(Associated Press.)

A genial little Irishman, who has been bustling around the Capitol for 35 years, is the new superintendent of the Senate press gallery.

William J. Collins was chosen yesterday by the scribes to fill the shoes of Jim Preston, who has resigned after 34 years of service to become librarian of the Senate.

Like Preston, the new chief of the gallery was born here. As a boy of 15 he ran copy from both Houses of Congress to the offices of a local newspaper, later serving as office boy for the old New York World.

Collins first went on the Government pay roll back in 1909, as superintendent of a press room at the Senate Office Building, during the Payne-Aldrich tariff hearings. He liked Uncle Sam as an employer so well that he has been in his service ever since.

RESERVE BOARD AID ON REICH DEBT AIM

Aid in Solving Problem of Private Obligations Is Suggested.

(Associated Press.)

Renewed discussion of the enormous German debts to American bankers has developed the suggestion that the Federal Reserve Board cooperate directly in seeking a solution.

American officials are not ready to say whether they would accept such a proposal. They are in close touch with the situation, however, and are much interested.

Recently a private committee of American bankers was formed to inquire into these debts, which are entirely separate from the reparations Germany owes to various foreign governments. With the reparations problem the American Government has no connection, as Germany owes no reparations here. Participation by the reserve board in the bankers' committee, however, would establish a direct Government contact with the effort to settle the private debts.

It has been suggested in some quarters that Eugene Meyer, governor of the reserve board, accept membership on the committee. Dr. Mueller, director of the Frankfurt-on-Main branch of the Reichsbank, is in this country, and it is believed he may sound out Meyer. Meantime, neither Meyer nor any other American official will discuss the subject.

News dispatches have indicated a definite agreement for funding the German debts so private bankers in this and other countries might greatly facilitate a new reparations deal. Some German officials have cited these debts as evidence of inability to meet reparations payments, and others have cited the reparations burden as evidence of inability to meet the private debts.

Some American bankers feel that nothing can be gained by indefinitely balancing one of these obligations off against the other, and that a debts understanding might well be the first step toward complete adjustment.

Norris to Reintroduce Labor Injunction Bill

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Norris of the Senate judiciary committee will reintroduce his bill to curb the use of injunctions in labor disputes in the form approved by a subcommittee in the last Congress. Norris talked yesterday afternoon with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Donald R. Richberg, Chicago attorney, in connection with the measure.

Maj. Gen. Brown Will Probe Mississippi Slaving Charge

Collier, House Member, Believes Transfer of Work by Government Contractors Caused All the Trouble; No Protests Received by War Department.

(Associated Press.)

The War Department last night awaited information on charges that the lash and pistol butt are wielded frequently in Southern levee camps.

Meantime, it was told that its chief of Army engineers had already promised to look into labor conditions around Vicksburg.

This word came from Representative Collier, of Mississippi, who said that Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown had promised him he would investigate protests from the Vicksburg area.

Collier talked with Gen. Brown last Friday, just before the latter left for a tour of inspection along the river.

At that time neither had heard of charges by Thomas E. Carroll and Holt Ross, American Federation of Labor representatives, that systematic brutality was being practiced by contractors in the construction camps.

The Mississippi representative said the engineer chief promised to investigate protests from Vicksburg because the working force in Government shops in the area had been drastically reduced.

Collier said he had no reports that Negro workers were being held in the camps in a virtual state of peonage, as was charged by Carroll and Ross.

He said, however, he informed Gen. Brown that many workers in the camps were being required to labor twelve hours daily and six days a week at low pay.

The Mississippi representative said the trouble arose because levee maintenance and construction work had been transferred by the Government to contractors.

He added that he felt this was reasonable for the dismissal of about 700 highly specialized workers who had been employed in the shops in the Vicksburg area.

Brig. Gen. Pillsbury, acting chief of engineers, has informed his chief, who is somewhere in Mississippi, of the charges made by the federation representatives.

The department here had received no protests and no word other than press reports. Officials said such charges are referred to the engineer in whose district they are reported and he is instructed to investigate thoroughly.

RULING IS REVERSED ON LOAN SHARK LAW

District Code Applicable Only to Personal Property, Court Holds.

The District "loan shark" law is applicable only to loans made with personal property as the security, the District Court of Appeals held yesterday in reversing an order of the District Supreme Court.

The court's affirmative finding was that Wilmer D. Zirkle, a lawyer, who had loaned some money on a second deed of trust, was entitled to sue for the amount due as a result of a deficit sustained by him when the proceeds of the sale of the property were credited to the note and found wanting.

The charge was made that Zirkle had charged usurious rates, and the lower court instructed the jury that if they believed the contention of the defendant that Zirkle had charged usurious rates for the loan, the jury should deduct all interest payments from the face of the note, and also take one-fourth of the face value of the note, as is provided in violations of the loan shark law. The jury did that and Zirkle appealed.

The appellate court found that he had only charged a legal rate of interest, and that in addition the loan shark law dealt with personal property on which $200 or less had been loaned. Real estate loans will not, therefore, come within the provisions of the law, it was decided. Attorney P. H. Marshall appeared for Zirkle.

Paul Mellon Enters Bank at Pittsburgh

Father Escorts Youth to Family Institution to Take Up Work.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Paul Mellon, son of the Secretary of the Treasury, got his first lesson in banking here today.

Young Mellon, Yale graduate and Cambridge man, once had aspirations to pursue a newspaper career but what caused him to change his mind probably will remain a secret with the Mellon family.

The newest addition to the Mellon banking business was escorted into the Mellon National Bank by his father, who came home for a few days to attend to private business matters. Secretary Mellon's brother, Richard B. Mellon, is president of the institution. Paul Mellon was asked what his duties would be and he replied he was "going to work to learn the banking business."

Harlan Union Officer Denies Slaying Plot

Mount Sterling, Ky., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—General denials of prosecution charges that W. B. Jones, Harlan County mine union officer, had "coolly planned" the fight in which four men were killed last May 5, near Evarts, Ky., were made by defense witnesses today at Jones' trial on a charge of murder and conspiracy.

The principal witness was the defendant himself. He denied previous accusations by State's witnesses that he conceived a plot to kill Deputy Sheriff Jim Daniels, one of the four men slain, and insisted that he had never urged the miners to resort to violence to gain their ends. Instead, he tetsified, he advocated peaceful methods.

Canada Proposes Waterways Plan

Engineers to Study Project for Develoment of St. Lwrence.

(Associated Press.)

A new plan for development of the St. Lawrence waterway, modifying a previous proposal for a two-stage project has been suggested by Canada to the United States.

The suggestion was made informally in negotiations looking toward a treaty to permit development of the proposed seaway. It adheres to Canada's previous contention there should be two dams in the international section of the waterway, but would provide for the building of one of them at Crysler Island instead of Ogden Island. The other dam, as the previous plan contemplated, would be at Barnhardt Island.

The joint board of engineers will consider the suggestion at its meeting now expected to take place this week. The engineering board will meet to insure agreement upon the general form of engineering developments. The meeting place has not been decided upon but may be in Buffalo, N. Y., or Toronto, Canada.

Obliging Mint Makes Gold Coin to Aid Santa

(Associated Press.)

To aid Santa Claus, the mints of the United States turned out $22,000,000 in gold coins in the last month. It was calculated yesterday that 1,100,000 double eagles worth $20 each were minted in the 30 days. In the previous month only 650 were coined.

Every year just before Christmas the mint increases its production of double eagles to meet the demand for these as presents during the holiday season.

MRS. HOOVER HEARS KREISLER'S CONCERT

Joins in Ovation Accorded Master Violinist at Constitution Hall.

Fritz Kreisler, the incomparable magician of the bow and master of melody, added even to his own great reputation as a violinist yesterday in a concert at Constitution Hall, which drew a capacity audience headed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover and a party of guests in the presidential box. From Mrs. Hoover to the youngest awed listener spontaneous applause after each number showed how deeply they had been stirred by the beautiful playing of the artist. The concert was given under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

To attempt to dissect a Kreisler program is like tearing a rose apart. The critic will be contented with expressing appreciation of the master's marvelous bowing ability, his sure artistry, exquisite shades of phrasing and the golden, mellow, unforgettable tone he wins from his complacent instrument.

Other facets of Mr. Kreisler's virtuosity might be noted in passing, such as the dainty harmonics meticulously produced, the double stopping measures in themselves a lesson in violin playing to every performer present, and the absolute pitch of each and every note. But why gild the lily!

Indepent of Aid.

The piece de resistance of the afternoon, musically speaking, was Haendel's Sonata in D Major with its four entrancing movements, although the Mozart Concerto No. 3 in G Major pushed it hard for first honors in the afternoon's program.

In the Mozart Concerto the audience was enthralled by the "Adagio" movement with its witchery of legato tones and its recurring theme with its haunting quality that was music's own soul.

Bach's "Sarbande and Gigue" played, of course, without accompaniment, demonstrated anew how independent Kreisler is of any aid. This fact, however, should not diminish the praise due to his skilled accompanist, Carl Lamson, who has been heard before with Kreisler.

Two Modern Composers.

The enthusiasm of the audience was increased immeasurably by the "Gipsy Caprice" one of Kreisler's own compositions, which has gained him renown as a composer. Another Kreisler number was a tango, "Albeniz."

Two modern composers were represented on his program in Debussy's "La Fille au Cheveux de Lin" and Rachmaninoff's two melodies for the violin. Generously responding with encores the audience was so delighted with the Londonderry air that Kreisler had to repeat the encore.

At the conclusion of the program the audience just waited for the encores they felt might be forthcoming out of the artist's generosity. Four encores were played and still the audience, like Oliver Twist, asked for "more." But Kreisler pointed to his worn wrists and smilingly shook his head, and another Kreisler red letter concert passed into Washington's musical history.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

IT is Mr. Hubbard Keavy again who advises by wire that the indications that the stars of the cinematic firmament will be asked to take less money for their services came to a head on Monday in Hollywood, where the major producers of the motion picture industry have for several days been in ominous conference behind closed doors, wrestling with the economic problems that confront them.

Acting as bellwether, Warner Brothers-First National notified their contract players, according to Mr. Keavy, that they would be asked to agree to salary cuts ranging from 20 to 30 per cent.

These joint studios have on their rosters such high-salaried stars as Richard Barthelmess, George Arliss, Dorothy Mackaill, William Powell, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Bebe Daniels, Edward G. Robinson, Ruth Chatterton, Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner. The weekly stipends of these artists soar to a high of some $7,500, or possibly more.

All other nonunion and noncontract employees of the studios received notice that the reductions would be effective this week. A warning accompanied the verbal notification at Warners-First National, Mr. Keavy is informed, to the effect that players who refuse to agree to the requested reductions probably will be dropped from the companies' rolls when their present contracts expire.

In other studios, notably Fox and the recently merged RKO-Radio-Pathe, many artists, writers and directors have been asked to help alleviate their organizations' financial condition.

At Paramount there were rumors early in the week of anticipated slashes in most departments, but no reductions have as yet been made.

Despite all of this hullabaloo about expenses, it is the understanding that production schedules for the year will not be curtailed—at least to any great extent.

Another meeting of the Hollywood producers and the New York executives of their companies is slated for some day this week, with Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, presiding.

Guthrie McClintic announces the return to the stage of Pauline Lord in "Distant Drums," by Dan Totheroh, a new play which will go into rehearsal this week. Miss Lord has been absent from the theater for two seasons, her last appearance having been as Nina Leeds in Eugene O'Neil's "Strange Interlude." Arthur Hohl and Beulah Bondi have important roles in support of Miss Lord.

The play will open on or about the 28th of the current month and be presented on Broadway early in January.

The scene of "Distant Drums" is the old Oregon trail, in the Snake Indian country, in the year 1848. It is said to have a singularly interesting part for Pauline Lord.

This will be Mr. McClintic's second production of the season, "Brief Moment," now safely ensconced in the Belasco Theater, New York, having been his first. He will personally stage the play.

After all is said and done, the best of the long line of "Follies" was the first production in the series, back in 1907.

There was more originality, more daring, more verve and more beauty and spontaneous humor in that memorable creation than in any that have followed, and I say this having in mind the many superiorities of many that have come since—notably the comparatively recent edition that outran Will Rogers' verbal Broadway-run-of-play contract and compelled him to talk himself out of the cast at the end of the summer so that he could fulfill movie engagements that couldn't wait. This particular "Follies" ran something like 63 weeks at the New Amsterdam Theater in New York. And I still say the "Follies of 1907" was the best one.

Florenz Ziegfeld very possibly thinks so, too, for he has reverted in the twenty-third issue, now at the National, to one of the "surprises" of the 1907 and many subsequent editions, i. e., having a part of the company work out in the audience.

To open and close the first act, the lusty-lunged male double sextet is split up and sings from the aisles on either side of the proscenium, immediately under the stage boxes. It is still effective.

And the "Buckingham Palace" scene, one of the most applauded in the two acts, presents merely a magnification of the drill routine that has been prevalent on the burlesque circuits ever since the days of "The Black Crook" and "The March of the Amazons"—except, of course, that the sapient Dr. Ziegfeld uses 60 beautiful damosels instead of a Percheron ballet of 16 heavy-hipped truck horses!

Certainly nothing has happened to the Ziegfeld eye for beauty, color and pulchritude, but I am not sure that as much can be said of his imagination. The "Ziegfeld Follies of 1931" blaze no new trails, and that is a most extraordinary circumstance!

Reverting briefly to Guthrie McClintic, let's talk about Irene Rich!

Irene Rich, movie star, saw her daughter, Frances, upon the stage for the first time when she attended the matinee performance last Saturday of Francine Larrimore in "Brief Moment" at the Belasco Theater, New York. Frances Rich is making her stage debut in this play, as Kathryn Deane, the only feminine role besides Miss Larrimore's in the cast. At the time of the play's opening, on November 9, Irene Rich was engaged upon a picture in Hollywood and could only express her hopes, anxiety and encouragement by telegrams.

Guthrie McClintic, who produced and staged "Brief Moment," had rehearsed Frances and a few members of the company Saturday morning, giving Frances three new lines to be inserted at the matinee. When Irene Rich came early to the theater before the matinee, daughter begged her to wait out in front in the empty house because she was so nervous in the face of her mother's impending judgment that she could not go over the new lines with her mother in the dressing room.

After the performance, Irene Rich expressed herself as eminently satisfied with Frances' performance.

The boys in the film exchange field are shifting around again.

Bob Smeltzer—"Robert" to you, since you have on your gloves—one of the veteran exchange men of the District, has been appointed division manager for Warner Brothers-First National Pictures in this territory, turning over the Pathe Exchange, of which he was formerly in charge, to Frank McNamee, who assumes the added duties occasioned by the RKO-Radio-Pathe consolidation.

Ralph Binns, formerly Warner Brothers' local manager, but more recently resident in Philadelphia, returns to Washington to assume the managership of the Warner Brothers-First National local branch exchange.

There may be even more changes than these; some of the boys haven't opened their mail yet!

And did the weather man make a monkey out of yesterday's last line!

UTILITIES BOARD AID ON TELETYPE IS AIM

May Be Drawn Into Row of Telegraph Firms and A. T. & T.

A local as well as a national battle between the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Cos. threatens to draw the Public Utilities Commission into the war as an arbiter.

The telegraph companies are understood to be eager to have the commission hold a public hearing on the teletype service just announced by the Chseapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. A schedule of rates to be charged in the District has been filed with the utilities body, but so far no action has been taken.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride has been asked to rule on the legal issues involved. Whether he will advise the commission to hold a hearing is not known.

Because of the threat that the teletype service offers to the telegraph companies, the problem is proving difficult for the commission. The service, once established, might take much of the lucrative business now carried by the telegraph lines, as the rates are said to undersell the wire companies if communications are conducted on a large scale.

U. S. Vessel Collides With British Steamer

London, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The United States steamer American Trader, bound from New York to London, collided with the British cargo steamer Manora in the Thames below Gravesend today. Both steamers docked. The Trader's passengers were uninjured.

Three More Boys Victims of Guns

List of School Children Shot Near Chicago Is Increased.

Chicago, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Three names were added tonight to the list of school children shooting scrape victims in this region.

Fay Staser, 17, a high school student, was found seriously wounded at Lyons, Ind. He reported he had been shot by an unidentified assailant and told a story of having received a series of threatening letters. At Crown Point, Ind., an investigation was pressed into the slaying of Harold Seymour, 12. Wilbur Sherman, 12, was accused of shooting the lad to death because he threw stones at the Sherman home. Donald Raney, 15, was wounded in the hand at Joliet when a pistol a companion brought to school exploded in his hands.

A Chicago coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in the fatal shooting of Constance Trohatos, 15, by her school chum, Joseph Wilson, 16. Wilson was attempting to show the girl how their friend, Henry Sio, 16, had shot to death 12-year-old Ruth Wicklund and then committed suicide earlier in the day.

MACHADO AND FOES SEEK PEACE IN CUBA

agitation from the dissident elements of the country, May 20, 1929.

The opposition to the regime of Gen. Machado has ranged all the way from the fiery adherents of communism to the ultraconservative elements. Senor de la Torriente, who was the first delegate of Cuba to the League of Nations and who formerly served as Cuban Ambassador to the United States, has been regarded as the logical leader of the opposition because of the esteem which he universally enjoys and because of his desire to see the dissension in Cuba eliminated.

In this respect he has been following the policy of tolerance of Cuban Ambassador Ferrara, who has endeavored to work for the interests of Cuba as a political entity. The Cuban Ambassador to Mexico, Marques Sterling, who is regarded as one of the outstanding journalists in Latin America, has been quietly carrying on the work of conciliation while he has been staying here in Washington. Ambassador Sterling has not been at his post in Mexico City for the past six weeks, as he has been in frequent conference here with the embassy and with the liaison officers of the erstwhile revolutionary elements.

Cuba's internal political uneasiness has been aggravated by the world-wide depression which was acutely felt in Havana by the drop in the price of sugar. Thomas L. Chadbourne, delegate to the American bankers, worked out a general plan of distribution of sugar throughout the world in Brussels and in Berlin which was destined to help chiefly the Cuban market. The full results of this program have not yet been felt adequately enough to remove the specter of economic distress from the Cuban government.

The financing program of President Machado had consequently been faced with some embarrassment and the trip of Cuban Ambassador Ferrara to New York is said to have to do with the extension of the $20,000,000 loan from the Chase National Bank, of New York, which was extended for 60 days from November 14.

A report was circulated last month, but subsequently denied, that Cuba was seeking a long-term consolidation loan of $100,000,000 which would call all her smaller short-term indebtedness and retire them in favor of the newer loan at more favorable terms. However, Ambassador Ferrara denied this, and the New York bankers consented to a renewal of the $20,000,000 loan at the same price.

It is believed here that if President Machado is able to conciliate the opposition elements of the country, the problem of financial relief will be very largely alleviated.

The Cuban Embassy announced that Ambassador Ferrara was in New York, but was expected to return tomorrow.

INSURANCE FOR IDLE IS URGED AT PARLEY

Research Bureau President Addresses Final Session on Unemployment.

"We have the greatest natural resources under development of any country in the world, we have mechanized our industry, developed our mass production and increased the productivity of our average worker beyond that found in any other country, yet the insecurity of our workers is increasing from year to year, and in many respects we are merely camp followers of the Western world," said Harry W. Laidler, director of the League for Industrial Democracy and president of the National Bureau of Economic Research, speaking last night at the closing session of the Conference on the Unemployment Program for Congress at the Hamilton Hotel.

"Ten countries of the world have compulsory systems of unemployment insurane covering about 45,000,000 workers, while eight other countries have systems of voluntary insurance," he continued. "Despite the criticisms of unemployment insurance systems in detail, the Balfour Commission in 1929 declared that 'in Great Britain the establishment of a practically universal system of unemployment insurance is one of the greatest advances in social amelioration made during the past century,' and in no country is there any thought of returning to the old, haphazard methods of relieving destitution due to unemployment. Yet in the United States no State has as yet passed any legislation looking toward unemployment insurance, while the various company schemes cover only about 1 per cent of the workers in the country."

Two Methods Cited.

The Rev. John A. Ryan, speaking on "Federal Responsibility for Unemployment," said, "The Federal Government can provide relief in two ways, through a program of public works to furnish employment and through direct appropriation of money to meet the needs of those who can not be employed on public works and who will not be provided for otherwise. The appropriation for public works ought to be very large, at least $5,000,000,000, to be financed through an issue of United States bonds.

"The appropriation for direct relief should be defrayed through increased surtaxes on the very large and the laregst incomes. This would be in accord with the second requirement of distributive justice, namely, that public burdens should be proportioned to the paying capacities of the citizens."

Program Is Indorsed.

The conference, which closed last night, adopted resolutions indorsing the entire program of the committee on unemployment, Federal relief, Federal subvention of unemployment insurance, public works, the short day and week, ending child labor, and old age pensions. It was decided to hold city conferences on the program, and to organize State committees throughout the Nation to carry out the program.

In reference to the hunger army now on its way to Washington, the conference adopted the following resolution: "We urge that the hunger marchers in Washington and all similar efforts of the unemployed and their representatives to present their requests for relief to Government officials in a lawful way, receive a hearing and full protection in the exercise of their fundamental constitutional rights."

Spain Boosts Pay Of Phone Workers

American-Owned Company Hit as Cabinet Backs New Contract.

Madrid, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The Spanish National Telephone Co., representing an American investment of $70,000,000, was seriously affected today when the cabinet granted support to a workers' contract drawn up under the supervision of the ministry of communications.

The contract provides for increases of 16,000,000 pesetas (about $1,280,000) to an annual pay roll of about 25,000,000 pesetas (about $2,000,000) for 7,000 employes. It also provides for removing control of the personnel from the company to a board of arbitration, made up of one official and two workmen, who would hold the final decision over all labor changes.

Company officials said that the government's action permits only two courses for the protection of their interests: An appeal for diplomatic intervention by the American Ambassador or to refuse to abide by the contract when it becomes effective, thus throwing the responsibility on the government.

Chaplin Pays Sum After Woman Sues

Withdraws His Defense on Heels of Criticism by London Judge.

London, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Charlie Chaplin played a courtroom role today, and didn't like it very well. The comedian, looking the part of complete gravity, gave a performance that failed to impress Judge Tobin. The judge, in fact, was pretty free with his criticism.

The upshot of the proceedings was that Chaplin paid £100 and costs to Miss May Shepherd, who claimed back pay for publicity and secretarial services in connection with his visit to England. He dropped his defense of the suit, he explained, because the names of prominent persons had been brought into it.

Yesterday Miss Shepherd's testimony that Chaplin ducked out of a dinner engagement with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and she had to write his letter of apology provoked the judge to remark, "This is going to do us a lot of good in foreign countries. Fancy how foreigners will laugh at us, and quite rightly too."

FATHER O'HARA PAID TRIBUTE BY PRIESTS

Bishop McNamara Praises Pastor at Service in Rockville.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

High tribute was paid to the work of the Rev. Charles R. O'Hara the pastor, by the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, in blessing last night the recently completed improvements of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Rockville, Md. Bishop McNamara declared that the congregation was fortunate in having so able a priest who has accomplished so much in his short two years' stay at the church and that the priest was eually as fortunate in having a congregation which cooperated so whole-heartedly.

The bishop commented briefly on the simple beauty of the little parish church, the oldest standing church in Montgomery County, Md., and remarked on the unusually large number of priests who had gathered to attend the services in token of their regard for the pastor and his work.

Father O'Hara welcomed the more than 40 priests and monsignori and gave a brief outline of the history of the church.

Father O'Hara said he believed the church was unique in that three of its pastors had become bishops and one of these an archbishop and four of its former pastors had been raised to the rank of monsignor.

The services began with a procession from the rectory to the church, in which the augmented choir, directed by Mrs. H. M. Blandy, sang. Arriving at the church, the guests were welcomed by Father O'Hara. Solemn high benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was celebrated by Bishop McNamara, who was assisted by the Rev. Charles O. Rosensteel, pastor of St. John's, Forest Glen, and a former pastor of the church, and the Rev. Michael J. Riordan, pastor of St. Martin's Church, Washington.

The Rev. William J. Clements, pastor of St. Katherine of Sienna Church, Baltimore, acted as deacon and the Rev. James J. O'Connor, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes of Bethesda, Md., as subdeacon. Father Clements is the only living priest native of Montgomery County.

Wilson reported collection of fines and costs totaling $95 for the month of November in Takoma Park. W. Ernest Offutt, county aid supervisor, presented his quarterly report.

The commissioners awarded the contract for construction of a storm sewer between Perry and Monroe streets in Rockville on the Peter property, heirs of which have agreed to dedicate the necessary right of way. The contract was awarded to the Warren F. Brenizer Co., of Washington, at a bid of $3,346.40.

The two county building inspectors, J. Fred Imirie and Martin F. Iverson, were instructed to assist the newly created board of county assessors in every way possible. The commissioners officially named the Montgomery County Social League as the agency to receive funds for unemployment relief in the county. The courthouse heating plant was approved by the Travelers Insurance Co., of Hartford, Conn., and the commissioners decide to carry liability insurance on the courthouse elevators. Delos H. Smith, architect, reported that except for a few minor details the work on the new courthouse has been completed.

College Is Granted Permit for Airport

William and Mary Is Held First to Include Air Training in Course.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The State Corporation Commission today granted the College of William and Mary, in Williamsburg, permission to open an airport. Courses in aeronautics which have been in operation since the opening of college in September add another priority to the Nation's second oldest college, President J. A. C. Chandler believes.

Although a number of colleges offer ground school training, Dr. Chandler believes that William and Mary College is the first to offer both ground school and flight as a part of the college curriculum.

The reason for asking a charter from the State, Dr. Chandler said, is because of the fact that the air school is not financed in part by the State of Virginia. The course has been self-supporting with the aid of a $5,000 gift made anonymously.

Fortnightly Club Scheduled.

ARRESTS FOR MONTH 405 IN ALEXANDRIA

158 Cases Involved Violation of Prohibition Laws; Fire Loss, $2,330.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

Capt. John S. Arnold, chief of police of Alexandria, has submitted the report of his department for November, showing 405 arrests, a decrease of 28 over October. Of this number 158 were for prohibition offenses.

Eighty-five of this number were arrested for being drunk on the streets; violating the prohibition law, 68, and operating an automobile while drunk, 5.

The city had 66 automobile accidents, and of this number 49 cases were settled out of court. Seventeen persons were injured, and one person was killed in an accident beyond the city limits, but the case was investigated by the local police department. Alexandria police also investigated one automobile case beyond the city limits.

Police headquarters furnished lodging for 193 white and 298 colored persons during the month.

The value of property reported lost or stolen amounted to $2,466, and the value of property recovered by the police totaled $2,270, leaving only $196 worth of stolen property unaccounted for. Also the Alexandria police recovered out-of-town property to the value of $1,550.

Four of eighteen petit larceny cases were cleared up, and seven out of eleven cases of garage and housebreaking cases also were cleared. Eight automobiles were reported stolen and all were recovered, besides the local police recovering five out-of-town cars.

The remainder of the cases covered a number of charges, from abusive language to manslaughter.

Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the corporation court, in the month of November collected for the State $673.33, from tax on deeds, wills, suits and marriage licenses. He also collected the sum of $2,168 from hunting licenses. This amount was for 574 county licenses; 437 State licenses, and 18 nonresident licenses.

The fire loss in the city the past month was $2,330, according to the report of Fire Chief James M. Duncan, with 18 local alarms, and 442 men responding to the alarms.

Man, Struck by Taxicab, Is in Serious Condition

William Smith, colored, of 529 Wilkes street, who was struck by an automobile Monday night, was reported at the Alexandria Hospital last night to be in a serious condition.

Smith was walking in the 500 block Wilkes street, near his home, when he was struck by a taxicab with a District license. His back was broken, chest crushed and collar bone broken. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital by the ambulance of the Alexandria Fire Company, No. 2. The driver of the taxi left the scene and ownership was traced by the license number. Alexandria and Washington police are looking out for him.

Capital Man Hurt In Virginia Crash

Leslie Bradshaw in Grave Condition in Hospital; Woman Injured.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 1.—Leslie Bradshaw, 27, of Washington, is in the Mary Washington Hospital here suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries of undetermined extent sustained when a car he was driving to Washington after a weekend in the Northern Neck plunged into a ditch near Sealston on the King's Highway, 14 miles from Fredericksburg.

Doctors described Bradshaw's condition as grave. The mishap was traceable to thick mists which have veiled this section the last three days and to slippery roads resulting from four days of continuous rainfall.

Miss Anita Pepmier, resident of Washington, who was driving back to the Capital alone in her machine after visiting her family near Corbin, Caroline County, was forced to steer the car into a ditch in order to avert collision with an approaching automobile which suddenly loomed before her in the fog. Miss Pepmier's car turned over, but she escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

The association voted to hold the annual horse show and races in September, 1932, and plans were discussed, concerning the annual fair. It was suggested that the organizations in the county, such as the volunteer fire departments, Chamber of Commerce and granges take over the fair arrangements, rather than abandon this annual event.

Motorcycle Crash Hurts Police Chief

Official of Mount Rainier Has Not Regained Consciousness.

Eugene B. Plumer, chief of police of Mount Rainier, Md., was seriously injured last night when he was knocked from his motorcycle in a collision at Rhode Island avenue and Eastern avenue northeast. He was taken to Sibley Hospital. His skull is believed to have been fractured. A passenger in the automobile was slightly hurt.

The accident occurred, according to police reports, as the automobile of Walter Linederry, 39 years old, of 3838 Thirty-first street northeast, crashed into Plumer while turning north into Eastern avenue from Rhode Island avenue. Plumer was riding west on Rhode Island avenue.

The impact threw the policeman several feet and his head struck the pavement. The policeman and Walter Burnett, 30 years old, of 3830 Thirty-first street northeast, were taken to the hospital by Twelfth Precinct police. Burnett was cut about the scalp. INCREASE IN GRID DEATHS IS LAID TO FIERCER PLAY

Coaches Give Fans More Thrills

Heisman Says Game More Savage Than in Former Days.

Coaches Whip Squads Into High Frenzy by Oratory.

By GAYLE ALBOT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—John W. Heisman, one of those stalwarts who pioneered football and has lived to see it flourish beyond his fondest hopes, has a ready explanation for the mounting score of serious injury and death attached to the game.

It is, the gray-haired mentor believes, the direct result of the increasing demand among the country's sport fans for fiercer action, the generation's insatiable desire for more and better thrills. The coaches and the players, he told the Associated Press today, only are trying to supply the demand.

Coach in his more strenuous days at a half-dozen leading universities and the originator of some of football's finest strategies, Heisman has retired from the list of active mentors to preside as athletic director of the Downtown Athletic Club, of New York. Football, though, still is uppermost in his mind. He retained a genuine love for the game.

Talk of Curbing Game Called Foolish.

"This talk about curbing football because it has been marked by some 25 or 30 deaths this season is foolish," he said. "It's just like suggesting that we junk all the automobiles because they have killed a lot of people. We wouldn't do without automobiles and the colleges couldn't do without football.

"If the American people really are alarmed about football's death toll, they have only themselves to blame. It is their lust for hard, dangerous action that has created the situation. They, in turn, have been abetted by the coaches. Realizing they must produce, the coaches have learned to whip their players into a frenzy before the game and send them into action fired up to the limit. The successful coach nowadays must first be an orator, then a football strategist.

"Any time twenty-two perfectly conditioned, powerful athletes come together in a game fundamentally rough, there are bound to be injuries. Send those same 22 out there in a high emotional state, determined to tackle and block and run with every ounce of savagery in their systems, and there is likely to be something worse. When two locomotives crash at high speed, something is sure to come loose."

Explosive Oratory Rapped.

Although admitting he has done the same thing, the mellowing Heisman doubts that a coach has the right to harangue his athletes in the modern manner. A pep talk, yes; but not the explosive brand of oratory that makes a youngster run a temperature.

"You don't see the older coaches going in for that so much these days," he said, "and they continue to get results."

Somebody had suggested that the modern, open style of play was more conducive to injury than the old mass play. But Heisman says:

"If we still were playing without forward passes and laterals and other modern features the Sunday papers would carry a casualty list a foot long."

Center of Marine Line Which Will Face Coast Guard

Post Staff Photo.

STRONG LINE IS HOPE OF MARINES

Shifts Made in Effort to Halt Attack of Coast Guard.

QUANTICO, Va., Dec. 1.—Preparing for their valedictory game of the season, the United States Marine team was put through a stiff practice session here today as Coach McHenry shifted his line in an effort to bolster up his frontal attack.

While the Leathernecks have one of the finest lines this season, it is quite evident that they will need an excellent array of forwards to stave off the Coast Guardsmen when the two aggregations meeting at Griffith Stadium, December 5, in a tiff designed to decide the holder of the President's Cup, emblematic of football supremacy among service teams.

Formerly Boasted Great Line.

In former years when the Marines were playing some of the best college teams in the East, they not only had an excellent group of backs, but a whale of a line.

Followers of service football will easily remember such outstanding Marine players as Goettge, Liversedge, Beckett, McHenry, now coaching at this post, Sanderson, Dyckman, and a host of greats who have written their deeds on the football scroll in days gone by.

In 1925, the veteran coach, Tom Keady, took charge of athletics in the Marine Corps and developed such players as Bukowy, Jimmy Levey and Dick Duncan, who ran rings around their opponents on the gridiron, but at the same time seven sterling forwards were forming a line as stubborn as the one the Prussian Guard faced at Belleau Wood in war days.

Traveled 17,000 Miles In 1926-27.

Since 1925 the Leathernecks have boasted an array of linemen that would warm the cockles of any coach's heart. Then in 1926-27, the Marines traveled some 17,000 miles to play 23 games, losing only three, and running up a total of 496 points with a line composed of Darwin Shumway, Bob McCracken, Jim Wigmore and "Hank" Crowe, Jack McDonald, and the two sparkling ends, Whitfield and Phillips.

While the Marine line won new laurels in '26, the forwards slumped somewhat the following year, but came back with a rush in 1930, when the Leathernecks turned back a great Coast Guard eleven by a 7-to-0 score before the President and Mrs. Hoover and some 20,000 spectators.

But the close of the 1930 season brought a change in the Marines' athletic policy and the end of a great line. The all-Marine team was officially disbanded and the players were sent to three widely separated posts in order to divide the playing strength among three base teams of the Marine Corps.

McHenry Has Strong Team Ready.

Lieut. George W. McHenry, who came from the West Coast to take over the coaching job here, has built up a strong machine from the squad which was the local post team last year, and thus far he has lost only two tiffs in eleven starts.

The only remaining hurdle is the Coast Guardsmen and they loom up as a formidable foe. And to make matters just a little worse, three of the Marine aces may be out of the big scrap. There is little doubt that Okay Pressley, first string center, and Willis Shew, star tackle, are definitely out for the season due to recent injuries. Paul Moret, an end who learned his football tactics at Navy, is also on the injured list.

Despite these losses, Coach McHenry will be able to rally an A-1 team in Griffith Stadium in an effort to win another cup victory over the Bears.

Tennessee Studying New York U. Attack

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Led by Gene McEver, star half back, the University of Tennessee football squad buckled down to hard practice today for its charity engagement with New York University Saturday.

The players hurried through a two-hour workout Monday, devoting much attention to passing and studying the New York University style of attack. The squad plans to entrain for New York Wednesday afternoon.

Capital Youth Dies From Grid Injury

George Dyer, 21-Year-Old Painter, Succumbs After Spine Is Hurt.

Football claimed its first local victim in recent years late Monday night when George Dyer, 21-year-old apprentice painter, succumbed at Gallinger Hospital to the spinal injury he suffered while leading his team, the Potomac A. C., to a victory over the Navy Yard eleven on November 22. He is survived by his widowed mother, Mrs. Ada Dyer, 5104 Sherrier place northwest.

Picked up conscious, but with the lower part of his body paralyzed, in the third quarter of the game on Potomac Field Sunday a week ago, Dyer was rushed to Georgetown University Hospital by Arthur Knott, a neighbor, where his fifth vertebrae was found to be out of place and compressing the spinal cord.

Dyer was taken to Gallinger Hospital the next day and placed in the Drinker respirator, an "artificial lung" for an hour and a half. He rallied a bit during the early portion of last week but took a distinct turn for the worse at 5 o'clock last Monday morning. Dr. Isadore Rod, physician also to Edith Riley, was called and placed Dyer once more in the respirator, for nearly two hours. He died at 11:15 Monday night.

Dyer was the outstanding player on the field during the game. Twice during the first half he raced to touchdowns. He was hurt either in making a tackle or in the general melee after the tackle was made in the early part of the third period.

Funeral services will be Friday morning at his home. Requiem mass will be said at 10 o'clock at Our Lady of Victory Church and interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Yale and Dartmouth Elect Grid Captains

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 1 (U.P.).—John S. Wilbur, of Cleveland, Ohio, tonight was elected to captain the 1932 Yale football varsity. Wilbur, a junior, was elected at the annual football dinner of the Yale squad.

The new captain-elect has played tackle on the blue varsity for the last two seasons. He was also captain of the freshman team. Wilbur prepped at the Loomis School, Windsor, Conn.

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 1 (U.P.).—William J. Hoffman, 23, of Lock Haven, Pa., today was elected captain of Dartmouth's 1932 football team. Hoffman, who played right guard, also captained his freshman team and is a weight man on the track team.

Wisconsin Grid Coach May Be Let Out Today

Madison, Wis., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—What has become an annual problem—whether Glenn Thistlethwaite shall continue as the University of Wisconsin's head football coach—probably will be thrashed out in the athletic council's meeting tomorrow.

Since coming to Wisconsin in 1927, Thistlethwaite, who had coached at Northwestern with real success, has been under fire of alumni groups. The situation almost reached a climax last year when an alumni committee was said to have demanded Thistlethwaite be replaced. The athletic council took no action, which automatically gave Thistlethwaite the job for another year. Wisconsin athletic coaches are not signed to contracts.

Before the council goes into the coaching situation—and if it does—the problem of meeting a $72,000 deficit caused by shrinkage in receipts will be discussed.

Greenleaf Nears Cue Tourney Mark

Has High Run of 83 in Beating Lindblom in Title Pocket-Billiards.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Two former champions, Johnny Layton, Sedalia, Mo., and Bennie Allen, Kansas City, won today's matches in the world's pocket billiard championship play. Layton disposed of Marcel Camp, Detroit, 125 to 117 in 15 innings, while Allen defeated Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia, 125 to 109 in 12 innings.

Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, defeated Robert Lindblom, of Los Angeles, 125 to 12, in seven innings tonight. Greenleaf had a high run of 83, which came within two of tying the tournament mark set last night by Onofrio Lauri, of Brooklyn.

Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, won the other match tonight, defeating Al Miller, of Racine, Wis., 125 to 56 in seventeen innings.

TICKET SALE FOR CHARITY NOW $7,000

Fund Already Double Expense of Bringing Alabama Team.

TICKET sales for Washington's unemployment benefit football extravaganza, scheduled December 12 in Griffith Stadium, passed the $7,000 mark yesterday when the period of special reduction on prices expired. The sum now in the hands of the game committee is double the estimated expense of the Alabama University Rose Bowl champions of 1930, who will come from Tuscaloosa, Ala., and other points in the South to play against the elevens of George Washington, Catholic and Georgetown universities.

Sales yesterday totaled more than $2,000, the largest sum yet derived from one day's sale of the pasteboards at the two main points of distribution—Spaldings', 1338 G street northwest, and Griffith Stadium. Officials of the committee expressed genuine gratification over the public's generous response to their plea to support the event in the name of charity.

Employment Group To Receive Funds.

All funds from the ticket sale, minus the actual expenses of the invading Alabamans, will be turned over to the District of Columbia committee on employment, which, in turn will use the money to provide jobs and general relief for the city's unemployed.

The 1931 Alabama University squad is still in training, priming for a game Saturday in Chattanooga, Tenn., with the University of Chattanooga, champion of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. This game also is to be played for charity. Eight members of the 1931 Crimson Tide were members of the 1930 team that won the Rose Bowl championship last New Year's Day by defeating Washington State, 24 to 0, at Pasadena, Calif.

Others of the 1930 Alabama squad have been keeping in condition this season through coaching work. Notable among this group is Fred Sington, all-American tackle, who has been assisting Head Coach Wallace Wade at Duke University. Wade coached Alabama last year.

The Alabamians will arrive in

DeclineNoted In Football Crowds

Nation-Wide Reports for 1931 Show 10 Per Cent Drop.

Tulane and Tennessee Increase; Army Holds Own.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—College football attendance, on the basis of Nation-wide reports to the Associated Press today, declined generally about 10 per cent for the 1931 season, as compared with last year, despite evidence of its continued great popularity.

The falling off was widespread and accompanied by an even sharper decline in gate receipts, where the reduction of admission prices also was a factor, but plenty of testimony is at hand that the sporting public still loves a winner and will pay to see one.

Championship teams such as Tulane and the University of Utah showed substantial increases in drawing power over 1930, the former drawing 146,000 at home for a jump of 15 per cent. Tennessee reported a 20 per cent increase in attendance. Harvard and Ohio State showed slight gains.

Increase of 36,000 Fans At California.

The University of California, definitely on the upgrade, showed an increase of 36,000 in cash customers, although the total of 305,493 for 1931 included one more game than the year before at Berkeley.

Southern California probably will show a substantial increase when its long season is completed. The Trojans, for six home games so far, are within 90,000 of their total of 354,443 for eight games in 1930. This year's biggest turnout, 89,864, saw Southern California whip Stanford in the Olympic Stadium at Los Angeles.

New York University reported the biggest increase in attendance of any major college or university in the country, a gain of approximately 72,000 customers, or 32 per cent, based upon total attendance figures of 307,740 this year and 235,914 in 1930.

Declines in attendance and gate receipts in many cases appeared closely related to poor competitive seasons, as well as to general business conditions. A contrast was furnished last Saturday. Despite a snowstorm 81,000 people jammed the Yankee Stadium for the Army-Notre Dame game, whereas nearly 38,000 shivered in the Yale bowl to see the Elis hand Princeton's luckless Tigers their seventh straight defeat.

Attendance Drops 40 Per Cent At Georgia Tech.

Georgia Tech, in something of an off-year, experienced a 40 per cent falling off at the gate. Illinois indicated a 30 per cent decline. Minnesota, Michigan and Iowa reported decreases ranging from 2 to 12 per cent. As a whole, the Big Ten fell off about 15 per cent in attendance.

On the Coast, Washington and Stanford indicated approximately 10 per cent declines. The total attendance for Northwest members of the Pacific Coast Conference, 231,250, was reported as "considerably less" than 1930.

Official figures are not yet forthcoming from Yale, Pennsylvania and Princeton, but all have experienced a falling off, despite proximity to the big centers of population.

West Point's record as a drawing card is about on a par with last year, however. Army's figures for ten games this year show total attendance of 323,000, as compared with 347,000 in 1930, when the Notre Dame game was played at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Colleges which declined to give either their figures on attendance or receipts included Columbia, Dartmouth, Georgia and Rice.

DECLINE IN CROWDS IS SHOWN BY TABLE

(Associated Press.)

The decline in football attendance is shown in the following table giving comparative figures on 1931 and 1930 home-game attendance.

NAVY PLANS PASSES FOR PENN

Launch Hard Practice for Battles With Quakers, Army.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 1.—The football squad of Annapolis midshipmen today launched a hard drive in preparation for the game with Pennsylvania in Philadelphia on the coming Saturday, and, more important than that for the charity battle with the West Point Cadets to be played in the Yankee Stadium, New York, on the following Saturday.

The air was cold and sharp in contrast to the fog banks and intermittent rains that prevailed over the last several days, and the gridders went at their task with a zip. Head Coach Rip Miller tabooed heavy scrimmaging because of the soggy condition of the turf. However, the first-stringers worked out in a dummy scrimmage, devoting major attention to the passing game, both offensively and defensively.

Moncure, Denny Alternate At Quarter.

"Sammy" Moncure and "Jack" Denny divided the time at the post of quarter back in the continued absence of "Bert" Davis, who is in the Naval Hospital, being treated for an attack of bronchitis that followed a cold contracted ten days ago. It is hardly likely that Davis will be in condition for the Pennsylvania contest, and Coach Miller has indicated that Moncure probably will get the assignment instead of Denny.

While the regulars were being put through the aerial paces, with Assistant Coach Christy Flanagan throwing many of the passes, Head Coach Miller gave particular attention to a second string group, which engaged in a fairly lively scrimmage against the shock troops of Squad B. In the back field of this group was "Shorty" Becht at quarter, Chung Hoon and Samuels, half backs, and Tom Hurley, full back. Konrad was in at half for a brief period. It was the first four who delivered in fine shape in the game with Wooster Saturday, and Walkup and Waybright, who saw service in the late stages of that contest also struck terror to the visitors.

McArthur, D. C. Boy, Gets Yale Grid Letter

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Capt. Albie Booth and 33 members of his football squad today were awarded major letters by the Yale Athletic Association.

The letters were among 116 insignias, 110 of which went to football men on various squads, awarded by the association.

Besides Boot those to receive major football letters included W. B. Bachman, Denver, Colo.; P. Bouscaren, Winnetka, Ill.; J. P. Crowley, Milwaukee; J. C. Madden, East Cleveland, Ohio; D. MacArthur, Washington, D. C.; E. Rotan, Houston, Tex.; A. T. Taylor, St. Joseph, Mo.; K. Todd, jr., St. Paul, Minn.; J. E. Uihlein, jr., Milwaukee; J. C. Wilbur, Cleveland.

Army Coach Gives Six Honor Posts to East

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, Army's head football coach, named six Eastern players today in selecting his all-America eleven for 1931.

His choices follow:

Ends—Orsi, of Colgate, and Dalrymple, of Tulane.

Tackles—Hardy, of Harvard, and Quatse, of Pittsburgh.

Guards—Summerfelt, of Army, and Hickman, of Tennessee.

Center—Daugherty, of Pittsburgh.

Quarterback—Wood, of Harvard.

Backs—Schwartz, of Notre Dame, Monnett, of Michigan State, and Pinckert, of Southern California.

Lindstrom May Get Second-Base Trial

Giants to Make Experiment if Critz's Ailing Arm Continues Sore.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—John J. McGraw, in a fanning bee with the Sun today, discussed his plans for next year's Giant team and revealed he plans to convert Freddie Lindstrom into a second baseman in the event Hughie Critz's ailing arm does not respond to treatment.

"I intend to try Lindstrom at second base next year and feel reasonably sure he will succeed in that position," said the veteran manager of the Giants. "If not, he can return to the outfield, where he developed into one of the best last season before he broke his ankle."

As for the remainder of the Giants' 1932 line-up, it will be almost identical with that of last season, McGraw said. He plans an infield of Terry, Lindstrom, Jackson and Vergez. Fullis and Ott are fixtures in the outfield, with Koenecke, obtained from Indianapolis, due to receive a thorough trial. McGraw said he would stand pat on his pitching staff.

Goofy Cheers Lose Caste Among America's Colleges After Years of Absurdity

(This is the second of a series of articles on college football cheering.)

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The more goofy forms of the college cheer have been losing their popularity among the undergraduates in recent years, and such phrases as "Boomalatcha," "Spickety-ree," "Singum-sess," and Kalikawhich-Kakhack-Kazam" are seldom heard any more except from high school students of tender years.

I may be suspected of inventing these idiotics to fatten a story, but I assure you that they may be found in a textbook on cheering and cheer leading in the New York Public Library.

In fact, reference will be found there to a university course in cheer leading established at Purdue in 1924, a course for which 30 students enrolled in its opening year. Mob psychology and tumbling were among the subjects offered to the class and the intent frankly was to equip the student to rouse and sway masses of people.

Exceptional Cases Noted.

Of course, there are exceptional cases, in which the students attending an institution in 1931 still stand committed to tocsins of the "Rickory-dickery dock" and "eeny-meeny-minomo" school of poetry merely because generations before they established such words or sounds as sacred traditions. The students of Georgia Tech may be heard to yell, without a blush or other show of self-consciousness, a nursery prattle which goes in part:

"Ala veevo, ala vivo,
Ala veevo, vivo, vum.
Boom! Get a rat trap
Bigger than a cat trap."

Students of the University of Illinois, for similar reasons, bray a bit of jabberwockian nonsense which goes, "Osky-wow-wow, Skinny-wow-wow."

It would be very difficult indeed to explain to, say, a Frenchman, or an Englishman, precisely what is meant by this. The state of mind which produces such demonstrations, like the state of love, is to be appreciated only by those who have suffered. Yet words are only sounds, after all, and if the word "thither," to select one at random, were not a legitimate English word with a philological pedigree, but a mere sound, hit upon by a college student to adorn a varsity yell, it might seem as silly as "Boomalatcha."

Tongue-in-Cheek Demeanor Noticed.

The thought is bound to occur that mature young people who can inflame themselves to deliberate frenzies of enthusiasm by the mere repetition of sounds which they know to be silly are likely to be suckers for slogans, band music, and other propaganda. But I have watched them closely at these frenzies and I notice a tongue-in-cheek demeanor. The Harvards will yell their rahs and the Dartmouth boys their legitimate Indian yell of wah-whoo-wah—legitimate because Dartmouth began as an Indian school—at the football games and their social ruckuses before and after.

But they do not respond to the exhortation of the cheer leaders at

Few Baseball Deals Made At Parley

Many Rumors Heard at Minor Leagues' Annual Meeting.

Braves Release Neun; Lyons and Lazzeri May Figure.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

WEST BADEN, Ind., Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Rumors of impending baseball trades between major league clubs floated around the rotunda of the West Baden Hotel tonight while minor league magnates conferred on matters of vital concern to their future.

It is unlikely that any major league trades will be made during the minor league meeting, but several are expected to grow out of conferences here and be consummated at the majors' meeting at Chicago next week. The Chicago White Sox was the most active big league club today, buying one minor league star and sending two players on option.

The Sox paid a reported $15,000 and two players, to be determined later, for Outfielder Harold Anderson, of the St. Paul American Association Club. Anderson is a "ball hawk," and Manager Lew Fonseca expects him to fill the Sox gap in center field. Anderson batted 315 last season with the association pennant winners.

Lyons for Lazzeri Rumored.

Pitchers Lou Garland and Wilbur Wehde were sent on options by the Sox to the Atlanta Southern League Club. Other deals involving the Sox are expected soon, inasmuch as President Lou Comiskey says he is willing to sell or trade any player on the team.

A deal between the Sox and the New York Yankees, represented here by Col. Jacob Ruppert and Manager Joe McCarthy, would not be a surprise. Ted Lyons, White Sox pitcher, and Tony Lazzeri, Yankee infielder, may be involved in this deal. The Sox are said to be willing to make the trade, but the Yankees are a bit leary of Lyons' arm, which made him practically useless last season.

Other American League players who are said to be up for trading material are Ralph Kress, St. Louis Browns' infielder; Carl Reynolds, White Sox outfielder, and Dick Porter, Cleveland outfielder.

In the National League, Burleigh Grimes, St. Louis pitcher and hero of the world's series, is said to have had a salary disagreement with his owners, and is to be placed on the market. The Chicago Cubs may bid for Grimes. The Cubs signed Johnny (Red) Corriden, former Indianapolis manager, as scout to succeed Ray Schalk, who is here to bid for the Toledo franchise in the American Association.

Schalk is believed to be ready to offer $150,000 for the Toledo Club, if he doesn't have to assume any of its debts.

Mobile Transferred to Knoxville.

The Southern League made a change today when the Mobile (Ala.) Club was transferred to Knoxville, Tenn., by Bob Allen, former owner of the Mobile and Nashville Clubs. Southern club owners unanimously ratified the purchase and transfer.

The Western League tonight re-elected Dale Gear president, secretary and treasurer, and Barney Burch, of Omaha, as vice president for two years. Reb Russell, former White Sox southpaw, was signed as umpire by the Western League.

A meeting of all club owners, at which league presidents were barred, was held tonight. Instigators of the meeting, first of its kind ever held, refused to divulge what they planned to discuss.

Indians Seeking Kress, Browns, for Shortstop

Special to The Washington Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 1.—When American League magnates and pilots hold their annual baseball meeting this month, Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, is going to have a private chat with Phil Ball and Bill Kelleher, owner and manager, respectively, of the St. Louis Browns. The subject of their conversation will be Ralph (Red) Kress, the St. Louis star who played so many positions with the Browns during the last campaign that he lost much of his recognized ability.

Cleveland needs a shortstop and Kress was one of the best in the game until the Browns shifted him to third, first, short and the outfield during the 1931 season.

The Browns need infielders, outfielders, and pitchers and Cleveland will gladly exchange its surplus for a capable shortstop to round out its infield. It is reported that Cleveland will offer Johnny Burnett, infielder, and Dick Porter, outfielder, to the Browns for Kress and might throw in a young pitcher, either Belve Bean or Mel Shoffner, both of whom were farmed out after spending several seasons with the Indians.

The deal has a splendid opportunity to go through, it was reliably reported here tonight.

Chocolate Arraigned On Abduction Charge

New York, Dec. 1 (U.P.).—Kid Chocolate, sensational Cuban flyweight boxer, was arraigned in Federal Court today on a charge of abduction. He was held for an extradition hearing December 3.

The charge was contained in a complaint sworn to by the consul general of Cuba, and cited neither names nor dates. Chocolate was taken into custody last night just after he had knocked out Maxie Leiner in a charity bout.

Abduction is an extraditable offense which permits no bail, the boxer's counsel was informed when he moved for an adjournment to December 11 to permit Chocolate to meet Al Singer, one-time world's lightweight champion.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

SHOULD the All-Coast Guard Bears relieve the All-Marine of the President's Cup in the annual service championship football game here Saturday then the Marines themselves will be, to a great degree, to blame for creating this new football Frankenstein, observed Heinie Miller, No. 1 fan of the Coast Guard.

Maj. Miller recounts how the Marines enticed the Coast Guard into the President's Cup competition. When the Army dropped out of the football picture after several defeats by the Marines, the Leathernecks played only the Navy to determine the holder of the cup donated first by President Coolidge. Then the Navy withdrew from the competition, leaving the Marine a nice big cup to play with, but no team to play against.

Admiral Freedrick Billard, grand taoti of the Coast Guard, was invited to a Marine Corps officers' dinner, and there Maj. Joseph Fegan, of the Marines, invited the admiral to toss the Coast Guard team into the President's Cup picture. The Coast Guard accepted the deal and, after a 7-to-0 defeat last season, is the favorite to win the game Saturday.

Similarly the Marines invited the Coast Guard to take part in the annual Camp Perry rifle matches. The Marines actually coached the first Coast Guard teams. Twice the Coast Guard defeated the Navy at Camp Perry. This year they were only one bull's-eye behind the Marines. They are that sort of an outfit, Miller declares, and will win the President's Cup for the first time on Saturday.

Incidentally, both the Marines and the Coast Guard are urging the Army and Navy to get back into the competition for the President's Cup, thus making it a four-cornered battle. Elimination games on both the East and West Coasts between service teams have been suggested with the Eastern winners meeting the Western winners for possession of the cup.

The Daily Princetonian, campus newspaper, demands a new deal in the Princeton football coaching staff on the heels of the Tigers' worst season in history which saw the sons of Old Nassau win but one game out of eight and score only 55 points against the opposition's' 164.

Princeton's system of coaching is "outmoded," says the student paper, citing the squad composed of good or potentially good material which lacked team work and training.

Coach Al Wittmer who perpetuated at Princeton the system installed and propounded with such great success by Bill Roper, is, perhaps, a victim of the revised playing rules as much as anything else. Roper's system placed a high premium on alertness. Princeton was noted for its ability to pounce on loose balls and the ensuing runs for touchdowns won many an important game for the Tigers.

With the revision of the fumble rules that makes a dead ball of a fumble after the recovery by the defense, Princeton's decline, curiously enough, set in.

Clark Griffith's excursion to West Baden, Ind., where the minor leagues are in solemn session in their annual meeting, is not expected to be fruitful from a trading standpoint.

The Nats' crying need is for pitchers and the late-season sales and draft period have stripped the minors of all twirling talent that might fit in with the Nats' program. The spread of the farm system and the "working agreements" between certain major and minor league clubs have covered up for future reference whatever promising talent remains in the minor leagues.

The Nats finished the season with only two dependable pitchers—Marberry and Crowder. Brown, Jones, Burke and Hadley flashed form only in spots and were disappointments. Fischer, with thirteen victories and nine defeats in his first full season, showed much promise. But the Nats will require at least one other consistent winner if they are to figure in the three-cornered race with the Yankees and Athletics.

PRINCE FARTHING SCORES IN FEATURE AT JEFFERSON PARK

Leiter Entry Revels in Deep Mud

Stimulator Is Second; Crystal Prince in Third Hole.

"Daily Double" Winners Cash in at Rate of 61-1.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Prince Farthing, owned by Joseph Leiter, won the Carrollton Purse, six-furlong dash that topped an ordinary program at Jefferson Park today. Over a track fetlock deep in mud, Prince Farthing, with Eugene James up, won handily over E. A. Fairbairn's Stimulator, while the Jackson Park Stable's Crystal Prince was third.

Prince Farthing took command from Stimulator after the first quarter and held him safe thereafter. Thundertone, favorite, was away poorly and was a badly beaten fourth. Prince Farthing paid $8.80 for $2.

The "daily double" of Vladimar in the second and light mint in the third paid $124.20 for $2.

Alamae, owned by W. M. Cain, and an odds-on favorite, easily took the first race, which was at 6 furlongs. Jockey Rogers had her away well and her lead was never threatened. Diodoro was second and Shakelford third. The winner paid $3.60 for $2.

Vladimir Easy Winner In Second.

Vladimir, owned by E. B. Shipp, took the second event, another 6-furlong dash. Vladimir led from flagfall to the finish. Jockey H. Tinker had the mount. Smoldering was second and Dark Simon, the favorite, third. Vladimir paid $8.

Light Mint, owned by A. P. Canale and ridden by C. Landolt, furnished an upset by winning the third race, which was at a mile. Wearing down Deemster, the favorite, Light Mint drew out in the stretch and was safe from The Mongol's fast finish. Banjo was third and Deemster wound up fourth after leading until well in the stretch. Light Mint paid $24.40 for $2.

The fourth race, another sprint, was won in handy fashion by Mrs. W. F. Meehan's Campus Capers, B. Myers up. Opening a big gap on her company at once, Campus Capers was easing up in front of Distress Signal. High Pockets, the favorite, was a well-beaten third. Campus Capers paid $16.80 for $2.

The sixth race, at a mile and a furlong, was just a gallop for Mrs. L. M. Holmes' Old Bill, J. Neel up. He made every post a winning one. Sporting Blues was second and Harpoon came from far back to be third. Old Bill paid $6.60 for $2.

The last race, at a mile and 70 yards, was won by J. Marsch's Hal Riley, with R. Montgomery up. Taking command from Tommy Tickle after half a mile, Hal Riley held him safe thereafter. Stop Gap, the favorite, was third. Hal Riley paid $15.80.

WINTER REST BEGUN BY BOOTH

Enters Sanatorium to Receive Treatment for Pleurisy.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—His undergraduate athletic career definitely ended, Albie Booth, Yale's threesport star, was taken to a tuberculosis sanatorium at Wallingsford today for treatment during the winter.

Although physicians emphasized that the diminutive football and basket ball captain does not have tuberculosis, they said a prolonged rest was imperative. Booth has been ill with pleurisy for the last week.

He will not be permitted to study at te sanatorium, where he will remain until warm weather. His graduation will be delayed at least until February, 1932, but it was freely predicted that if he returns to school next fall, he will assist in coaching the Eli football squad.

Stands Trip Well In Ambulance.

Bundled in blankets and heavy clothing, Booth made the 10-mile trip to Wallingsford in an ambulance. Attendants said he stood the journey well, and that he went to sleep almost as soon as he was put to bed.

Carried from New Haven Hospital to the ambulance, Booth continued to maintain a confident spirit. His weight was said not to have been affected by his illness or his athletic training.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Booth, sr., also went to Wallingford, satisfied that rest will restore their son to health.

Weakening of his system was attributed by his father to participation in all forms of athletics and by his efforts to earn his way through preparatory school and college.

"Albie overdid it," he said.

football pep meetings. In fact, the pep meeting has been abandoned at Harvard as too juvenile for the Harvard intelligence, and an old Dartmouth football player, returning to school on the eve of the team's departure for a big game two years ago, came away resentful because the student body had declined to whoop and howl at the word of command as of old.

The slogan and the campaign rhyme are no longer heard in national politics and even the political trade-mark and amulet such as the teddy bear, the billy possum, and the hound dog have lost their charm, as Mr. Coolidge learned when his managers attempted to popularize the New England sap bucket in 1924. The term sap had acquired a popular significance quite unknown to Mr. Coolidge.

Civil War Soldiers Had Warcrys.

The Civil War soldiers seem to have been enthusiastic campfire singers and warcry shouters as indicated by "Bring the Good Old Bugle, Boys, We'll Sing Another Song." But the armies in the great war were more restrained or sophisticated. A young English lieutenant, leading his men out of the line after a hard time, was much embarrassed when he encountered on the road one of those professional pollyannas, a morale officer, who demanded, "Lieutenant, why don't your men sing?"

"Sing, men," the young officer ordered wearily, and the muddy survivors broke into lugubrious wail of the forbidden song: "T'yke me over the sea; we're the allemands can't get at me. Ow, my. I don't want to do. I want to go 'ome."

Some of the sentimental slogans propagated by cheer leaders in 1917, in the light of subsequent relations between France and the U. S. A. seem no more sensible now than singumsess and spickity-ree. Moreover, the student when he yells foolish sounds has this on his side, that he knows they are foolish.

One of the foremost members of the advertising business, which is a form of cheer leading, has given his opinion that the college cheer leader is by no means as silly as he may seem in the course of his leaping and tumbling before a football crowd. Given his choice between a solemn intellect and a somewhat playful young graduate who led the cheering and busied himself with the affairs of the band in school, he would select the latter specimem as being more likely to make good in the advertising, distinguishing, however, between the familiar type of cheer leader and the common spellbinder.

Cheering Started Back in '70's.

There is no record of the exact beginning of mass cheering, but it has been traced to the seventies when intercollegiate football was just beginning and baseball was the more popular game. It occurred spontaneously, the students breaking into measured yells at baseball games with the intent, very unsporting in the English school tradition, to confuse the opposing team, especially the pitcher. To this day there is no such thing in the English universities and Prof. Howard Savage, of the Carnegie Foundation, in his studies of the sporting customs and manners of the English students found only one very mild and scarcely comparable form of concerted cheering.

This he noticed at Christ Church whose students have developed a traditional call of "House, house, house." Otherwise, he reports, the noncombatant interest in games seems rather weak except in critical situations when the English students, becoming hysterical for English students, remark, "Now then, come along" and, with the passing of the crisis, turn and walk away.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

In scoring his 69 in a practice round, Whiffy Cox made 35 going out and 34 coming in. Playing on the Bellesir Country Club course in Florida, he made eight pars and one birdie on the first nine holes, the birdie coming on the fourth hole. On the last nine, he scored a five (one over par), on the 16th, but on the 10th and 17th, he scored birdies. On the others, he made even pars.

In the first round of the Florida West Coast Open, March 1, 1930, Cox performed a feat never befor accomplished in the history of the game. On the first hole, he made a par, the same as he had in practice, and on the second he did likewise. Throughout the round, hole by hole, he duplicated exactly the score he had made in practice.

The famous grip of the bulldog is something mild in comparison to the iron jaws of the hyena. This animal can bite completely through the thigh bone of an ox in order to extract the marrow. Tigers, lions, timber wolves, all have terrific jaw power, but the hyena holds first rank among warm-blooded animals. However, none of these can compare with some of the cold-blooded creatures when it co es to gripping power. Giant clams can, with their "jaws," neatly amputate a swimmer's leg, or hold him trapped beneath the surface, once he gets within their grasp. The giant turtles, too, are famous for their steel grip. There is one record where the head of a turtle bit off a man's fingers after the reptile had been killed, and its body cut out of the shell.

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., Dec. 1.—A featureless program has been arranged for the patrons of Jefferson Park tomorrow. Although the card does not boast of an outstanding event, the various races have attracted large and well-balanced fields, which should produce some interesting and spirited contests.

In the absence of a feature, the fifth event, a claiming affair for 3-year-olds at six furlongs, appears the best offering on the card. This number received a list of twelve clever sprinters which will contest the purse. Of those named to start, F. Perry's consistent KING CHEROKEE, a 4-year-old Cherokee colt, which raced with considerable promise in his New York campaign, is favored to annex the event. This colt has displayed keen speed from the barrier and should hold MY SWEETS, his most formidable rival, safe. The latter has trained well after a brief rest and is reported ready to contest the issue. Third money should fall to OVERBOARD.

FIRST RACE—ALFAYE B., a recent winner at this track, is in prime condition and has little to beat for the major award. BROWN-EYED MARY and FINGERTIPS, two speedy workers, are fancied for the remainder of the purse.

SECOND RACE—OKAH is fancied over his rivals here. ESTIN, which scored impressively in his last, should furnish stern opposition. OUTER HARBOR will fancy the heavy track and is given the show call.

THIRD RACE—OPEN GO SHUT, a game router from the S. S. Stubb's string, holds a decided edge over his ten opponents. TRAUMEL and WELLET appear best of the others.

FOURTH RACE—BAY BLOOM, a speedy worker, is given the call in this open race. JORGENSEN displayed speed in recent efforts and is the one to fear. IMELDA has trained briskly for his return and should get into the money.

SIXTH RACE—DEEMSTER is nicely suited by the conditions and should romp to an easy victory in this six-furlong dash. TACK has speed but would favor a longer route. BLACK STOCKINGS raced well last start and is a show possibility.

SEVENTH RACE—In the final event, a field of ten game routers will contest the purse. NICK CULLOP faltered in his last but should show improvement. AREGAL and AS FAIR are closely rated and should extend the top one.

G. U. Cubs and Sophomores Drill for "Battle of Caps"

THE annual Battle of Caps, wherein the freshmen of Georgetown University seek campus equality with the upper classmen, will be fought next Tuesday in Griffith Stadium with the sophomores, coached by "Mush" Dubofsky, varsity captain, opposing Coach Frank Kersjes' freshmen eleven.

Training for the game already has begun, with Dubofsky rounding up many of the sophomores on the varsity squad, and Kersjes corraling all of the yearlings who have been serving all season as practice opponents for the varsity team.

Last year the sophomores, led by Ray Hudson and Jim Patterson, came from behind to win the game by a score of 13 to 12. It was one of the most exciting cap battles in Georgetown history.

Varsity Coach Tommy Mills has announced that some of the eligible sophomores will be

OLD LINE ELEVEN NOT HOLDING WESTERN MARYLALD LIGHTLY

Md. Coaches Prepare for Hard Test

Refuse to Take Stock in "Bear" Stories From Rival Camp.

Rate Saturday's Foe as Powerful as Last Year.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND coaches are taking no stock in the "bear" stories emanating from Westminster as to the riddled condition of the Western Maryland Football Team that the Old Liners meet in the Baltimore Stadium on Saturday.

While Western Maryland's squad undoubtedly has suffered its share of injuries and Jimmy Dunn, one of the best of the Terror backs, may not play, those in charge of the Old Liners know that Dick Harlow has plenty left to put a really formidable team on the field and to keep one there for the full 60 minutes of the combat.

One scout or another from Maryland has seen Western Maryland in action in five of their games and it is the consensus of opinion of the Old Line "snoopers" that the Green Terror outfit is fully as strong as it was in 1930, when it beat the Terrapins in a great game of football, 7 to 6.

Terrors Played Harder Games.

The only reason they can see for the Western Maryland Team not having kept up its great record of past seasons is that it played a much stronger schedule. This had a double effect. The Terrors, naturally, lost some games and in the process of doing so had a lot taken out of their squad. In other years, with the exception of one or two games, for which it could prepare, it was merely a case of coasting along.

Western Maryland has played three games since it met its last hard test, getting just enough opposition to enable it to use the games to tune up and make special preparation for the Old Liners.

Earl Zulick, one of the Maryland staff who saw Western Maryland play three times, is of the opinion that this year's game will be better than the really fine contest of a year ago. He feels that the offense of both teams will be more predominant and it would not surprise him to see three or more touchdowns scored during the contest.

Oakton High Annexes Boys' Basket Ball Title

The Oakton High School boys basket ball team has been crowned victorious in the race for the Fairfax County court championship. The girls championship was won by the Falls Church sextet, nosing out Oakton in the rubber game of the three game series. The basket ball tilts were played in the gymnasium of the Lee Jackson High School.

The two teams will participate in the Northern Virginia playoff Friday and Saturday at Freericksburg, and, if victorious, in the Virginia State championships at Lexington later in the month.

GRIFFS WIN AGAIN.

The Griffith-Blue Coals quint took the measure of the Capital Awning Co. Team by a score of 23-9 at Eastern High School last night. Wiler and Beck led the scoring for the Griffs.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren

Pennants and Northerns Renew Old Rivalry Sunday

Neighborhood Elevens Have Reached Only One Decision in Five Years; Play in Capital City League Contest.

A SANDLOT gridiron rivalry, which had its inception on the Monument Grounds five years ago, will be renewed Sunday when the Petworth Pennants and Northern Preps meet at Silver Spring in the 150-pound division of The Post's Capital City League. The game will have no bearing on the title race as both clubs are hopelessly out of the running. The Pennants' reasons for winning are twofold.

A victory would wipe out the 7-0 defeat suffered last season and also throw the pair into a deadlock for seventh place in the league standings. At present Petworth is trailing its rival by 2 points.

The Petworth Club was first organized in 1922 when the boys were cocky youngsters performing in the 125-pound ranks. Often they went out of their class to meet larger opponents, and most of the games resulted in victories for them. The team was without a coach until 1925 when Bob Sheety assumed command of the ships and from then on the Pennants ranked with the best. In 1929, when the club stepped into faster company, the 150-pound ranks, Ed Monk took up the coaching duties, and he, too, turned out a good team. Monk relinquished the reins to Johnny Fitzgerald this season.

Battle to 0-0 Tie In 1926.

The Pennants and Northerns clashed for the first time in 1926, and the game resulted in a scoreless tie. They came to blows again in 1927 and another deadlock resulted. The third tilt, in 1928, ended in similar fashion, and by this time the hot stove league was going full blast with chatter concerning the two clubs. Hailing from neighboring sections, the Northerns from the Park View Playground, and Petworth from Iowa Avenue Playground, a strong, although friendly rivalry, sprang up between the two. More fuel was added to the fire in 1929, when another scoreless battle was played. All of these games were played outside the pale of the league.

Last season the boys followed the crowd and joined in the chase for The Post's trophy. The circuit produced a magical effect upon the Northerns, and they scored a 7-0 victory over their rivals. The game was played in a downpour of rain, and on one of the coldest days of the year, but the players went at it hammer and tongs. The Northerns deserved the victory, for they outplayed Petworth by a decisive margin.

Injuries Hamper Rivals.

This season's story may have a different ending. Neither team is what might be termed a powerful aggregation. Injuries have hampered both squads considerably, but what they lack in numbers is offset by the spirit and dogged determination evidenced on the field. A lively interest is being shown by supporters of the two teams and one of the largest crowds to witness a sandlot game this season is expected to be on hand for the fray.

DIXIANAS HIT STRIDE.

The Dixiana Barbecue Five got off to a winning start in its initial game of the season last night at Lee-Jackson High Gym when it beat the Central A. C., 29-11, aided by the work of Fox, guard, who scored 14 points.

The Dixianas will enter the Tri-City League.

"Caseys" Beat Grays In Basket Ball Opener

The Knights of Columbus Basket Ball Team successfully launched its campaign on the home floor last night, winning from the Chevy Chase Grays by a score of 35-33 in a closely contested game. The Caseys were leading at the half by an 18-10 margin, but a spirited rally by the Grays in the final minutes of the game almost overtook the home crew.

"Eggie" Anderson and Johnny Hickey led the winning team in scoring with 12 and 9 points, respectively. Augie Turneak and Bill Evans starred for the Grays with 10 points each. Tomorrow the Caseys invade St. John's for a game with the Cadets, starting at 8:15 o'clock.

5 MAT BOUTS ON PROGRAM TOMORROW

Londos, Champion, Is Choice of Kirilenko in Feature.

JIM LONDOS, most affluent of the several claimants of the heavyweight wrestling championship of the universe, arrives in town today, where he is likely to have the whole day to himself, pending his rendezvous tomorrow night with Matros Kirilenko, the bulky Russian, at the Washington Auditorium.

It is one of five bouts the rassle patrons will have placed before them. Also on the bill are Rudy Dusek vs. Frank Brunowicz; Paul Jones vs. Joe Cox; Chief White Feather vs. Pat O'Shocker, and Herb Freeman, one of the better boys, against old Tiger Nelson. Fundamentally, the boys appear more evenly matched this time than for some weeks.

Kirilenko Victim of Londos Recently.

Londos dumped Kirilenko last month in New York in an hour, something out of the ordinary for the Greek, whose airplane spins are administered usually in half that time. There does not appear to be much hope this time for Kirilenko either, for the Russian has only strength to recommend him, and Londos is prolific with holds and traps.

Jim beat Sandor Szabo in Baltimore last night and will depart from here almost immediately after tomorrow night's affair for more points on the Eastern wrestling circuit. The 200-pound, perfectly proportioned Greek is the greatest "breadwinner" of all time for the boys who manage mat matches. He has been working double shift of late, but remains in a physical condition which defies summary description.

During those fleeting moments when Londos is not wrestling he sleeps. He told reporters last summer that he slept 14 hours every day, usually in two shifts. Between those shifts, today or tomorrow, he is expected to pay his respects to the Greek minister, at the legation.

STOCK PRICES DROP SLIGHTLY AT CLOSE

Break in Sterling and News Affect Market; Several Losses Are Wide.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The financial markets were unsettled at the beginning of the year's last month today.

Stocks broke sharply in the first hour, then rallied as wheat overcame early sogginess, and as a rumor concerning possible reduction of Canadian Railway wages circulated through the financial district. The firmer tone, however, was most apparent in the rail group, for the best that industrials and utilities could do was to reduce their extreme losses of 1 to 5 points and the general market average closed about a point lower on a turnover of 2,039,329 shares.

Wall street could not ignore the break in sterling, which dropped to another new low for the past decade, but at the same time refused to become alarmed over the drop. It is now apparent here that the British government intends to let the pound seek its own level and that meanwhile it will attempt no stabilization measures.

Gold Aid Is Lacking.

Inasmuch as the currency has been detached from the gold basis it is impossible to meet fresh declines with gold shipments and the rate is very susceptible to such pressure as is now being directed against it.

Much of this doubtless comes from seasonal influences, including payments for imports and year-end withdrawals of balances. Bankers generally discourage the supposition that French selling for so-called political purposes has been largely responsible, pointing out that French Bank balances in London have been affected by the decline and that they would obviously be unwilling to contribute to the pound's weakness.

The rumor regarding Canadian railroad wages said the mediation board was expected to recommend a 10 per cent reduction for employes on all lines in the Dominion, although there was no confirmation for the report. It caused a flurry of interest here and sent shorts in railroad shares to cover. Several carriers climbed a point or two net, but reduced their gains toward the close when the Wabash issues weakened. The "A" preferred stock of that road was off 7 points and the common lost 2.

New Losses Added.

The morning decline in the general market suggested an impairment of the technical position as a result of yesterday's rally. Prices drooped swiftly for a time, and at the bottom Monday's gain had been more than canceled, United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Western Union, Paramount and an assortment of rails making new lows.

Steel, selling ex-dividend, touched 51⅜, but reduced its loss to 1⅜ by closing at 54⅛; American Telephone sagged rapidly, only to rally 4 points from the low. It finished with a decline of 1¼. General Motors came within a fraction of the old minimum before improvement set in. American Can, Case, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville were down 2 to 3 net, the last named being affected by the dividend cut.

Wheat which finished ⅞ to 1¾ higher net, was helped out of an early sag by a bullish private crop estimate on the winter yield and a sizable reduction in acreage, with indications that the crop would be the smallest in several years. Corn closed about steady with small changes. Cotton sold off toward the close, which was 7 to 12 points lower.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Recoveries from an early decline in cotton today were attributed to trade buying and covering, but prices weakened again in the late trading under Southern and local selling. January declines, after selling up from 6.00 to 6.15, closed at 6.01, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

The opening was barely steady, 1 to 4 points lower under liquidation combined with selling for Liverpool and continental account, while there was also some selling through brokers with Japanese connections. The failure of the advance in Liverpool to offset fully the decline in sterling was a factor at the opening and offerings increased following the sharp early decline in the stock market. December eased off to 5.96 and May to 6.34, making net losses of about 10 to 13 points on the active months, but at these prices the market met an increased demand from the trade. This was sufficient to steady prices, while some covering developed which may have been accompanied by Western buying. Offerings were comparatively light after the early selling had been taken, and the rally extended to 6.08 for December while may sold at 6.51, or 1 to 7 points net higher. The failure of the stock market fully to maintain its rallies from the low levels of the morning was probably reflected by some Wall street selling in the last half hour, while there was also a renewal of Southern selling and liquidation. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest of the day.

Liverpool cables said there had been local and foreign buying in that market on the weakness in sterling and reported a fair demand for cotton cloth from India and South America. The differences between Liverpool and New York have narrowed considerably during the last day or two and there was probably some selling here early against purchases abroad.

Exports today 7, 40,394, making 2,861,185 so far this season. Port receipts, 72,816. U. S. port stocks, 4,824,945.

BOND MARKET SAGS TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Utilities Lead Liquidation Drive With Rails Second in Declines.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Gloom continued to envelope a cheerless bond market today, and the average of 60 corporate issues again dropped to a new low for the year.

While the price clashing was general, utilities suffered most from the liquidation, although rails were a close second. The average of twenty utilities found a new bottom level for the past twelve months, but railroads and industrials did not quite plumb record depths.

It was notable, however, that fewer offerings appeared as quotations slumped, the total sales being only $10,871,000, compared with $12,272,000 yesterday.

Western Union 5s of 1951, lost 6 points and the 5s of 1960, 1½ points for new low records. At the same time International Teleprone issues were up. Postal Telegraph 5s, however, dropped to a new low.

Among the carriers, Chicago & Alton refunding 3s fell 4⅞ points for a new bottom record and Chicago & Northwestern, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, New York Central, with many others, registered losses.

With the exception of Argentine obligations, foreign issues were heavy. French and Italian loans were off and British 5½s made a new low. The majority of the German bonds were easy, although the Government 7s, which have been heavily sold recently, recovered 2 points of their yesterday's loss. United States Governments were down fractionally.

Curb Review

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The curb market had a somewhat irregular appearance in dull trading today. Prices sagged in the forenoon and then rallied, but the recuperative power was not particularly impressive and a wide assortment of stocks closed moderately lower. Sales approximated 190,000 shares, the smallest volume since September 1.

The oil group offered considerable resistance to the mild pressure apparent in other major divisions. Many utilities found it impossible to retain yesterday's advances and fractional net declines were returned by Electric Bond & Share, United Light "A," American & Foreign Power Warrants and Middle West. American Gas firmed slightly.

In the specialties, sogginess developed in Aluminum of America, Bunker Hill & Sullivan, Driver Harris, Deere, Ohio Brass "A," Great Atlantic & Pacific and Todd Shipyards. Cord Corporation and Mead Johnson improved moderately. A feature of the group was a break of 12¼ points in German General Electric, an inactive stock on this market.

Oils were helped by reports of a decrease in crude output for the past week. Humble and Standard of Indiana closed without change, although Gulf, after a small rise, eased less than half a point in the late dealings.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 123

THE above picture depicts the freshman class of the old Business High School, taken in 1891, when a floor of the Franklin School Building housed the entire student body. At that time the total enrollment amounted to 250 students and 7 teachers. Among the faculty were the present Justice Alfred A. Wheat, who taught bookkeeping and commercial law, and Miss Mabel Lee Godfrey, who is now active in Community Chest affairs.

Allan Davis has been principal of the institution during the entire period of its existence. Under his guiding hand the school has progressed from one site to another, until now it occupies its present palatial brick building at Tenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, with an enrollment of 1,250 pupils and 50 teachers.

Included in the above group may be seen W. L. Hazard, who was later president of the Business High School Alumni Association, and Robert Carter, now a retired captain of the United States Army. Charles S. Mendel carried the scholastic honors of the class. Others are as follows: Arthur Carr, Alfred T. Clifton, Charles J. Malnati, David MacKenzie Wolfsteiner, Harmon Deane, Barnes, Proctor, Astel, Beck, Charles J. Achstetter, William M. Pigott, Gus Neurath Perkins and Charles Magee.

FEDERAL WARRANTS HOLD SIX WOMEN IN VICE INVESTIGATION

Cited as Witnesses Against Four Men Accused of Violating Mann Act.

ALL WERE OCCUPANTS OF COLONIAL TEAHOUSE

Suspect in Philadelphia Is Rearrested Also; More Seizures Loom.

The six women under bond as State witnesses in the Bladensburg roadhouse shooting were rearrested yesterday on Federal warrants charging them with being witnesses against four men arrested yesterday for alleged violation of the Mann act.

The women, all occupants of the Colonial Tea House, whose robbery resulted in a gun battle which killed one and wounded five, were free on bond with one exception. This was Mrs. Verne Edwards, who lies in Casualty Hospital with a bullet wound in her hip. The other five had been released on bond of $1,500 each. They were rounded up and taken to Baltimore yesterday.

Names of Accused.

The four men for whom "white slave" warrants were issued, are: Charles Leavitt, alleged manager of the house, wounded, at Casualty; Felix Bocchicchio, alias Man-o'-War, wounded, at Casualty; Cicero Renzulli, in custody in Philadelphia, and William Hancock, held in the Marlboro Jail. Bocchicchio and Hancock are also wanted for murder in Pennsylvania.

Renzulli, who was discharged by a magistrate in Philadelphia yesterday, was immediately rearrested by a deputy United States marshal on the Federal Mann act warrant, according to Associated Press dispatches. He was originally arrested on suspicion in connection with the holdup, a few hours after it was committed. Nicholas Tronco, who was arrested with him, is being held in Philadelphia pending further investigation.

The earlier warrants issued by State authorities held the women as witnesses to the murder of Grover Amick, the gas station man who was killed. Bocchicchio is being held for Amick's murder.

More Arrests Forecast.

The vice ring which supplied women to the Bladensburg house extended through Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, at least, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, said last night.

"The exact size we don't know," he declared.

Mr. Hoover intimated that there would be further arrests, but not within the next 24 hours. It is believed that work on the case is being held up until the recent crop of prisoners can be thoroughly questioned.

The warrants against the four men charge them with transporting one woman from Washington to Bladensburg, over the State line, and with moving another woman from Philadelphia to Bladensburg.

Board Will Hear Harker Case Pair

Police Trial Body Will Get Evidence Against Two Freed by Court.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride announced yesterday that Policemen William C. Grooms and W. T. Burroughs will be brought before the Police Trial Board despite their acquittal of assault charges by a jury in District Supreme Court.

The trial will not be held, however, until after the cases of James A. Mostyn and William A. Laflin, who were convicted at the same trial, are settled. The policemen probably will be charged with failing to report a crime which they witnessed to the superintendent of police or his subordinates.

According to evidence introduced at the trial, Groome and Burroughs were present when James Henry Harker was beaten by Mostyn and Laflin following his arrest as a suspect in a housebreaking case.

Death Suddenly Claims 2 Victims

Man Drops Dead in Lunch Room; Other Found in Boarding House.

Two men died suddenly about 8 o'clock last night from natural causes. One dropped dead in a lunch room on Ninth street at D northwest, and the body of the other was discovered in his room at a boarding house at 1501 North Capitol street.

Emmett Horgan, about 70 years old, of 607 Sixth street northwest, had just received a meal at the lunchroom when he toppled to the floor. Dr. William Bowman, of the Casualty Hospital staff pronounced him dead. The body was taken to the Morgue where an inquest will be held today.

The body of Norman Green, 38 years old, was found in his room by the operator of the rooming house. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Thomas Bradley, of the Emergency Hospital staff, who said death was due, apparently, to heart disease.

Art Instructor Is Hurt When Struck by Auto

Alex B. Many, 54 years old, of 1707 Rhode Island avenue northwest, art instructor at McKinley High School, was slightly injured yesterday when he was knocked down by an automobile in front of 1731 R street northwest.

He was crossing in the middle of the block when he was hit by a machine operated by Elmer Collins, 59 years old, of 1440 R street northwest, who was driving east. Mr. Many was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for cuts and bruises about the forehead and hands.

Skyviews of Washington, No. 32

Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc.

UNION STATION TERMINAL, where the rail passenger traffic of a nation converges in Washington.

Over the steel tracks extending northward above the arch-roofed depot daily speed the fast specials linking the Capital with the cities of the North, while the South is joined by rails not visible in the picture, entering the station by tunnel beneath the plaza.

Through the entrance on the extreme right many Presidents have passed since the station replaced the old one just off Pennsylvania avenue. Royalty and innumerable foreign notables, too, have crossed the threshold of this door, most recently the King and Queen of Siam, Premier Pierre Laval, of France, and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy. The latter in twice crossing the plaza must have noted the statue to his countryman, Christopher Columbus, shown in the foreground of the aerial photo.

2 BRUTALITY TRIALS WILL START TODAY

Barrett and Sorber Ready to Appear; Both of "Victims" Are Freed.

Detective Sergeant Robert Barrett and Policeman George Sorber, of the Second Precinct, are scheduled to go on trial today on indictments charging them with simple assault. Both indictments grew out of the expose here of alleged manhandling of prisoners by members of the Metropolitan Police Department.

Barrett is charged with having struck George M. Baber during an investigation of the Garden-T-Shoppe murder, while Sorber is charged with having booted a small colored boy, Arthur T. Paul, who he found in his machine while it was parked near the O street market.

Barrett will be prosecuted by Julian Richards, Assistant United States Attorney, while Sorber will be prosecuted by John J. Sirica, another Assistant United States Attorney.

Attorneys E. Russell Kelly and Harry T. Whelan appear for Barrett and Attorney James A. O'Shea will represent Sorber. In the Sorber case the alleged victim, 14 years old, was acquitted in Juvenile Court on a petit larceny charge, while in the Barrett case, Baber was exonerated of any connection with the Garden-T-Shoppe affair after being questioned.

A motion for a new trial for James A. Mostyn and William R. Laflin, found guilty of simple assault on James H. Harker last week, was filed yesterday by their attorneys, John H. Burnett and O'Shea. The request for a new trial charged that the verdict was contrary to the evidence and that it was contrary to the weight of evidence. The motion will be argued before Justice James M. Proctor and will have to be disposed of before the two men can be sentenced.

Supreme Court Justices Shifted

Change Is Made to Speed Clearing Up of Law Cases on Docket.

Having made substantial progress with the large number of criminal and equity cases in the District Supreme Court, a shift in the justices' assignments was made yesterday so that the enormous amount of circuit court work and law cases could be taken care of with dispatch.

Justice Jennings Bailey, who had been assigned to equity cases, was transferred by Chief Justice A. A. Wheat to the law cases, and the only equity justice now is Daniel W. O'Donoghue, newest member of the bench.

Justice Bailey has been sitting in Equity Court since the beginning of the fall term and he has cleaned up almost one-half of the more than 500 cases pending when he took over the work. His assignment to law court work now makes four law justices. They are Peyton Gordon, Jesse C. Adkins, Oscar R. Luhring and Justice Bailey.

2 Noted Experts on English Clash Over 'Has' and 'Have'

Dr. Vizetelly Says "Has" Is Correct, and Mrs. Baker Supports "Have;" Some One Suggests That Congress Take Up Problem.

With the two ranking international authorities on correct English grimly arrayed on opposing sides, the verbal battle over "have" and "has," which was first reported in last Friday's Post, last night desperately raged in the front line trenches of grammarians and language critics.

The battle began two weeks ago, over a sentence which appeared in a national magazine of high literary reputation. As printed the sentence read as follows:

"It seems evident that the Mussolini ambition, or rather its latest ramifications, have a depressing effect."

The correctness of the principal verb in the sentence, "have," was challenged by teachers at a meeting of a school and education committee of a local citizens' association, and a lengthy argument was precipitated.

Francis de Sales Ryan, chairman of the committee, defended the use of "have" against the contention of the teachers that "has" should have been used. One of the teachers wrote to the editor of the magazine in which the sentence appeared and asked his judgment on the argument.

The editor replied that the printed sentence was in error and that the proofroom of the magazine should have substituted "has" for "have."

Both sides of the controversy appealed to other authorities, as Ryan and his supporters declined to accept the editor's statement as conclusive, and 21 educational institutions of Washington, including three universities and a college, were asked for opinions. Two universities and 11 schools voted for "have;" one university and 10 schools voted emphatically for "has."

The style room of the Government Printing Office, where all questions of grammar and word usage are decided for the United States Government, was asked to pass on the question and subsequently announced a deadlock among the stylists.

By this time high Government officials entered the controversy and in several cases long-distance phone calls were made to distant university professors, requesting a decision from "alma mater" on whether "have" or "has" was correct in the disputed sentence.

The big showdown came last night when rulings were sought from the two outstanding international figures in the world of correct English.

They were Dr. Frank Horace Vizetelly, editor of the Standard Dictionary and all its abridgments; director of diction for the Columbia Broadcasting Co.; director of the "Lexicographer's Department" of the Literary Digest; author of a score of books on word usage, syntax and pronunciation, and consulted daily by publishers, authors and institutions of national prominence as the "Last Court of Appeal" in correct English.

Mrs. Josephine Turck Baker, who is consulted as the final arbiter on what is correct in English by the White House, the United States Senate, the public libraries of New York and Chicago, the Academy of Science in London, the University Union in Edinburgh and many business corporations; and is editor and founder of "Correct English Magazine;" author of twenty books on English usage, and member of the advisory committee of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Dr. Vizetelly's telegram was acclaimed with demonstrations resembling a Roman holiday by the forces for "has." The wire read, "The syntax of the sentence is faulty, but as submitted, 'has' is correct. The phrase, 'or rather its latest ramifications' is parenthetical."

But the demoralized forces defending "have" rallied for another attack when Mrs. Baker's message flashed from Evanston, Ill. It read, "The plural verb 'have' is required."

One educator last night suggested that the subject be referred to Congress, where, he said, it might serve the useful and patriotic purpose of keeping senators and representatives from plotting a lot of fool legislation during the coming session.

Women Attorneys to Meet.

Members of the Women's Bar Association will meet at 8 o'clock tonight to study documents relating to the Permanent Court of International Justice, Hope K. Thompson, chairman of the committee directing the study, announced last night.

TEACHING METHODS ARE HELD INJURIOUS

Child Should Not See Book Until 10 Years of Age, Says Alabaman.

Modern methods of education in public schools were blamed for undermining children's mentalities, nervous systems, characters and morals by Miss Marietta Johnson, head of the School of Organic Education at Fairhope, Ala., in an address last night at Wesley Heights Community Club.

Miss Johnson, who has a nation-wide reputation through her school for both adults and children, declared that every school should be turned into a workshop where children would not see a book until they were 10 years of age. Education, she averred, should teach youth to seek the truth rather than accept facts as truth because they are printed in books. A child must have experience before he can understand what a book says, she explained.

Methods of grading destroy the nervous system and intellect and produce mental insincerity because they create a double motive in the attitude of the child, Miss Johnson told her audience, made up of members of the Wesley Heights Child Study Club and the Horace Mann Home and School Association.

The speaker continued that such a system lifts competition into a realm of higher importance in the mind of the child than the business of learning.

"A bright child in school learns and makes good marks, then forgets," she said. "When the real test of meeting life's situations comes these students fail miserably, as a rule."

The depression is the result of the inability of the people to think properly, the educator averred. Her remarks evoked considerable interest and several members of the audience inquired as to how her system of education could be introduced in Washington. She was told that demonstration classes are being tried in some Washington schools with success. Miss Johnson praised this experiment.

Philadelphians Score In Model Plane Meet

Final returns from all cities in the telegraphic model aircraft tournament held here last Saturday indicate that Washington failed to place in any of the eight events. Philadelphia model builders won 20 of the 24 places, the tabulation discloses. Newark placed in two events and Atlantic City in the remaining two.

The outstanding flight of the tournament was made by Edward Slattery, of Philadelphia, who kept his model up for 11 minutes 4 1-5 seconds. In the junior class, Peter Andrews, also of Philadelphia, made a mark of 8 minutes 55 1-5 seconds. While some of the Washington fliers have made marks which compare favorably with these in earlier meets, none of them could approach them Saturday at Constitution Hall.

Woman Found Unconscious Cannot Remember Accident

Mrs. Nellie T. Halleck, 68 years old, of 2221 Hall place northwest, was found unconscious on Wisconsin avenue at W place northwest yesterday and was taken to Georgetown Hospital with a cut over her right eye. She told physicians she had no idea how she received her injuries, but police believe she walked into the side of a passing automobile.

She got off a street car at the intersection, Mrs. Halleck told police, and started to cross the street. She said she did not remember anything until she reached the hospital.

About the same time, R. H. Gangwisch, 72 years old, of 9203 Connecticut avenue northwest, was reporting at the Seventh Precinct. He said he was passing W place on Wisconsin avenue and happened to look back and see a woman being picked up in the thoroughfare. He said he did not believe his car had struck her, but wished to report the accident.

Police Set Speed Record In Joining Boy and Mother

It took two branches of Capital police only an hour and a half yesterday to get a lost boy and his perturbed mother back together again, and the mother left Third Inspection District headquarters singing their praises.

Earl Smith, 11 years old, and his mother, Mrs. Maude Smith, of Pascoag, R. I., came to Washington yesterday on a sightseeing trip. Their tour took in the Smithsonian Museum and in some manner mother and son became separated.

Earl wandered about the streets from 4 o'clock until 5, when some kind soul directed him to the Third Inspection District headquarters.

Meantime Mrs. Smith had placed her troubles before the Park Police. When Elmer wandered into the headquarters and gave his name, police found they already had a "lookout" for him. They had Mrs. Smith and Elmer reunited in about twenty minutes.

The boy and his mother came south to visit Mrs. Smith's brother, Henry Bounds, of Indianhead, Md.

HOUSE COMMITTEE STUDIES BUDGET FOR WASHINGTON TODAY

Again Will Consider Sum to Be Appropriated by the Government.

PROPOSAL IS OFFERED FOR PERCENTAGE BASIS

Amount Favored by Group Is Expected to Be Close to $9,500,000.

How much less than $9,500,000 a year the Federal Government should appropriate in the District appropriation bill for the development and maintenance of the National Capital is to be considered again today by the special House committee on District fiscal relations.

The committee of which Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, is chairman, met yesterday and heard George Lord, its tax expert, discuss various features of his report prepared at the committee's behest, and is to meet again in executive session today.

The specific job for which the committee was appointed by the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth was to determine for the House the amount the Federal Government should appropriate annually toward maintenance of its National Capital. That question has not been finally determined by the committee and it is the committee plan to withhold its decision from the public until its report has been made to the House. Representative Mapes said he plans to submit the report within a day or two after the House convenes.

Percentage Basis Suggested.

Despite the reticence of the committee members and the absence of a final decision on the amount which is to be named as the proper Federal appropriation, it is a foregone conclusion that $9,500,000 is not far in excess of the amount the committee will recommend. Some of the committee members, in informal discussions, have said that determination of the amount by one or another method of computation would make $6,000,000 an excessive figure.

There is, of course, a proposal before the committee to put the Government appropriation on a percentage basis, and another providing for a sliding scale of Federal appropriations, as well as the lump sum appropriation plan. Whatever the committee decides will not be in favor of the District residents, and whichever plan is recommended will incorporate a maximum limitation to keep the total Federal appropriation below $9,500,000 annually.

Property Owners Complain.

Confronted with hundreds of complaints from property owners in their home districts where thousands of farms and other properties have been sold because of inability of the owners to pay the heavy taxes levied against them, committee members are not expected to recommend material increase in the real estate taxes in the District.

They are in almost outraged unanimity, however, in declaring that taxes on real estate in the District are very much lower than in their home districts.

It is the plan of the committee to press its report for approval by the House at the earliest opportunity so that it shall be available to the House appropriations committee prior to the framing of the annual District appropriation bill for next year.

Government Gets Land in Mall Area

Four Lots Bring $312,500; Site for Justice Home Costs $102,997.

Four lots and part of another in the area south of New York avenue and north of the Mall yesterday were acquired by the Federal Government from the Ordnance Building Co., at a cost of $312,500, the Justice Department announced.

Purchased under the Keyes-Elliott bill, providing for extension of the Government's building program, the land is in the area favored by the War Department for its new structure. Another site, southwest of the Capitol, is still under consideration for the War Department, however.

Other land acquired yesterday included a $102,997 parcel from Joe Fleischman, for the Department of Justice Building site, between Ninth and Tenth, B street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and a $12,000 parcel acquired from Josephine Ganna, for an Agriculture Department addition between Twelfth and Thirteenth, C and D streets southwest. An award of $7,526 was ordered deposited for the payment of certain persons whose land was condemned for inclusion in the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway.

The speakers will include Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Mrs. E. C. Rittue, Henry C. Clark, Herbert S. Wood and George A. Warren.

BRIDGE PILLAR FIGHT WILL GO TO HOOVER

Aviation Group to Present Petition Citing Dangers of Memorial Columns.

At a meeting of the aviation committee of the Board of Trade, held yesterday afternoon, the group decided to go directly to the President in an effort to prevent the erection of two columns, each 200 feet high, on the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

The memorial pillars, designed to "frame" the view from Washington to the Arlington Cemetery, are objected to by local aviation authorities on the ground that they constitute a dangerous menace to the navigation of aircraft in and out of the Washington-Hoover Airport.

When plans for the construction of the pillars were first announced a subcommittee of the aviation committee called upon Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, the executive and disbursing officer of the Memorial Bridge Commission. A consideration of the matter then followed, but it was decided late last month by the Fine Arts Commission not to alter the plans. Among other things the commission said that the columns would serve to divert air traffic away from Arlington Cemetery.

Committee Turns to Hoover.

Unsuccessful in their first attempt, the Board of Trade committee, among which are many of Washington's best-known fliers and aviation executives, decided to take the matter to the President, who is chairman of the Arlington Memorial Bridge commission.

The group which will call upon the President in the near future includes William P. MacCracken, chairman of the subcommittee and formerly Assistant Secretary of Commerce in Charge of Aeronautics; Lawrence E. Williams, chairman of the aviation committee of the Board of Trade; Charles M. Saxelby and Robert J. Cottrell, secretary of the Board of Trade.

Among other data which the group will present to the President is a statement signed by 40 leading pilots of commercial lines operating in and out of the Capital.

Text of Petition.

The petition, which is addressed to Lawrence E. Williams as chairman of the aviation committee of the Board of Trade, says:

"Knowing the great interest of your organization in the development of aviation in the National Capital, we, the undersigned pilots, using the Washington airport, protest the carrying out of the plan proposing the erection of 200-foot columns on the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

"We do so, having in mind our responsibility in safely transporting thousands of passengers to and from Washington, and because we are of the opinion that these columns will constitute a dangerous menace to the navigation of aircraft in and out of the Washington-Hoover terminal."

Lines Represented.

The pilots signing the petition represent the Ludington Lines, Eastern Air Transport, Dixie Flying Service, Pennsylvania Air Lines, Atlantic Seaboard Airways, Bell Telephone Lines, Continental Airways and the Department of Commerce.

Their flying experience totals 150,000 hours in the air, ranging 700 hours to 9,300 hours for each pilot.

At yesterday's meeting it was pointed out that whether or not the present site of Washington-Hoover airport is to be the Capital's air terminal of the future, the erection of the columns would constitute a hazard to air traffic as they would be in the lane of approach to any possible site for a local airport.

$100 Gold Pin Is Stolen.

Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, wife of the former city postmaster, of 2500 Ridge road northwest, last night reported the loss of a gold breast pin, set with pearls and amethysts, which she values at $100.

NATIONAL LOAN HEAD LAUDS HOOVER PLAN FOR HOME BUILDING

Praise Is Based on Provision for Reliance on Sound Existing Agencies.

BANQUET GIVEN ON EVE OF GROUP CONFERENCE

200 Officers, Directors and Delegates Are Here for Meeting.

Importance of President Hoover's statement on the proposed home loan bank system was emphasized last night by William E. Best, Pittsburgh, Pa., president of the United States Building and Loan League, addressing the annual banquet of the District of Columbia Council of Building and Loan Associations at the Willard Hotel.

Referring to his statement that the proposed system would be for the long view purpose of strengthening institutions promoting home ownership, particularly through financial strength made available to building and loan associations, Mr. Best, member of the committee of finance of the Hoover conference opening tonight, said the president had shown understanding of home-owners' needs in basing his system on sound existing agencies insuring its immediate operation.

National Officers Guests.

More than 400 building and loan men, their wives and other guests were at the dinner, the local council being host to nearly 200 officers, directors and delegates of the National League here to attend President Hoover's conference on home ownership and construction opening tonight at Continental hall.

Expressing hope that the coming conference would result in some helpful measure, Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House banking and currency committee, in his speech, announced his belief that causes rather than results must be dealt with in providing a solution. A right solution is highly desirable, in his opinion.

Besides President Best, officers, directors and guests present included First Vice President Ward B. Whitlock, Boston; Second Vice President Philip Lieber, Shreveport, La.; Secretary Treasurer H. F. Cellarius, Cincinnati; Executive Manager H. Morton Bodfish, Chicago; United States Representative Guy E. Campbell, Pittsburgh; Miss Anne E. Rae, Niagara Falls, N. Y., past president of the National League; United States Representative Robert Ramspeck, Decatur, Ga.

C. C. James Is Toastmaster

C. Clinton James, of this city, national past president and national legislative committee chairman, was toastmaster of the meeting, the largest gathering of building and loan men in the District since the league's national convention here in 1914. Success of the affair was due to a committee of which Mr. James was chairman, and other members were: President Chapin B. Bauman, of the local council; Carl J. Bergmann, vice president; William S. Quinter, secretary; Edward C. Baltz, past president, and Arthur G. Bishop.

The visitors were welcomed to the city by President Baumann and a women's committee composed of Mesdames Chapin B. Baumann, C. Clinton James, Carl J. Bergmann, William S. Quinter and Edward C. Baltz will arrange entertainment of delegates' wives.

Music for the dinner and dancing following was furnished by Happy Walker's Orchestra and the entertainment program included George O'Connor and Matt Honre, George and Ann Filgate, juvenile dancers; the Rythm Twins and Charles Demma.

Broken Barrel of Oil Halts Street Traffic

A section of the 3200 block of M street northwest was well oiled yesterday afternoon without the District government having to order the work done or paying a cent for it.

James Brooks, driver for W. T. Cowan, who operates a transfer company in the rear of 614 M street northwest, was unloading a barrel of linseed oil in front of a paint store at 3013 M street northwest. One of the skids on the truck let go and the barrel fell. The oil gushed over the street in limid waves. Traffic was halted until police could have sand hauled to cover it.

Bandit Trio Collects $8 In Oil Station Holdup

Held up at the point of a gun by three men who drove up to his station and ordered gas, William Johns, 71 S street northwest, manager of the Shell Gas Station at Water, Seventh and L streets southwest, was robbed of between $8 and $10, last night, he told police.

The men drove north on Seventh street, Johns said. Police arrived within 3 minutes after the radio call went out, but were unable to pick up the trail. Delay was occasioned when Johns called his employer before notifying police.
